

EDITORS CAPTURE THE CITY

Large Attendance at the State Editorial Association

Fine Program Open to the Public at the City Council Chamber This Evening

With a fine art exhibition every afternoon and evening at our public schools, with a state convention of the W. C. T. U. in session four days, and the State Press association in three days, this has been a busy week for the State Press association here. The doors of the representative newspapers and publications of our state and its glorious climate and products and people would be unknown to the world.

The Editors Arrive.

All the trains coming into the city today brought delegations of editors and publishers and their ladies. They were received by a committee of the State Press club, F. F. Toews of The Journal and Carl Abram of the Statesman, wearing badges of their order nearly as large as a kitchen sink, and giving information about lodging places or points of interest about the city. President Tozier and Secretary Tozier have headquarters at the Willamette hotel. Many of the newspaper men are accompanied by ladies; and there are several ladies among the members of the state association. A committee of the ladies of the Salem Press club composed of Mrs. E. Hofer, Mrs. R. Hendricks, Mrs. F. F. Toews, Mrs. D. Minton and Mrs. A. R. Prescott will try to make the visiting ladies acquainted, take them shopping, get them a partner at the press ball, and otherwise make life endurable.

King's Daughters and Sons.

Northville, Mich., Oct. 22.—The seventh annual convention of the Michigan branch of the International Order of King's Daughters and Sons began here today with an attendance of delegates representing the 1600 members throughout the state. The opening session was held in the M. E. church this afternoon, with Mrs. Emily Fuller, of Flint, presiding. Reports of the general officers and county secretaries occupied the greater part of the session, after the usual addresses of welcome had been delivered and responded to. The report of Mrs. J. C. Rexford, of Detroit, the general secretary and treasurer of the state branch, showed the affairs of the order to be in good condition. The year has been one of great activity in the work of the order. The convention will be in session through the remainder of the week. Officers for the year will be chosen tomorrow. The business sessions will be interspersed with features of attractive entertainment arranged by the local members.

For Improvement of the Tennessee.

Chattanooga, Tenn., Oct. 22.—The seating capacity of the Auditorium was packed this morning when the Tennessee River Improvement association began its annual convention. Those in attendance included almost the entire congressional delegations of Tennessee, Mississippi and Alabama, together with representative business and professional men from all sections of the Tennessee valley. The roll call, appointment of committees and other perfunctory business occupied the opening session. It is expected that the proceedings will continue several days, during which time there will be exhaustive discussions of ways and means for bringing about the desired improvements and for obtaining an appropriation from congress sufficient to cover the expense of the work.

EMPRESS AUGUSTA VICTORIA

Her Forty-Fifth Birthday Celebrated in Germany

She Sets an Example of Domestic Life and Motherhood to the Butterflies of Fashion

Berlin, Oct. 22.—Empress Augusta Victoria was 45 years old today, and flags were displayed on all public and many private buildings in recognition of the anniversary. There were no court festivities, but at a happy family gathering the Emperor, it is understood, gave his beloved consort a pleasant surprise by adding substantially to her superb collection of pearls, already one of the most famous in all the world.

Though the Empress is slightly older than her husband, with her fair complexion and luxuriant hair, she looks, of anything, younger than he does. The preservation of her youthful appearance may be ascribed to her freedom from worry and her happy home life. She is one of the few feminine crowned heads who might truthfully be described as finding as much solid homely contentment in her husband's palace as any honest workman's wife in her vine-clad cottage.

This is a good deal more than can be said for her sister majesties, who, probably, with the exception of Queen Alexandra, are a weary and unsatisfied class of women, at least their faces bear all the marks of rather peevish discontent and unsatisfied longings. No so, however, does Empress Augusta Victoria, who was never an heiress in her girlhood, who at 18 was told to marry a young man deeply in love with another and who, between a clever, critical mother-in-law and her husband's chief political advisers, seemed likely to find life at the imperial court anything but a bed of roses.

After her marriage, which took place in February, 1881, her trials began in earnest, for intrigue was rife at the German Court. Bismarck and the Crown Princess Frederick were sworn enemies and Prince William took a prominent part in all these doings, but his wife triumphed in the end. She remained the same, cheerful, busy, amiable young lady of her girlhood days, healed quarrels by a mild word at the right time and presented her husband in turn with six rosy, sturdy boys and a dainty little princess.

Her whole object in life seemed to be toward the perfect achievement of domestic duties and when she changed her title of Princess William for that of Queen of Prussia and Empress of Germany she did not attempt any vocations more ambitious. There has never been the slightest effort on her part to lead in the social world and in fact, were any one probably to ask her why she does not read more or undertake the first place in society, she would explain that she had not the time to spare.

She is a most devoted wife to her husband, and often spends the morning with him helping him with his business, for with all her housewifely qualities she possesses a clear brain and calm judgement, which are often of great assistance to the Emperor. Her happiest hours are spent with her children, of whom she is devotedly fond, and the birth of her little daughter completed the happiness of her home life. The Empress is also extremely fond of music, and is a fair performer on the violin, and often when in private the Emperor and Empress hold a little concert, and he is also a great lover of music and possesses a very good voice and a correct ear.

Young Women Meet in Galeburg.

Galesburg, Ill., Oct. 22.—The Illinois Young-Women's Christian association holds its annual convention in Galeburg during the next three days and arriving trains today brought several hundred delegates and visitors from various parts of the state. A formal welcoming meeting this evening ushered in the convention program and the first business session will be held tomorrow morning. In the evening the convention will listen to the annual address, which will be delivered by Dr. Cleland B. McAfee, formerly president of Park College.

The reports prepared by the state officers for presentation to the convention show that the association is making rapid progress in its work. The state association directs the work of the associations in the cities and in most of the Illinois colleges for women. A new association has just been organized with seventy members in the James Milliken university recently opened at Deatur.

The delegates to the convention are being entertained by the Knox College branch of the association, which is one of the strongest in the state.

Speed Trial of Cruiser Denver.

Washington, Oct. 22.—The official speed trial of the new cruiser Denver takes place today over the government course between Cape Ann and Cape Porpoise, and the result is awaited with considerable interest at the navy department. The ship is in command of Captain Silman G. Chas. and carries a crew of picked men from the yard of the builders, Neafie & Levy.

The Denver is an unarmored, steel protected, twin-screw cruiser, and one of the smallest fighting vessels in the United States navy. She was designed for service in the Philippine Islands. Under the terms of the contract she is required to develop an average speed of 16½ knots an hour.

He Worked the Congressman

Washington, Oct. 22.—The inquiry that is being made in the matter of mail for Letson Balliet, accused of sending out letters inducing people to subscribe stock of the White Swan mine of Oregon and the Pacific Trust Company, of San Francisco, has been conducted with so much secrecy by the postoffice department that it is hard to get at the facts. Action was recently taken to hold up Balliet's mail at both Baker City and San Francisco, but the most important evidence against the man seems to have been passed along for the while. Last week the inspectors were hard at work on the case, but have now been told to devote their time to search for direct evidence against the accused.

The way the story is told here, some four years ago Balliet's mail was held up at San Francisco, and it is said to have contained over $20,000 in drafts and postoffice orders. Balliet is said to have secured the assistance of a newspaper man, who went to a California congressman with the proposition that he use his influence in Balliet's behalf, and have the mail released. Balliet went to Washington, hired a special train, and entertained the congressman and his friends. Soon after this the mail was released.

Our Governor Visits Home.

A telegram from Governor Chamberlain, received in this city last night, brings the information that he left last evening for Natchez, Miss., for a visit to his aged mother and older daughter, who is spending the year in that state. After visiting his relatives for a few days, he will return to Washington, and, winding up his business there, will return home, arriving in Oregon about the 5th of next month.

RICH MONTANA STRIKE

Owl Creek Discovery Discounts Even Klondike

If Stories are One-Half True Silver Will Take a Sudden Jump Upwards

Butte, Mont., Oct. 22.—Almost fabulous finds of gold ore, rivaling the Klondike discoveries have been made on Owl creek, near Hamilton, Mont., according to reports received in Butte. The greatest excitement prevails, and a stampede is on to the new fields. Miles Romney, mayor of Hamilton, and one of the well-known editors of the state, has returned after spending several weeks at the scene of the discovery, and his accounts of gold finds sounds like a fairy tale.

Ten massive ledges, exposed on the mountain side, fairly blaze in many spots from the glint of shining gold particles, dazzling the eye. A towering cliff overhangs the leads and a large gulch below is choked with boulders of ore sloughed from the heights. These chunks of gold-laden rock, Romney declares, range from the size of a hazelnut to masses as large as dwelling houses. Enough gold ore is in sight, he says, to run 1000 stamps 100 years.

W. D. Gross, a Denver mining expert, made the first discovery of deposits on Owl creek on August 1st. Conservative estimates of the value of the ore place the figures between $14 and $30 a ton, this calculation including thousands of tons of ore lying on the surface. Sections of the veins will run up into the thousands of dollars' worth of gold. Within the past few days over 100 claims have been staked out. Associated with Gross is Senator George Green, of New York, who, with others, represents a capital of $50,000,000.

They are now engaged in incorporating a company, and have 20 men at work on the property.

Sculpture at the World's Fair.

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 22.—The first of the fourteen giant sculptures, each emblematic of one of the states or territories formed from the Louisiana Purchase, have been placed on the pedestals they will occupy in the Colonnade at the world's fair. The first to be put in place was that representing Indian Territory, and Montana was the second. The other sculptures now ready for installation are those representing North Dakota, Nebraska, Arkansas, Missouri, Iowa, Kansas, Colorado, South Dakota and Oklahoma. The statues of Minnesota and Wyoming, which are to be executed by Gustav Gerlach and C. F. Hamann respectively, have not yet been received.

Do you cook?

Then you have to chop things—meat, vegetables, fruit, etc.—for culinary purposes. Do it quickly and quietly with Sargent's Gem Food Chopper, which chops it in fine, coarse or medium pieces—better than with chopping bowl and knife—without tearing, squeezing, mashing or grinding. It saves time, and adds to the pleasure of housekeeping.

The Gem is a well-made article, easy to clean and easy to keep in order; it has steel cutters that will not break.
