

THE LAST SAD RITES PERFORMED

Remains of the Late Arthur C. Lawrence Laid to Rest

Impressive Funeral Services By Scottish Rite Masons on Saturday Night Burial Yesterday

The funeral of the late Arthur C. Lawrence was held yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the Baptist church, Rev. W. C. Kantner, assisted by Rev. Cliffe, officiating. The Stairwart quartet sang "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere," followed by a prayer by Dr. Kantner. Mrs. Halle Parrish-Hinges sang the beautiful song "I Had a Dream." Dr. Kantner's sermon was very impressive, and his tribute to the departed, and words of sympathy for the sorrowing ones sank deep into the hearts of the hearers. He said "Let us write his faults upon the sands, that they may be washed away by the tides, and his virtues we will write upon the tablets of love and memory, that they may be an inspiration to the loved ones left." He closed with a prayer for the bereaved family and friends who mourned for the departed one. The Stairwart quartet then sang the closing hymn, after which an opportunity was given to those who wished to view the remains.

The many floral emblems were very beautiful, and showed the great love and esteem in which he was held by all who knew him. In spite of the exceeding inclemency of the weather, the church was filled with friends and members of the various lodges of which he was a member. His body was laid to rest in the City View cemetery, where Salem lodge No. 4, A. F. & A. M. took charge at the grave, and performed the last sad rites, escorted by DeMolay Commandery No. 5, Knights Templar.

On Saturday evening the midnight funeral service of the Scottish Rite Masons was held in the Masonic hall a few minutes before 12 o'clock the curtains were drawn aside and disclosed to the large audience in the room, the remains of their departed brother, Arthur C. Lawrence, lying in state in the lodge room, around which was a guard of Knights Templar. At the stroke of 12, the lights were turned low, and the guard retired to the dias in the east of the hall, as the members of the Scottish Rite entered from the West. These were dressed in black robes, each man carrying a lighted candle. Solemnly they marched to their places in the form of a square around the coffin. The impressive service was then read followed by the plaintive "Taps." The whole service was impressive, and will long be remembered by those who witnessed it.

At the close of the service, the celebrants slowly and silently retired, the hall was relighted and the guards resumed their places by the side of their departed frater.

Will Get Increased Pension.

Captain Jesse T. Bennett, of Mohama, an aged veteran of the Civil War, who is, as the result of wounds and sickness suffered during his service in the army, an invalid, is about to have his pension increased from $12 to $30 per month. A bill to that effect was recently introduced in congress by Hon. Binger Hermann, and through his efforts the committee on invalid pensions has reported the bill favorably. This will be good news to Captain Bennett and his friends, as the old soldier is sadly in need of the help from the government.

An Administrator Named.

County Judge Scott has appointed Jacob G. Miller, administrator of the estate of Jacob Gossy, deceased, upon his filing a bond in a good and sufficient amount. The estate is valued at $5000.

FORTY-NINE JIMMY

Famous Character of the Greenhorn Crosses Over

Millionaire, Miner, Speculator, and Pauper, Lived 30 Years on Summit of Blue Mount's

(Special to the Herald.)
Canyon City, Feb. 26.—"Forty-Nine" Jimmy is dead. He was the most unique character in the mining history of California and Oregon and in its early days the most widely known. His life was stormy and uneven. His career meteoric. He knew both riches and poverty and traveled the road between them fast and often. At one time monarch of all he surveyed, at another an inmate of the almshouse, and the social lion became the social outcast. He was once the center of a gay social circle, and later the mountain hermit, whose only companion was a cat.

The name of the eccentric character was James Giffin. When a small boy he came from Ireland to New York, and in '49 to San Francisco. He struck it fast and rich in the mines and squandered his fortunes in the city. At one time he purchased a large block of city lots and when real estate soared skyward, sold the property for a large fortune. With this he bought and fitted out a schooner and took a party of gay friends on board and sailed away on a cruise among the South Sea Islands. He is said to have landed on one of these islands, taken mock possession and set up a mimic government. When he returned he was broke, and set out for the mines in Eastern Oregon. He was one of the first to arrive in the Greenhorn district and had his pick of the mining ground. He made several strikes, but always squandered the surplus. As he grew older his conditions grew worse, and only the charity of distant neighbors and Granite business men kept him alive. Alone in his small cabin, near where Greenhorn City now stands, he led the life of a recluse. The grocer, the clothier and the butcher of Granite would always instruct the deliveryman, who beat his way through the deep snow to the mining camps each month, to leave a bundle with "Forty-Nine Jimmy." His unwashed body and matted hair gave token of worse things in store, and the rough but kindly miners forcibly administered an occasional bath and haircut.

Two years ago the county authorities were notified of the old man's pitiable condition, and the Sheriff's Deputies were sent to bring him down from the mountains. He fought and begged to be allowed to remain with his mines, but he was, in spite of his protestations, placed in the poorhouse.

About a year ago some of his mining property was purchased by the late Tom McEwin and the old man was released from the county's care. He was well pleased to stay, however, and the county court appointed the keeper his guardian and his last days were peacefully passed in comparative independence. All his obligations so far as known are paid, and a balance of $400 remains to his credit. The body of the old pioneer was laid to rest in the Canyon City Cemetery.

Evangelist Services.

The evangelistic services at the First Christian church will be continued through this week, at least, perhaps longer, according to the interest manifested. Because of the stormy weather the audiences last week were not quite so large as in the preceding weeks, at which Dr. Errett expressed his surprise, saying he supposed the more it rained, the more the people would get out, but they seemed to go back on their well-known name, "Webfoot." He also remarked that they had never really seen it rain, but he had—when it came down in torrents and bucketsful and in all directions, and then there was some excuse for remaining at home. But in spite of the inclemency of the weather and the slightly reduced audiences, the interest has not waned, and several have made the good confession. Some of the candidates will receive the ordinance of baptism at tonight's service. The subject of yesterday's sermon were "Some of the Evidences of Christianity" and "The Power of the Gospel—God's Dynamite."
Tonight Mr. Errett's subject will be: "Being Made Over," which all are cordially invited to come and hear.

CHEMAWA WILL BE BENEFITED

The Indian School Remembered By Hon. Binger Hermann

Appropriations Were Made for Maintenance and Improvement of School by Congress

The coming year will see some more valuable and important improvements made at the Chemawa Indian School, according to the appropriations being made by congress for that institution. The improvements include several new buildings, and provision is made for their prompt erection.

A copy of the for the appropriations for the current and contingent expenses of the Indian department, as reported to the lower house of congress by the Indian affairs committee, a few days ago, has been received in this city, and portions of it are of considerable interest here. Among the provisions are those for the Indian schools of this state, and of especial interest are the provisions made by Hon. Binger Hermann for the Chemawa Indian School. The total amount appropriated for Chemawa, for the year ending June 30, 1905, is $133,200. This is in excess of the usual appropriations, and shows that the school has a warm friend at court. Among the provisions made in the appropriation are for the support of 600 pupils, $100,200; for new hospital, $15,000; for new employes' building, $500, in addition to the amounts appropriated for these same purposes, and not entirely disbursed. This last innocent provision saves the unexpended portions of the appropriation for the current year to the school, and they will be added to the new appropriations, and not revert back to the treasury.

The same bill appropriates $130,900 for the support and education of 700 Indian pupils at the Phoenix, Arizona, Indian school, and for repairs and improvements at that institution.

The appropriation for the support and education of 600 pupils at Chemawa is 50 more than last year, which was for 550. A letter received from Mr. Hermann also states that he has commenced the work of securing for the school another appropriation of $15,000, for a new assembly hall or auditorium with a seating capacity of 1000. Mr. Hermann expresses the belief that he will secure the appropriation without trouble, although many of the congressmen already think that Chemawa has received enough for this year. However, Mr. Hermann is at work for the appropriation, and, with the assistance of some of the Pacific coast delegations, and through his untiring energy, he will land the appropriation and thus provide a third new building to be erected at Chemawa during the coming year.

The House Furnishing Company

The Strictly Straight Store.

There should be reason and plausibility in all things. We are frequently asked why we keep increasing our stock, and how we expect to make such a large investment pay. Our answer is that we have faith in Salem and her people, to appreciate in full the best efforts that any business firm can put forth. Confidence is the foundation upon which we are building. We have confidence in the people with whom we seek to do business, and we are ever ready to conduct ourselves in such a way that confidence may be safely placed in us.

If there be any one department about our institution which suggests confidence in business during 1904, it is our carpet and rug showing. Nothing to equal it has ever before been attempted in Salem. We show all the cheaper grades handled by other houses, and, in addition, high quality carpets and rugs, such as strangers would hardly expect to find in a city like Salem. Having the goods, and the prices being right, we should be able to carpet your floors. To test prices please bring a Portland list with you.

Mattings

Owing to the unpleasantness between Japan and Russia, there is great probability that Japanese mattings will advance in price. Our stock is very complete, embracing many novelties such as appeals to those looking for things out of the ordinary in cheap floor coverings.

The Journal Diamond Guessing Contest Is Nearing the End

Several parties have made their guesses by drawings, three figures from a set just as the unknown number was drawn, and thus they hope to have their conclusions similar to the fortunate one, but when it is realized what a multitude of numbers are possible from such combinations even this process cannot insure success. The plain fact is that every guesser is on absolutely the same ground, for there can be no preferred class and no favored few. The absolute equality and fairness of the proposition is what pleases every participant in the contest.

As a result of the guessing contest subscriptions are coming to The Journal from many unexpected sources. Many persons in and about Salem, as well as the various towns of the county, are ordering, renewing and extending their subscriptions. All realize that they will more than get their money's worth, besides a free guess on the elegant diamond ring.

One of the most memorable guessing contests in the history of this country was that conducted by the Frank Leslie publishing house during the last Cleveland campaign in 1892. They offered a series of prizes to the persons who could guess the nearest to the winning candidate, and a young gentleman of Marion county had the honor of carrying off the $200 prize. He was none other than Allen Forward in his father's name, the late Blair Forward, the young man made the guess. He estimated Cleveland's plurality at 375,000 and his father received a check for the cash after the returns had been canvassed. Only one other person guessed anywhere near that figure, but he was not near enough to win the prize. Not nearly so much interest was taken in that contest in Salem as in the one now being conducted by The Journal for the $150 diamond ring, and when the news came of the winner being a Marion county boy, it was gratifying to all his friends. If you do not win The Journal diamond yourself, some of your friends may, and that will be next to getting it in your own family.
