New Electric Heater.

A new electric heater for rapid work has been invented by a Havana engineer, and is thus described by the Scientific American: "The inventor claims that with his little electric heater half a pint of water can be raised from freezing to the boiling point in only four or five minutes. The heater may be cheaply made, as will be readily seen from the following description of its construction: The handle of the device, which is made of insulating material, is secured to a tube or cylinder of metal which surrounds a core of porcelain formed with a spiral groove to receive the resistance wire. The spiral coil of the core may be cut on an engine lathe by means of a diamond or quartz point. The resistance wire is a small platinum wire which, at its lower end, is secured by means of a set screw to the metal plug which closes the bottom of the cylinder. "The other end of the heating wire is connected to one of the main wires or lamp cords which pass out through the handle. The other lamp cord is electrically connected to the cylinder. The latter may be fluted to increase its radiating surface. In use, the lower portion of the device is submerged beneath the surface of the liquid to be heated. The conducting cords are connected with the lamp socket or with the terminals of a source of electricity, whereupon the current in passing through the small platinum wire causes it to become intensely hot. The heat is then radiated to the cylinder, which in turn communicates it to the liquid. Practically no danger attends the use of the device, and it can be manipulated by any person of ordinary intelligence."

Paderewski's Hard Luck.

Literary and musical celebrities are often unfortunate in their investments, and M. Paderewski, according to a report, has encountered the fate of Mark Twain, and practically lost his savings, amounting to £100,000, which he had invested on the advice of a Polish friend. Instead of retiring from the platform, as he had intended, he is obliged, it is said, to start his recital work again. There is a grim pathos, in the light of his misfortune, in a remark he once made to his agent, who had sent him in earlier days a kind letter from Mme. Modjeska, testifying to his brilliant qualities:

"Whenever business is slack you can use this on me. If you hear that Mme. Modjeska is not doing well, change the gender and say I said it about her. It ought to be good for either of us in an emergency."

The savings of ten years gone at a blow is not such an evil fortune as overtook Scott, who plunged into debt, and wrote himself literally to death to pay off his creditors, and it comes to M. Paderewski at a much younger age than was Mark Twain when he learned that his publishing firm had collapsed; but it is sufficiently serious in these days, when public favor is so uncertain and changeable. During last summer, moreover, M. Paderewski suffered from severe inflammation of the muscles of the right arm, and the Parisian specialists ordered complete rest for three months.—Men and Women (London).

Feat in Transportation.

The French staff has been calling attention to some of its transportation work during the recent maneuvers. At the beginning of the maneuvers, 21,500 men, 700 officers, 600 horses and 40 wagons were entrained at Paris, and sent off to their destination within 48 hours. There was no interruption of regular traffic. Sixty-two trains were used, many of which had to be brought from distant points owing to the scarcity of sidings. The troops were entrained at six different places.—New York Commercial Advertiser.

The First Cob Pipes.

The first cob pipes were not made in Franklin county, Mo., but at Warrensburg. Fritz Tibbs, a German cabinetmaker, who resided in this city in the early seventies, used to whittle them out with a jackknife. He afterward moved to Washington, Franklin county, where he engaged with his brother in the manufacture of cob pipes, and became wealthy. Both the old men are dead now, and the sons of the brother continue the business.—Warrensburg, (Mo.) Standard.

Which Died First.

Paris, Dec. 11.—Dr. Perriquet, considered the leading witness in the Fair case, testified today that when he arrived at the scene of the accident he found both dead. Fair's body was rigid, and while the faces did not indicate that the former died first, he believed Fair was instantly killed. A letter received from an official near the scene of the death, says the porter's wife, who discovered the bodies, told him she saw Mrs. Fair's hand move after the husband was dead.

Moran May Plead Guilty.

Pendleton, Or., Dec. 11.—Felix Moran, a prominent Athena farmer, and brother of Jerome Moran, in the county jail, charged with passing forged checks, was in the city today, and, in conference with District Attorney Halley, he said Jerome would plead guilty if the judge would promise leniency. The criminal will be arraigned tomorrow.

Divided in Opinion.

Chicago, Dec. 11.—The contractors' national convention has great difficulty today in adopting laws and a constitution. The Chicago council favors the closed shop and trade agreements against sympathetic strikers, while the radicals favor universal open shops, and national blacklists of union workmen who are agitators.

To Distribute Prizes.

Washington, Dec. 11.—The committee from the World's fair called on Roosevelt this morning, and asked him to distribute the prizes won at the athletic games at the exposition next summer. He will accept, if possible.

For Killing a Detective.

Peoria, Dec. 11.—John McRae, colored, for the murder of Detective William Murphy, was hanged at 9 o'clock this morning. At the time of the crime McRae (who narrowly escaped lynching).

Chinook Works in Harbor.

Astoria, Dec. 11.—The big dredger Chinook was at work in the lower harbor Wednesday, and will continue to dredge there when conditions will not permit her to work on the bar. In eight hours yesterday 4000 tons of sand were taken from the shoal below Smith's Point, carried across the river and dumped in 100 feet of water near Point Ellice. Four round trips were made, and the distance traveled was 72 miles.

For an Electric Line.

Spokane, Wash., Dec. 11.—The county commissioners at Colfax were yesterday asked for a franchise to build an electric railway to the county boundaries, as part of the electric line to connect Colfax and Spokane, with branch lines to other towns in the grain belt. The road is to be nearly 100 miles long, and will cost $15,000 per mile. The incorporators include D. T. Ham, a wealthy Spokane capitalist, and other business men in various towns of the Palouse. A similar request will be made of Spokane county.

Attendance at Albany Schools.

Albany, Or., Dec. 11.—The report of the city superintendent of public instruction in Albany shows that there are a total of 679 students in attendance upon the schools of the city. Of these, 336 are boys and 343 girls. The average daily attendance is 605, or 95 per cent of the pupils enrolled. The high school claims 64 of the number enrolled, the remainder being in the grammar grades.

To Distribute Prizes.

Washington, Dec. 11.—The committee from the World's fair called on Roosevelt this morning, and asked him to distribute the prizes won at the athletic games at the exposition next summer. He will accept, if possible.

For Killing a Detective.

Peoria, Dec. 11.—John McRae, colored, for the murder of Detective William Murphy, was hanged at 9 o'clock this morning. At the time of the crime McRae (who narrowly escaped lynching).

Bohemia Is Active.

D. J. Gover was up from Bohemia yesterday, attending a meeting of the stockholders in the Iowa, Monte Rico and White Swan properties. The old officers were re-elected.

Pianos.

A few weeks ago I received a large car of pianos, and several smaller shipments. My store now looks very empty. I placed orders for another carload. To clean out the balance, have in stock I will sell them very cheap. Geo. C. Will, music and sewing machine dealer.

Wrecked Inside the Bar.

The Italian bark Cavour was wrecked near Astoria Tuesday night and went ashore on Sand Island. She pounded heavily on the sands, and was soon leaking badly. Her crew was taken off by the lifesaving people at Point Adams. She was lumber laden and bound for Pasco, Peru.

For Cruelty to Animals.

Chief of Police Gibson last night arrested P. H. Shippley for cruelty to animals.

The man who resides at the mission on 12th street, was driving through town with a load of wood, drawn by two poor horses; one of which could hardly do the work, on account of the great lumps and sores upon its shoulders. Chief Gibson immediately locked the man up in the city jail, and this morning he answered before Recorder Judah for the charge and was fined $5, which he paid.
