McEWEN SIMPLY IMMENSE

At the Head of the Class as a Hypnotist

Some Beautiful Demonstrations in Palming and Some Bewildering Tricks in Magic

There is no use trying to deny the fact that McEwen is simply immense. There is a charm about the way he does things that is simply irresistible. There are thousands of gentlemen, but only one Chesterfield. So there are many sleight-of-hand artists, many hypnotists, but only one McEwen. He stands in a class all by himself, with the blue ribbons and the record. Last night he did so much that to tell the simple truth the reporter forgot what he did. There is only a sort of kaleidoscopic remembrance of dozens of bewildering things—of rings and birds and billiard balls, all of which appeared and disappeared at the will of the operator. One could easily imagine that somehow McEwen had fallen heir to Aladdin's wonderful lamp that compelled all things to obey him, and that he had the genii among his paraphernalia. The hypnotic experiments were as usual the crowning feature of the evening. And if there was anyone there who didn't laugh and laugh their money's worth, it was because they didn't know how.

An entirely new program tonight and Saturday.

Coppered His Partner

Salt Lake, Jan. 8.—Prothero and Shockley, suspects in the street car murder Wednesday at midnight, are still held in the penitentiary, to prevent their lynching. Both are gamblers from Idaho. The police believe Prothero, who squaled on Shockley, is the real murderer. He sold his room mate to get the reward.

Steamer Ice Bound

Norfolk Va., Jan. 8.—The steamer Brandon, from Norfolk to Richmond, is ashore in the James river, with a large passenger list; she is caught by the ice.

Our Spray Outfit

We have a power spray outfit that will interest every orchard and hop man in this vicinity.

It consists of a two-horse-power Fairbanks-Morse Gasoline Engine with pump, and together with large tank, mounted on iron-wheeled farm truck. The truck we have fitted with the X-reach, so that both axles swivel, making the shortest turn possible, and permitting the driver to turn among the trees or hop poles with impunity, as the hind wheels track exactly with the front.

The supply tank contains a pair of paddle agitators that revolve in a horizontal plane at the bottom of the tank, thus keeping the mixture thoroughly stirred, insuring an even distribution of the poison on the foliage.

The pump is fitted with a gauge and a safety valve, and has sufficient power to throw the spray through four nozzles at a pressure of 125 pounds. When the operator wishes to close the nozzle he does not need to stop the engine as the safety valve permits the fluid to run back into the tank.

The gasoline engine never gets tired, and does not need to stop and spit on its hands. It will pump spray for 10 hours at a stretch, and won't complain about getting it in its eyes.

The fact is, an orchard man or hop man who has many acres to spray, cannot afford to get along with man power on the pump. When he needs spray, and lots of it, it is dollars in his pocket to get the mixture on the trees or vines on time, and he will not only save his first cost, but possibly save his crop.

Call and see our outfit. We can sell them to you complete, ready to run, or can sell you the engine, pump, agitator, gears, etc., and you mount it yourself.

Coming

Monday, Jan. 11

in

Star Entertainment Course

Says a prominent Salem man: I want by all means to hear them again. They are masters of the finest harmony we have.

The story of the organization and revival of the Fisk singers is interesting. Perhaps we will tell it later, but they must be heard to be appreciated.

Fisk Jubilee Singers.

Anyone who has once heard the negroes in their old plantation and campmeeting melodios always wants to hear them again. This inimitable music which rings yet in the ears of many whose youth was spent in the "Old South" has a wonderful charm. There are many who have traveled, or perhaps followed old glory into the Southland, who remember well the weird echo of the strange, wild chant of negro boatmen on Southern rivers.

For more than 3 years these Fisk Jubilee Singers have delighted thousands in America and Europe. Far better than any other company they preserve the traditional power of the negro music. The present director, Mrs. Cole, once herself a slave, was with the company when first organized at Fisk university in 1871.

Says Mark Twain: "I wish this music were a foreign product so that America would worship it, and go properly crazy over it."

Following this concert in the Star Entertainment Course, the Mozart Symphony club who have once before delighted Salem music-lovers, will appear. And on April 19 the course will close with General John B. Gordon's great lecture, "The Last Days of the Confederacy."

SKELETON SEVEN FEET TALL
Remarkable Find in Indian Grave Yard Near Walla Walla.

The old Catholic burying grounds, situated about five miles southwest of the city, were visited yesterday by Messrs. George and Hennessey, two young men of this city, who are interested in Indian relics, says the Walla Walla Union.

The two men went out early in the morning, prepared to make a thorough investigation around the old graves, but, as the man living on the property, was averse to an investigation, they did not accomplish very much.

They state from observations made that, up to within three years ago, the bodies interred there must have been in an almost perfect state of preservation. One or two of which they were able to discover were almost entirely natural, some little damage having been caused by irrigation of the land, which was commenced about three years ago. The bodies are now decaying very rapidly.

Of the two bodies they found one was over seven feet in length, and the other correspondingly large, mute evidences of a large and stalwart race. There was nothing of any value in the graves. In one they found a few coral ored beads, and in the other an iron pan, which covered the face of the body.

An old settler, who remembered the occurrence well, said the man who was buried in the last grave they found had been shot over 50 years ago for the robbery of the wagon and supplies of a party of white settlers who were crossing the plains. The bullet wound was still very plain in the back of the head.

Messrs. George and Hennessey intend making another investigation in a week or ten days, when they hope to discover more.

Oregon News Notes.

It is rumored that agents are now offering 11 cents per pound for chit-tim bark, to be delivered next season.

A new bank has been incorporated at Oakland, with Lynn Caton, Dr. E. J. Page and J. H. Grubbe as incorporators. It will be known as the Commercial Bank of Oakland.

The American Federation of Labor no longer has a general organizer in the state of Oregon. G. Y. Harry, who held the position for the past 18 months, has tendered his resignation, which has been accepted.

Captain A. W. Clothier, commander of Company C, Third Infantry, O. N. G., at Portland, has been relieved from duty by order of Colonel Gantenbein, because he failed to comply with certain military regulations.

C. B. Wade, one of the most prominent and most trusted business men of Pendleton, has failed, and has been forced to make an assignment. His failure, which was due to unfortunate speculation, caused great surprise.
