

Trusty Timekeepers

Is your watch always to be trusted? Can you turn to it any minute of the day and be sure that it will tell you no falsehood? When a friend asks the time do you apologetically say, "well, my watch isn't very accurate and I don't want to mislead you, but according to my time it's twenty minutes past three." If you own such a watch, trade it off or sell it and come to the Barr Store for a new timepiece. Every watch we sell is guaranteed to be a trusty, accurate timekeeper. Every movement is carefully tested before being put in stock. We carry in stock, Standard, Elgin, Waltham, Springfield, Columbus and Howard movements. It is an impossibility for you to buy a poor watch here for obvious reasons.

DING DONG BELL

The Eugene Guard's Editor's Cat's Kitten's Came Well From the Well

The cat is not credited with any great degree of sagacity apart from the instinct of catching its prey, but the Guard editor was witness to a case the other day that gave him a higher opinion of the feline reasoning faculty.

Through the breaking of a rotten board over a half-filled well, his Maltese cat's four kittens fell in, about ten feet deep. When their location was found out after being gone twenty-four hours, it was thought to send the mother cat down in a small basket to suckle the kittens and relieve her swollen breasts, till a ladder could be got.

Rather to our surprise, though, the cat on arriving at the bottom of the dry well did not leave the basket, but called the kittens. When one clambered into the basket they were drawn up and it was removed from under the mother's paw. Lying close to the bottom of the basket she was sent down again and again. When the basket came back with the fourth and last kitten the old cat had it in her mouth and she jumped when within two feet of the surface. She knew it was the last.

Chess and Nerves.

Dr. Lasker, the chess champion, in a recent interview granted to a reporter of the Minneapolis Journal declared that chess playing not carried to excess improves a man's health. "Most of the prominent players," he added, "live to an advanced age. But nervous people shouldn't play chess at night. If they do, they can't sleep, nor in the morning or they can't work. They shouldn't play at all, in fact. Chess is beneficial to a normal man, just as athletics is good for him. The chess player lives longer than the athlete."

Louis Philippe's Throne.

An interesting relic has been found among a lot of old lumber at the Palais Bourbon. It is the throne which Louis Philippe was wont to occupy when he went there to open the sessions of parliament. It was thought that the throne had disappeared, like that of the Tuilleries, after the outbreak of the revolution in 1848, but it has turned up, certainly not the worse for wear, as it has never been used since that date and only requires a little dusting.

Celery.

If celery is eaten freely, alkaline blood is the result, and where this exists there can be neither rheumatism, gout nor nervous prostration to any extent. It should be eaten preferably cooked, though it may be taken raw if thoroughly masticated.
