But They Don't Own the Fish.

Suit was filed in the circuit court Oregon City by Archie Pease, of Clatsop, Hattie M. Colbert and Elizabeth Crawford, for $50,000 damages.

Hand was awarded the contract for the construction of a fishway over the falls at this place.

The plaintiffs have for the past 20 years had two-thirds interest in all the fishing rights at all times on Moore's island, over which the fishway is to be built. Construction was commenced lately on the government fish-ladder, for which an appropriation was made at the last session of the legislature. Plaintiffs ask for the above damages and for an injunction to prevent further operations.

This will stop work on the fishway, which was planned to have been in operation this fall.

William Miller, a wealthy and influential citizen of San Bernardino, Cal., shot and killed George Simmons, a millionaire mine owner, on a turquoise property in dispute between the men, near Manvel, Cal. Miller gave himself up to the authorities.

There are few men, women or boys who don't long for a watch, or want a better one than they have. All sorts are here, from a good moderate-priced timepiece to the finest gold one. W. Calvert, State street. 10-17-3t

ELLERY'S BAND TUESDAY

A Splendid Treat in Store For Salem's Music Lovers

The program of the Ellery Band concert at the Grand Opera House, Tuesday night, Oct. 20 will conclude with a grand selection from Bolto's magnificent opera of "Mefistofele." The story of this work is founded on Goethe's immortal drama of "Faust," the same which inspired Gounod, Wagner, Berlioz and Schumann, all of whom composed operas, oratorios or overtures, bearing upon the subject of the great German's dramatic poem. The opera of Bolto is the most comprehensive of them all, its chief defect indeed being in its effort to cover too many of the episodes of Goethe's work. The selection which will be played by the Ellery Band opens with a scene entitled the Classical Sabbath, representing the spirit of Helen of Troy, as she reposes in a beautiful garden amid the groves and flowers of Ancient Greece. To her, as she sings a duet with her confidante, Panballa, Mefistofele, or in English, the Devil, conducts Faust, who proceeds at once to make love to the beauty who caused the Trojan war. They sing a passionate duet, interpreted in the band by Sig. De Mitris, trumpet, and Lamonte, trombone. At the conclusion of this duet, the scene drifts to the prison wherein is confined "Marguerite," condemned to death for the killing of her child while in a state of insanity. Sig. De Mitris now plays with exquisite sweetness the death song of the unfortunate girl, and as he finishes the pathetic melody a chorus of angels is heard in the distance. As Marguerite falls back dead her soul is borne heavenward amid the rejoicings of the whole host of angels, who proclaim her salvation in a triumphant burst of harmony that beggars description in its thrilling grandeur. Curtain rises at 8:15.

Conditions are Different

San Francisco, Oct. 19.—The forest reserve forces and anti-forest reserve people are at present at sword point over the stand taken by Gifford Pinchot, chief forester of the United States bureau at Washington. Pinchot has communicated with the Water and Forest Association of California, setting forth the great benefit of forest reserves to the people of Oregon, Washington and California. Pinchot is opposed in his views by the lumbermen. In Oregon and Washington he has found that he has a greater battle to fight than in California. This is natural, as conditions are entirely different in California than in the Northwestern states. Pinchot has not declared in favor of large forest reserves in Oregon and Washington, but thinks that the dry sections of these states could be protected by confining lumbering to certain sections. California, he says, must be careful of her forests and especially in the southern part of the state lumbering should be regulated.

President Benjamin Ide Wheeler, of the University of California, explains that the forest reserve plans of the United States government are not understood. He says that the lumbermen do not know that the forestry scheme is to allow cutting in given sections at stated periods of time that will insure new growth and a perpetual timber supply.

But They Don't Own the Fish. Suit was filed in the circuit court Oregon City by Archie Pease, of Clatsop, Hattie M. Colbert and Elizabeth Crawford, for $50,000 damages.

PRUNES WITHOUT LYING

Physician Who Has Made a Great Discovery

Dries Fruit With One Third the Fuel and Gets Rid of the Deleterious Chemical.

Dr. J. F. Cook, the well-known botanical doctor of Salem, has devoted several years to experiments that have made so marked progress possible in prune drying. He first attacked the custom of dipping them in lye to cut the skin as he believed that some of the lye always remained with the fruit and cut the lining of the consumer's stomach. He simply dipped them in hot water and found the prunes cured better and people with weak stomachs could eat and grow fat on them while those who ate lye-dipped prunes, got thin and poor. Besides, the prunes dipped in scalding water did not drip nearly as much, and came out of the drier from 200 to 300 pounds heavier to the ton, than those that were dipped in lye. It was claimed that water-dipped prunes would not keep as well, but he brought this office a sample of the 1902 prunes dried after his formula and they were nice and fresh and had sugar all over them. That, he claims, settles that question and proves that lye is not needed to cure prunes. As a matter of fact the prunes dipped in water cook quicker and are more palatable. It stands to reason that a botanical doctor, who has spent all his life studying the properties of vegetables should be apt to notice such things and make such discoveries. Dr. Cook has invented a prune-drier that cures the fruit by means of steam-heated air, that he says, takes but one-third of the fuel. This is the second year that he has tested the matter, and he has now perfected his drier beyond question, and while it is a great invention, he says he will give the people the benefit of his experience free gratis. Many have called at his prune drier three-fourths of a mile from Rosedale, and all say it is a complete success. Steam heat is forced through the drier at a temperature of 175 to 185 degrees, and an automatic heat gauge regulates the drying so that it cannot rise above the point it is set at. When it goes above that the heat blows off and the prunes cannot be burned.

Hearst May Name the Man

Washington, Oct. 19.—The report that was sent out from here that Senator Gorman's presidential boom has petered out to some extent in the Southern states caused some commotion in the camp of national politicians in the big cities. Gorman has showed considerable strength south of Mason and Dixon's line and that he should suddenly slump was a surprise to everybody. At first the falling off in his strength was attributed to the little boomlet of Cleveland that is being launched by New York advocates of the ex-President, but now the Hearst people have come forward with the claim that the congressman's play for the Southern vote is commencing to show signs of attracting an audience. Gorman's friends here say that there is not a word of truth in the story that Hearst has made gains in the South. They say that Hearst is not taken seriously and cannot control the Southern delegates. Hearst's admirers on the other hand have figured to show that the newspaper man has the best chance of getting control and that if he cannot nominate himself he can name the next Democratic nominee.

Grover Cleveland denies that he is a candidate and professes to be greatly annoyed at the frequent mention of his name for a third term. The Cleveland workers are attempting to cement the business factions of the Democratic party and to do so without arousing the ire of those who have alleged to have seen in Cleveland a man who represents not all of the people, but that fraction of them who are adherents of Wall street.

OVER NIAGARA FALLS

A Wonderful Spectacular Play For Monday Night

The Best Eastern Talent, and Magnificent Scenery Combine to Make Perfection

On Monday, Oct. 19 the Grand Opera House will offer for the first time in this city, Messrs Rowland & Clifford's magnificent production, "Over Niagara Falls." This play is from the pen of Jos. LeBrandt, author of "On the Stroke of Twelve," "Caught in the Web," and other well known melodramatic successes, and is claimed to be his best effort. It abounds in sensational climaxes, is possessed of a strong plot which is skillfully unfolded. The characters are strongly drawn and original, including Starlight, an old Indian Chief; Asa Phillips, a pillar of the church, who uses his religion as a cloak to cover his many villainous deeds; a circus equestrienne and a French ring master; an ubiquitous newspaper reporter, a mischievous, fun-loving dandy, an old Irish guide, the superintendent of Chautauqua Park, and several others equally novel. The scenic and electrical effects are most elaborate and plentiful, the one showing the Falls by moonlight being a revelation in the scenic artist's world. Others, notable for their ingenuity are beautiful Lake Chautauqua, Goat Island above the falls, the Whirlpool Rapids and suspension bridge, all of which are depicted in a strikingly, true and realistic manner. Curtain rises at 8:15.

Starch vs. Dextrine

There are many different kinds of oatmeal just as there are many different kinds of bread and meat. H-O is not merely oatmeal. The starch is changed by high temperature to dextrine. That is why H-O builds brawn and brain with so little digestive effort.

Starch requires a strong stomach to digest it. The weakest stomach will quickly assimilate dextrine. H-O Oatmeal is prepared for weak people as well as the strong.

BEST FOR THE BOWELS

Do you cook?

Then you have to chop things—meat, vegetables, fruit, etc.—for culinary purposes. Do it quickly and quietly with Sargent's Gem Food Chopper, which chops it in fine, coarse or medium pieces—better than with chopping bowl and knife—without tearing, squeezing, mashing or grinding. It saves time, and adds to the pleasure of housekeeping.

The Gem is a well-made article, easy to clean and easy to keep in order; it has steel cutters that will not break.
