JOURNAL X-RAYS

A standing job—waiting for a street car.

What follows a storm? Well, sometimes the weather prediction.

The proper resolution for the boards of county commissioners of this state is: "Resolved, That we have the court house insured to its utmost limit, and the county books expeted."

A Sumpter gambler has skipped with another man's wife. It is part of the profession to take chances, but in this case it is a dead clinch loss.

Eugene's new theater was dedicated last night. "The Christian" being the opening play. Many are of the opinion that Catherine Countess is too heavy for light parts, and as "Glory" alternates between the two, she is up against it.

Crawford Exonerated.

The State Bar Association is in session at Portland. Among other matters before it yesterday was the report of the grievance committee and the discussion of the charges of perjury brought against Attorney-General A. M. Crawford by Judge W. R. Willis of Roseburg. The allegation is founded on an old trouble, which the two attorneys had in making a settlement of fees for a case they handled while in partnership. Williams claimed that Crawford had perjured himself in regard to a certain written agreement and which he denied the existence of. The committee's report stated that there seemed to be insufficient grounds for bringing the charges and recommended that the matter be passed over. Their report was approved and accepted.

Bed Time

I take a pleasant herb drink, the next morning I feel bright and my complexion is better. My doctor says it acts gently on the stomach, liver and kidneys, and is a pleasant laxative. It is made of herbs, and is prepared as easily as tea. It is called Lane's medicine. All druggists sell it at 25c and 50 cents. Lane's Family Medicine moves the bowels each day. If you cannot get it, send for free samples. Address, Orator Woodward, LeRoy, N. Y.

Why the Mills Shut Down.

In an interview Senator Booth, of the Booth-Kelly Company, has two explanations for the unfortunate closing of their extensive Lane county sawmills. The burden of his explanation is that his company cannot get cars, on account of a railroad car shortage. It is probable though that a very few words he slipped into the interview tell the story more to the point, and in accordance with the facts. "If we can again find markets, which are now badly demoralized," says Mr. Booth, "and can get cars with which to fill orders these two mills (Springfield and Coburg) will continue to run till the logs we have on hand are cut up." "Markets badly demoralized!" No other explanation is needed. Under such conditions timber is more desirable in the tree than in lumber.—Eugene Guard.

Climatic Cures.

The influence of climatic conditions in the cure of consumption is very much overdrawn. The poor patient, and the rich patient, too, can do much better at home by proper attention to food digestion, and a regular course of German Syrup. Free expectation in the morning is made certain by German Syrup, so is a good night's rest and the absence of that weakening cough and debilitating night sweat. Restless nights and the exhaustion due to coughing, the greatest danger and dread of the consumptive, can be prevented or stopped by taking German Syrup liberally and regularly. Should you be able to go to a warmer climate you will find that of the thousands of consumptives there, the few who are benefited and regain strength are those who use German Syrup. Trial bottle, 25c; regular size, 75c. At all druggists. At Dr. Stone's drug stores.

Wallowa Lambs Go East.

La Grande, Or., Nov. 18.—Twelve double-deck cars of lambs, about 2700 head, were shipped from Elgin to Huntington Saturday. The lambs were property of Boise City buyers, and were brought from Wallowa.

THE NEW STENOGRAPHER.

I have a new stenographer—she came to work today. She told me that she wrote the Gram system. Two hundred words a minute seemed to her, she said, like play. And word for word at that—she never missed 'em! I gave her some dictation—a letter to a man. And this, as I remember it, was how the letter ran:

"Dear Sir: I have your favor, and in reply would state that I accept the offer of yours of recent date. I wish to say, however, that under no condition

Can I afford to think of your free lance proposition. I shall begin tomorrow to turn the matter out; The copy will be ready about August 19th, about. Material of this nature should not be rushed unduly. Thanking you for your favor, I am yours very truly."

She took it down in shorthand, with apparent ease and grace. She didn't call me back all in a hurry. Thought I, "At last I have a girl worth keeping round the place."

Then said, "Now write it out—you needn't hurry"

The Remington she tackled—now and then she struck a key. And after three hours' struggle this is what she handed me!

"Dear Sir, I have the Fever, and in a Pile I Sit And I except the Offer as you Have reasoned it, I wish to say however That under any condition can I for to Think of a free lunch proposition? I Shall be in tomorrow To, turn the mother out, The cap will be red and Will cost $10, about.

Material of this nation should not rust N. Dooley Thinking you have the Fever I am Yours very Truly." —W. F. Kirk in Milwaukee Sentinel.

MAYOR BISHOP'S RESIGNATION.

The resignation of Mayor Bishop comes at a time when his friends, and the friends of the Citizens' administration would much rather have seen him remain in office, but, from a business point of view, all his friends concede that it was about the only thing for Mr. Bishop to do, in justice to himself. He has large and growing business interests, and having served five years without compensation of hope of reward is probably entitled to be relieved.

Mayor Bishop has served practically five years, and those among the most critical years of Salem's history. When he was elected on a Citizens' ticket, to break the rule of ring politics, it was no easy undertaking, and he was triumphantly elected with the entire ticket on a platform that meant reversal of the old order of things, and a new deal in the matter of financing our city. He was elected on a platform favoring flat salaries for city officers and employes, with all fees going into the city treasury. It stood for funding the floating city debt in 4 per cent popular loan bonds, for running the city within its income, and for the expansion and up-building of the city generally, all to be done without reference to politics.

These policies were carried out faithfully by the entire administration, until they have become so generally accepted that it will be difficult for any set of men to recede from them. Mr. Bishop and his colleagues are entitled to the utmost credit for their work in this behalf, and the latter, as well as hundreds of other good citizens, will sorely regret the necessity for his resignation.

What a sweet disposition! Born so? Or made so by Ayer's Pills?

J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass.

Wall street, the brokers who keep the poolrooms in which they gamble, are not ashamed to have their names known, to put up signs over their offices; and the money which they make is accepted without question in society and by the church. . . .

It was Mr. Cheate who said not many years since at a public dinner in this city that the churches insist upon a higher code of morals in the control of business corporation; that they must expel from their membership and hold up to the opprobrium and contumely of society, officers and directors of corporations who are guilty of political corruption. Until the Christian church and Christian churches at large have reached that standard, we cannot expect to obtain a correction of this evil. . . .

The trouble is that society, although calling itself loosely Christian, is not organized on the lines of the teaching of Christ. The society of Christian countries, of Christian churches, is very far remote from Christianity in its social and economic conditions in the application of the teachings of Christ to its business and its society relations. Our society, using the word in its narrower sense, has its foundation, as its main principle, in actual practice, a definitely anti-Christian doctrine. It is not the man or woman who labors and toils that is honored socially, but the man who does not need the labor, and who does not labor and toil to serve his brother men and women as Christ served. The standard of social truth is, with us, not what a man or woman has done to serve his or her fellows, but what a man or woman has gotten for himself or herself, or, worse still, what a man or woman's ancestors—the more remote the better—have gotten and stored up and passed on to them.

The whole thing is un-Christian, anti-Christian.

Return of the Prodigal.

Chas. Allen, that genial North Dakota newspaper man who came out here several years ago, and enjoyed the climate and fruits of Oregon for a twelve-month, has returned to stay. It will be remembered that after his short stay here he again hungered for the fishpots and billiards of the land of the Dakotas, and he returned, but his experience was that of 99 per cent of all who try that experiment. He couldn't fully appreciate Oregon until he again went up against the real thing at 40 below zero, and now, like every good Missourian he "knows," and will let well enough alone. All of Charley's old friends are glad to see him back in God's country.
