

HAPPY HOOLIGAN COMING

If You Want to See Whole Lots of Trouble See Hooligan

You All Know Him and Have Laughed at Him— This is the Original

Coming to the Grand Opera house Saturday night is "Happy Hooligan," probably the most successful, and certainly one of the most entertain-so, has caused laughs by the millions. The theatrical version of "Happy Hooligan" was arranged by Mr. Frank Dument, and for this season's edition of it, he has entirely rewritten the lines, scenes and comedy incidents, bringing them up to the very minute. The production, too, is entirely new in every detail. Last season "Happy Hooligan" was a big money maker, and so for the current tour over $25,000 has been invested in scenery, costumes, and in engaging the services of the very best people available for the different roles. Among the features are the widely discussed diamond ballet, a most beautiful effect, and a chorus of 25 of the most beautiful show girls ever brought together under one management. In the company are such artists as Eva Davenport, Billy A. Ward, Otis H. Wood, Matthews and Law, the novelty trio, Charles Saunders

ing farce comedies ever produced. The plot, or rather the outline of such plot as affords a ground work for this musical absurdity, is based on Mr. F. Opper's "Happy Hooligan" cartoons, published in the New York Journal and its associate newspapers of the Hearst syndicate. The genial hobo, as pictured by Mr. Opper, has become a favorite in nearly every household in the country, and his predilection for always getting into trouble, while not meaning to do

Killed the Cougar. A Jasper correspondent sends us, under date of January 17th, the following interesting story of a cougar chase:

Mr. Thomas, who lives on the McKenzie, having found that the cougars were destroying his sheep, so informed the Jasper hunters, and Sunday several of the boys started out for some sport, among them John Wallace and his famous varmint dogs. Upon reaching the Sparks place at 11 o'clock and finding four dead sheep, they let the dogs go, and in a short time they treed a large cougar, which was killed by Marlon Wallace and John Wallace (Cougar Jack.)

The boys hardly had time to examine their prize before the dogs had treed another cougar, a short distance from the first one. N. J. Morehouse shot and crippled the animal, and on falling from the tree he disappeared in a thick bunch of brush, and, being so closely surrounded by dogs it was impossible to give him another shot. As the boys were getting anxious about their dogs, Robert Wallace, who was evidently braver than the rest, seized the beast by the tail and dragged him out, so Morehouse might give him the dead shot.

Before leaving the place a wildcat was killed. This ended the day's hunt.

Who says that the Wallace boys haven't the best varmint dogs on the Pacific coast?—Eugene Register.

Yaquina-Coos Bay Road.

Ed. Crangler, the owner of a 100-ton steamer, has been in the valley this week looking up business for a regular boat between Yaquina and Coos Bay. If the prospect is good for a regular traffic, he will run his boat, which would be particularly a good thing for the passengers now obliged to stage it into Coos Bay from Roseburg.—Albany Democrat.

SOUGHT LOST TREASURE

Two Gold Seekers Return From Strange Land

They Have a Vast Fund of Experience but Never Saw a Sign of Yellow Metal

(San Francisco Chronicle.)

On the German steamer Mera, arriving yesterday, were H. McManus and C. Thompson, of Halifax, Nova Scotia, who are returning from an unsuccessful search for treasure in Tierra del Fuego. They passed through many exciting experiences near the southern extremity of South America, but returned without the treasure, or any part of it, which they went to find. The explanation of the gold-bearing land they left for others of the party who went to the barren country with them in the schooner Hattie L. M., from Halifax. McManus and Thompson, with eight companions, sailed from Nova Scotia on March 17 last for Tierra del Fuego to look for treasure in large quantities which Captain McLeod, of the schooner, said was to be found there. The Hattie L. M. was a vessel of 87 tons register, and experienced a hard trip after getting out to sea from Halifax. She was five months in reaching Tierra del Fuego, and on the way one of the party, Ashley Cooper, was washed overboard and drowned during a terrific storm. The schooner finally reached False cove, on Tierra del Fuego, but went aground in trying to land. About this time McManus and Thompson had a misunderstanding with the others of the party, and taking all their belongings from the vessel, set out by themselves, accompanied only by Patagonian Indians, for an expedition into the interior of the rocky and barren island. For several weeks the two young men lived only on shellfish, the common food of the natives, and endured the greatest hardships while tramping over miles of pathless country looking for signs of gold. It was necessary at all times, day and night, to maintain a close watch over their guides, who were of the lowest order of humanity, and who appeared ready and anxious to take their lives if any opportunity presented itself. By keeping their arms ready, and having the Indians always ahead of them, McManus and Thompson succeeded in avoiding trouble, but before getting rid of their guides had suffered so much loss of sleep and lack of proper food that their health was seriously threatened. They lost all trace of their erstwhile companions in the schooner, but learned in the course of time that they had got the vessel off the beach and proceeded to some other point. McManus and Thompson, upon striking the coast of Tierra del Fuego again with their guides, procured a small canoe and in it made a voyage of 125 miles by sea almost to Cape Horn, in a vain search for the treasure that Captain McLeod said existed there. Then they returned to the Straits of Magellan, and at Punta Arenas, on November 9 last took passage on the Kosmos steamer Mera for this city. Throughout their wanderings the young men kept their camera and photographic supplies, and took many views of the natives and the strange places they visited.

Bed Time

I take a pleasant herb drink, the next morning I feel bright and my complexion is better. My doctor says it acts gently on the stomach, liver and kidneys, and is a pleasant laxative. It is made of herbs, and is prepared as easily as tea. It is called Lane's medicine. All druggists sell it at 25c and 50 cents. Lane's Family Medicines move the bowels each day. Tough Lot of Boys.

An important feature of the present session of the circuit court occurred Monday afternoon when Bert Bice, charged jointly with his younger brother, Harvey, on two separate indictments of horse stealing, entered a plea of guilty. He was sentenced this morning by Judge Hamilton to six years' imprisonment in the penitentiary. Only last August did Bert Bice complete a two-year term in the penitentiary for a crime exactly similar to that for which he is now to serve three times as long. Harvey Bice was arraigned at the same time as his brother, and plead not guilty. This morning he withdrew the plea and entered another of guilty. He will be sentenced tomorrow at 10 o'clock. Harvey was an inmate of the state reform school at the time Bert was released from the state prison. Harvey was soon after induced by his older brother to desert the school, and together they made their way to their home in Douglas county, trading horses, which they stole. Harvey's arrest at his home near Riddle and Bert's subsequent capture by a storekeeper at Merlin, Josephine county, are familiar to our readers. Two younger Bice boys of the same family have also been inmates of the state reform school for some time past.—Roseburg Review.

Juicy for the Scott Family.

Ed. Democrat: Trouble is brewing over the Lewis and Clark exposition matter. The corporation has refused to recognize those prominent in its organization. The national editorial association has been ignored, likewise the Oregon Press Association, and only Republicans are given positions. Daniel McAllen, the original promoter; H. E. Dosh, the best exposition man in the United States; J. M. Long, who was responsible for putting H. W. Corbett's name at the head, and Edyth Tozier Wethered, the best known exposition woman on the continent, have never been recognized. The round about way of letting the official paper to a Tillamook real estate man, in order to give another position to a member of the Scott family, arouses the ire of those who have been pioneers in the exposition work.—Albany Democrat.

To Settle Estate.

A petition was filed this morning in the probate court for the admission to probate of the estate of Polly A. Ross, who died in this county January 15th, last. She left an estate valued at $4000, the heirs of which are Mrs. Julia Slaughter, a daughter, residing at Woodburn, and Orval and Merle

Dr. Miles' Heart Cure and Nerve Cured Me.

"I send you my testimonial hoping it will influence someone to use your remedies for the relief and cure of the diseases for which they are recommended. I am constantly recommending them in this locality—often indirectly to strangers. The worst case of nervous prostration I ever saw or rather heard of was that of a young man, a stranger who sent me word thanking me for the information and stating that to his certain knowledge, Dr. Miles' Nerve and Heart Cure had saved his life. As to my own case I was afflicted with heart trouble and nervousness due to the excessive use of tobacco which I had used from boyhood. A man whom your medicine had cured of tobacco heart met me on the street in Bakersfield one day when my feet were so badly swollen I could scarcely walk and I was suffering constantly from smothering spells, choking sensation, pain and oppression around the heart. He told me to use Dr. Miles' Heart Cure and Nerve. I bought three bottles of each and when they were gone the aggravating symptoms had disappeared, but to make a sure thing of it I bought two more bottles of Nerve and am today perfectly well. I have used the Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills and consider all of Dr. Miles' medicines the very best of household remedies and wish that every sufferer might learn of their value."—J. M.
