

The Heirlooms Of Holland

The quaint, old fashioned things, that the Dutch used to use, three or four centuries back, are prized as precious heirlooms nowadays. Real Dutch Clocks of the choicest sort cost almost a King's ransom; but modern ingenuity copies them very closely... and that is how it comes about that we offer for Christmas some of the quaintest, oddest, most charming Dutch Clocks that anyone could possibly desire. Any parlor would be enriched with one of these Clocks. They are so unique, so different from the ordinary kind of Clocks, that almost every woman who has seen them has fallen in love with them and we expect visits from a good many husbands who have had pretty strong hints to bring home one of these Clocks on Christmas night. The prices are from $1.00 to $10.00, according to size and finish. Do not miss seeing them on your next shopping tour.

Of course, these Dutch Clocks are only one of the many Christmas features, of this store. Ours was never before quite so interesting a place for those who seek really fine gifts and that is saying not a little.

OREGON'S CAPITAL CITY

How the Change of Power Is Viewed Generally

Salem Owes it to the Rest of the State to Keep Abreast of the Times and "Brush Up"

Five years ago the citizens of Salem voted to oust the Republican party from control of municipal affairs, and placed the city government in the hands of men nominated at a non-partisan mass meeting. The principle of majority rule is based upon the theory that the majority of the people are most likely to be right, and it may be presumed that the Republican administration had been so unsatisfactory as to merit this stern rebuke. In the city election held Monday the Republicans were returned to power. As Salem is a strongly Republican community, this change does not necessarily indicate dissatisfaction with the Citizens' administration, but does indicate that the people of the Capital City believe the management of city affairs can again be entrusted to the Republican party.

The campaign just closed seems to have been conducted upon a high plane, personalities and baseless accusations being withheld. It was admitted on both sides that all the candidates were men of honor, integrity and ability. The Republicans conceded to the Citizens' administration full credit for what it has accomplished in the way of economy. The contest was creditable to both sides, and the Republicans have reason to congratulate themselves in winning a

THE OLD LIME KILN

A Play Full of Life and Movement for Tonight With New Songs Etc.

"Charley's Aunt," was at the opera house last night, and proved to be an interesting and entertaining play, of whom Charley may pretty well feel proud. The play was well attended, and the frequent and hearty applause testified to the fact that it was appreciated and enjoyed. The company is strong and well balanced, and the excellent work done, in even the minor parts, shows careful management, and close attention to the details. The work between the curtains is exceptionally good, and the long wait, where the audience watches the late-rigged vessel trying vainly to get around the promontory on the drop curtain, is avoided. If you want to be entertained and amused, you cannot do better than be in your seat tonight when the curtain goes up on "At the Old Lime Kiln." There is an entire change in the between-curtain work every night, and each change seems more pleasing than its predecessor. The company closes its engagement Saturday night.

Getting Ready for Business.

Under orders from the city council, City Recorder Judah is making preparations to accommodate the new council at the beginning of the year. This morning the semi-circular table, at which the members sit while in session, was moved from the police court room to the city hall on the main floor, where it will be placed in position, and a section put into the center, large enough to provide room for six more members. Under the old arrangement eight members found seats in the semi-circle, but, under the new deal, when the council for Greater Salem organizes, 14 men will have to find room at the table in front of the mayor's chair, and this means that more room will have to be provided. The new members of the outside wards—Nos. 5, 6 and 7—chosen at the election last Monday, are expected to take their seats next Tuesday evening, in order to give the new wards representation when the new budget for the next year comes up for consideration, so that they will be able to represent their wards in arranging for the next years business.

What are cloves for, do you think? For flavor; nothing but flavor. There are two measures of flavor: quality quantity; fineness and strength. Schilling's Best has, without exception, the very finest and richest flavor and most of it; difference marked. One oz is worth two of the next best; twenty of some. Your grocer's; moneyback.

victory against such worthy opponents. Beyond a doubt the new administration will prove itself entitled to the confidence the people have manifested in its candidates. Salem has been honored and favored by being selected as the capital of the state. Not only in the name of being the capital, but in the location of public institutions at that place, Salem has enjoyed advantages of no small consequence.

These advantages, bestowed by the people of the entire state, give the residents of every part of the commonwealth an interest in all of Salem's affairs. Oregon has a right to expect Salem to be a model city, in its morals, in its educational system, in its sanitary conditions, in its public improvements and in its municipal government. Nowhere in the Northwest can more beautiful grounds be seen than those which are maintained by the state surrounding the capital. In due course of time the federal government will beautify its block of land at the other end of Wilson avenue. It is not unreasonable that the people of the state should expect the city of Salem to make Wilson avenue a park, which will harmonize in appearance with the state and federal grounds. In most respects Salem has met the requirements which the state may reasonably make of her as the capital of the state. Recent agitation indicates an intention to improve sanitary conditions and further to beautify that portion of the city surrounding the state house.

From recent discussion it also appears that there is need of a more active enforcement of the laws against minors frequenting saloons and gambling places. Salem must not feel offended if "outsiders" manifest an interest in that city's welfare. If those who view the conditions from a distance are sometimes free in adverse criticism, they are also ready to commend that community as a beautiful city of hospitable homes, industrious people and magnificent opportunities.

for a public installation of officers, to be held in their hall on January 7th, next, when some of the leading state officers of the order will be in attendance. At the same time the officers of the Royal Neighbors, the ladies' branch of the order, will be installed. Arrangements for this event were completed at a meeting of the two orders held last night. At this meeting the attendance was large, and a most enjoyable time was had by the members, and plans for the future work were discussed by the leading Woodmen present. The meeting was followed by a banquet, participated in by a goodly crowd, covers being laid for about 50, and one of the most pleasant evenings in lodge circles came to a close all too soon.

Lots of Brag.
You can read of lots of brag in advertisements about some sewing machines being better than others. Many of those advertisements are written by parties that do not know as much as most women do about a sewing machine. Think of the brags made by some lately, and the guarantees promised; all gone to the wind now. Take a look at Geo. C. Will's sheet music window now, and tell them to produce the goods. Geo. C. Will is not selling sewing machines discarded 15 years ago as failures, and talked to you as something entirely new. Take a look at the new and latest machines out, always at Geo. C. Will's.
