FUNNY DARKNESS BUSINESS

The Electrics Went Out and Marie Heath Stayed

Professor McElroy Came to the Rescue With "Look Ever to Jesus, He'll Carry You Through"

In the middle of the play last night, and during a very dramatic scene, where Joe Pemberton (Marie Heath) learns his father is a convict, the electric lights slipped a cog, and in an instant all was dark. Fortunately there was no blithering idiot to start a panic, for undoubtedly in view of the recent horror at Chicago, many in the audience were for a moment nervous. As it was, good sense prevailed, and when a voice, from somewhere out of the darkness volunteered the information that a fuse had burned out in the switch board, and would be repaired in a few minutes, the buzz of conversation told that all danger was passed. Then some gallery god, in a piping voice, queried "Where's Moses?" and that put the finishing touch to the audience's good nature. Of course, it was much like going through a tunnel, when the temptation, if sitting beside a pretty girl becomes almost irresistible—you know—and Professor McElroy promptly rose to the occasion, the soft notes of his cornet sounding clearly through the darkness.

"Yield not to temptation For yielding is sin." And the balance of the song-sermon was almost spoken through the brazen throated instrument—we mean, of course, the cornet, and not the professor.

Then someone came with a lamp, that was placed on the stage, giving just light enough to show Joe Pemberton, that is, pretty Marie Heath, held in the protecting arms of either Deacon Bisbee or Frank Meredith, the dim light making it a good guessing matter for the audience. Whoever it was, seemed to realize that it was the opportunity of a lifetime, and was taking advantage of it to the full limit. This is why, perhaps, the majority inclined to the Meredith side of the guess.

Then there was another lamp and three tallow dips brought in to intensify the gloom, and, incidentally grease the music, so that the piece rendered by the orchestra a few minutes later was with unusual smoothness, and was heartily encored. Still the incubator that hatches out the incandescents was out of order, and Miss Heath stood up in the glare of the tallow dips and gave her original conception of "Listen to my tale of woe," and right in the middle of it, when she was briskly rubbing the place where the "peach of emerald hue" was getting in its deadly work, the lights flashed on and cured her.

It was 28 minutes that darkness reigned and in that time—well, among other things, there was lots of good-natured fun—and the bashful young fellows had a splendid opportunity to tell some of the prettiest girls on earth some sweet little stories that otherwise might never have been told—who knows.

Climatic Cures.

The influence of climatic conditions in the cure of consumption is very much overdrawn. The poor patient, and the rich patient, too, can do much better at home by proper attention to food digestion, and a regular course of German Syrup. Free expectoration in the morning is made certain by German Syrup, so is a good night's rest and the absence of that weakening cough and debilitating night sweat. Restless nights and the exhaustion due to coughing, the greatest danger and dread of the consumptive, can be prevented or stopped by taking German Syrup liberally and regularly. Should you be able to go to a warmer climate you will find that of the thousands of consumptives there, the few who are benefited and regain strength are those who use German Syrup. Trial bottle, 25c; regular size, 75c. At all druggists. At Dr. Stone's drug stores.

STATE TAXES LEVIED

Large Appropriations Were Made Necessary

Big Portland Exposition Appropriation, Indian War Veterans and the Eastern Or. Canal

The state board of levy, consisting of Governor Chamberlain, Secretary of State Dunbar and Treasurer Moore, this morning made the annual tax levy for 1904. The amount of revenue called for is $1,225,000, and of this sum $25,000 is for the Agricultural College, the remainder for the general expenses of the state, and to pay the extraordinary appropriations provided for under special acts of the legislature. Marion county will pay of this amount the sum of $75,000.50, as against $46,588 last year. The increase is explained by Secretary of State Dunbar to be owing to the large special appropriations made by the legislature at the last regular and special sessions, which have to be provided for this year. They are:

- Celilo canal$100,000
 - Indian War Veterans 100,000
 - Lewis and Clark exposition. 250,000
 - Portage railway .. 165,000
- But for these large extraordinary
