

Money Saved Right Here

All Eyes This Way

TIMES UP and every article in Men's, Boys' and Children's Clothing, Hats and Haberdashery must now leave our store P. D. Q.

We're going to shivel the prices on piles of reasonable merchandise so that every dollar bill will appear to be of twice its ordinary value. The sale opens with a great bargain broadside all along the line. Come and enjoy mixing with the buying throngs and save BIG, HARD, ROUND DOLLARS.

THE REASON

The reason for this sale is that we don't propose to carry over our stock until another season. We can use the money and want it.

WALKING IS OUT OF DATE.

A correspondent of The Journal asks what is the proper way to walk; what gait is best, whether one should come down on the heels, etc.

If he wants to know our honest opinion of walking, we consider it is out of date.

Of course, a millionaire, or an idle person might walk, but no one who has anything to do—we will say no man—should walk if he can ride.

Get on the street cars, get onto a bicycle, get into a buggy with a fast horse, get an automobile, but don't walk unless you have to.

No one having any business in Portland or New York these days would think of walking there on his feet or on his hands. Life is too short.

On the same principle it is too short for any other distance.

The X-Ray man never walks when circumstances permit him to run.

People ordinarily only run to get away from something they are afraid of, but in reality they should go just as fast toward something or some place they wish to reach.

Walking is out of date for men with something to do.

Of course, messenger boys and telegraph office boys still walk.

YOUR PORTRAIT WHILE YOU WAIT.

An enterprising Salem dry goods house has adopted a clever advertising medium—your crayon portrait while you wait—and do a little shopping.

An artist of considerable skill draws your portrait and completes a very good likeness of yourself or your wife or anyone while you are looking around.

The Stockton store window has crowds of people admiring the artist at his work—and admiring the portraits of prominent citizens.

There are portraits of the mayor and the governor—the stern face of the city police judge—and the severe-looking chief-of-police—keeping the peace between the editors of the morning and evening papers.

SEVENTH WARD MEETING.

The two aldermen from that ward and a number of prominent citizens have united in a call for a street improvement meeting for Saturday night of this week, at the Lincoln school house.

The purpose is to see if anything can be done to promote better streets, sidewalks and crosswalks. No one seems to know under what laws the people of the new wards are acting, or what can be done.

H. B. Thielson, president of the county good roads league, and several gentlemen from Liberty are to be present, and make address on the good roads movement. There should to six cents per bushel. Under these circumstances the city council will be foolish to make any presents to Mr. Wilcox.

Ludicrous Tongue Slips.

(Chicago Inter Ocean.)

Players are as much a part of the well regulated human family in which accidents are bound to occur as anyone else, and the frequent and oftentimes ludicrous slips in dialogue during the presentation of a play are proof of the fact.

It is told of an amateur in a Western city, playing a part in a temperance drama, that he had the line: "And I promise never to drink another drop." But the young man, becoming a bit flustered, declared with confidence and distinctness: "And I promise never to drop another drink."

Blanche Weaver, an actress in the company supporting Mr. Southern in "The Lady of Lyons," on one occasion had the line which runs: "No divorce can separate a mother from her son." But what Miss Weaver said was, "No divorce can separate a Southern from his son." Mr. Southern was himself on the stage in that scene. He saw the topsy-turvy sentence coming—something intuitive warned him of it—and he hastened to cover up the lines with his next speech. But he was not quick enough to conceal the blunder from the people in the foremost rows, and a laugh went up that interrupted the action of the play and caused wonder in the rear of the house, where the error had not been detected. Miss Weaver was so overcome with mortification that when the curtain went down she wept and would not be comforted.

About the Newest and Best Books and Magazines

Frank Leslie's popular monthly for February has a tremendous story of the Helms fight for the control of the Amalgamated Copper company of Montana. There is also an interesting paper on "Does it pay to be a Doctor?"

Willis Scott Dunnway has been appointed editor of the official monthly bulletin of the Lewis and Clark Fair. The first number is a fine quarto and its literary merit is of a high standard. As Mr. Dunnway is well able to make it.

The House Beautiful from the press of Herbert S. Stone, 11 Eldridge Court, Chicago, has scores of illustrations on decorations and architecture of the most modern as well as the ancient, and generous space for all the arts and crafts. We do not know of a magazine of more general importance to women and to men as well if they love a beautiful home.

The Building of the West.

Mr. Ripley Hitchcock's history of the building of the West, which Ginn & Co., now announce for immediate publication, appears to be unusually broad and comprehensive in its treatment of Western history. Mr. Roosevelt's "Winning of the West" dealt with the migration across the Alleghenias and the opening of the country east of the Mississippi. The story told in Mr. Hitchcock's history, which has for its full title "The Louisiana Purchase and the Exploration, Early History and Building of the West." The first part gives a concise history of the Louisiana Purchase, beginning with an account of the Spanish and French explorations, and ending with the transfer to the United States. The second part affords a narrative summary of the Lewis and Clark Expeditions. The third part gives a history of the explorations of the West with accounts of the experiences of Pike, Wyeth, Hunt, Ashley, Colton, Bonneville, Fremont, Prince Maximilian, and others. There is also a brief history of the great trails and water routes. The fourth part describes the development of the mining, the cattle industry, the pony express, railroad building, and other features of that period. There is also a sketch of the influence of the steamboat on the struggle for "Free Soil," the relation of the Louisiana Purchase to the civil war, and other historical features; on the economic side, the geographical consequence of the Louisiana Purchase and the importance of its production of wheat and corn and its mineral wealth are indicated. An elaborate appendix gives a statistical summary of the Louisiana Purchase at present, arranged by states. The history contains numerous illustrations and maps.

X-RADIUMS

Tacoma has Happy Hooligan to-night, and yet Tacoma has never done anything to deserve it.

"Majah" Chas. McCawley is said to be the best dancer in the army. He has recently been appointed aide to Col. Symons and will superintend the social functions in the White House. He stands a good show with his super abundant qualifications of following in Woods footsteps.

If Mrs. King, of Ballard, really wants to join the Elks, and the lodge consents, Salem lodge will send a large delegation—in honor of the occasion.

May it not be possible that instead of watching the Elks it was that Oriental degree that so wrought upon that Ballard lady's fancy, that she watched it eight months steady.

The samples of Oregonians sent East are not a fair sample of the Oregon product.

Commissioner-General McIsaac, of the Lewis and Clark exposition, is lobbying the Kentucky legislature for a $10,000 appropriation. He is the same blatant person who so verbosely boasted of the appropriation secured by him from Washington—that failed to materialize.

Now that it is definitely decided that the editor of the Statesman will not tell the ladies where he stands on woman suffrage, let us drop the matter. It really does not matter so much after all.

There is nothing to prevent any city subscriber paying a dollar or two, or five or six dollars, on subscription and getting a guess on the $150 diamond for each dollar paid.

Commandant Elder running the Soldiers' Home without a single row or explosion for a year is remarkable. Think of the days that are past and gone, when John P. Robertson and Capt. Ormsby held frequent sessions of the board, and decorated the records with wrangles over their sleeping car fares and broken crockery.

Of course men can vote, and are considered the stronger sex, and men are not exactly vain, and, by their appearance, many of them never, never consult a mirror. But after all, what is more pleasant to the average man than to stand before a show window and gaze at a fine, large picture of himself.

Suppositions of Ten Years Ago.

A reader of The Journal who observes matters of national importance quite closely, hands us this clipping from the Youth's Companion of 1894—ten years ago:

The great nations of Europe, it is said, should a great war break out, could place ten millions soldiers in the field in a very short time. These combined armies, almost equal in number to the entire voting population of the United States, would all be armed with the latest invented weapons, which have been manufactured by millions and at enormous cost.

Their navies are correspondingly large. Great Britain, France, Italy and Germany have afloat more than thirteen hundred vessels. Great Britain launched in the single year 1892 more battleships than there are in the whole American navy, every one of them larger than our largest.

The entire army of the United States consists of but twenty-five thousand men; all the vessels of its navy number little more than half those of Spain; and eleven thousand sailors, marines and officers constitute the strength of our navy.

In a broad sense this is as it should be. We are not involved in foreign quarrels nor in wrangles for more territory. It is our advantage that we can devote ourselves to the arts of peace and spare the people

THE REAL TEST

Of Herpicide is in Giving It a Thorough Trial.

There is only one test by which to judge of the efficiency of any article and that is by its ability to do that which it is intended to do. Many hair vigors may look nice and smell nice, but the point is—do they eradicate Dandruff and stop falling hair? No, they do not, but Herpicide does, because it goes to the root of the evil and kills the germ that attacks the papilla from whence the hair gets its life.

Letters from prominent people everywhere are daily proving that Newbro's Herpicide stands the "test of use." It is a delightful dressing, clear, pure and free from oil or grease. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich. Daniel J. Fry, Special Agent.

Ayer's Hair Vigor

This is what it does: Restores color, stops falling, makes hair grow, cures dandruff. Is not that enough?

the vast expenditures which preparation for war requires of European countries.

But the preservation of peace does not depend altogether upon the peaceable disposition of one party. Suppose we should be forced into war!

We need no army for purposes of aggression. Do we need better protection of an exposed seacoast, of our rich and populous cities?

"The great nations of Europe" have learned before this time that all the armies they could put into the field would not frighten the people of the United States very much.

One of them tried that. Spain had a hundred thousand soldiers in the West Indies and sent as many more. It didn't take the United States 90 days to send them home about their business as prisoners.

That is the way any European army would be sent home—as prisoners or as freight in metallic caskets—or the combined armies of Europe for that matter.

Ten years has changed the whole face of the world's history and the relative importance of European armies has very much dwindled. Their navies even are not as imposing as they used to be considered.

The small army with the largest reserve power of patriotism and the inexhaustible wealth and commercial and financial resources of our country makes us more than a match for the combined powers of Europe.

The lesson in the above article is the warning it should give us to not keep our navy on too limited a basis.

Can you Afford to Run the Risk

We kill and remove Cancers and Tumors without the aid of knife or other instrument.

Dr. J. F. Cook, the Botanical Doctor, cures all kinds of diseases after all other schools have failed, without the aid of knife or poison. His medicines are composed of Nature's herbs; they are gathered and selected in various parts of America and foreign countries, at great expense.

Read the Testimonial of a Prominent Salem Man: TO THE PUBLIC.

In justice to DR. J. F. COOK, and that the world may know what a great work he is doing, I wish to inform them that I have been taking treatment from him for the past 15 months, and that in that time he has removed from my alimentary canal three tumors of cancer—another cancerous growth of lesser size from off my foot, and another from off my thumb. This has all been accomplished through medicines alone, they killing the growth and spider-like roots, and Nature itself casting them off without the aid of knife or surgery. I dare not believe I could have found equal successful treatment any where in the world, and cheerfully recommend Dr. J. F. Cook, the Botanical Doctor, to all who read this testimonial.—R. J. SPENCER.

We can do as much for you, or more, if you need it. Consultation free.
