THINKS THE ACT IS VOID

In response to a request made by District Attorney Geo. M. Brown, of the second judicial district, Attorney-General Crawford last evening rendered an opinion on the question as to whether an officer of a bank could be fined for refusing to furnish the assessor with a list of depositors, as required in sections 2067 and 2068 of the code. The attorney-general holds that such a law, if properly drawn, is valid, and he cites decisions of the federal courts in support of his contention. But he holds that the Oregon statute does not give the assessor the same rights as does the law in question in the federal courts. He says:

"Our statutes confer no authority on assessors to issue compulsory process to compel witnesses to attend, but, in the light of the foregoing decision, the legislative assembly could so provide, and I have been unable to find that said decision has ever been disapproved. While the act is indefinite in many respects, it might be held good by the courts, if it had been duly enacted. The legislative assembly has, in my opinion, the power to compel the officers of any banking institution, or express company or association doing business in this state, to furnish a list of depositors to the assessor, but in the present instance I think the attempt to pass such an act failed. The title of the act is 'An act to empower assessors to assess bank deposits.' The body of the act is to compel the officers of the bank to furnish a list of its depositors, and providing a fine if they fail to do so, on the request of the assessor. The test as to whether the subject of the act is expressed in the title, as laid down in the case of Spaulding Logging Co. vs. Independence I. Co., 42 Or. 394, as stated by the court at page 398 thereof, is whether taking from the title, the subject we can find anything in the body which cannot be referred to that subject."

"The subject of the act under consideration is to authorize assessors to assess bank deposits. The body of the act requires the assessor to call upon bank officers and procure a sworn statement of the names of depositors, and to fine such officers, if they fail to furnish it. The fining of depositors. Any person reading the title would naturally conclude that the purpose of the act was to confer the power upon the several assessors of the state to assess money deposited in banks, and they would not for a moment suppose that it was intended to compel bank officials to furnish lists of depositors to assessors, or to punish them by a fine if they failed to do so at the request of the assessor."

"In my opinion, the body of the act is not germane to the title, and the act is void."

Climatic Cures.

The influence of climatic conditions in the cure of consumption is very much overdrawn. The poor patient, and the rich patient, too, can do much better at home by proper attention to food digestion, and a regular course of German Syrup. Free expectation in the morning is made certain by German Syrup, so is a good night's rest and the absence of that weakening cough and debilitating night sweat. Restless nights and the exhaustion due to coughing, the greatest danger and dread of the consumptive, can be prevented or stopped by taking German Syrup liberally and regularly. Should you be able to go to a warmer climate you will find that of the thousands of consumptives there, the few who are benefited and regain strength are those who use German Syrup. Trial bottle, 25c; regular size, 75c. At all druggists. At Dr. Stone's drug stores.

No Easy Mark.

Mark Twain has not modified his opinion of European chefs. It is said that, on leaving for his recent visit to Europe he confided to Senator Depew:

"Rather than eat those European breakfasts, do you know what I'll do? I'll nail a piece of cuttlefish bone up on the chimney, and every morning I'll hop up on the mantle and pick it with a tin bill. It will be just as filling, and much cheaper than a European breakfast."—Argonaut.
