ROOSEVELT AT GETTYSBURG

Delivers the Memorial Day Address at the Great Battlefield—Observances of the Day at Other Places—All Work Suspended at Salem and Large Attendance at Exercises

Gettysburg, May 30.—The President arrived at 8:30 this morning, after a leisurely run from Washington. He occupied the private car "Courier," with Roosevelt, Miss Ethel Roosevelt, Mrs. Caro, Secretary Loeb and Dr. Wiley. Breakfast was served at Pennsar, where most of the night was spent. To the little crowd that gathered, just before leaving, the President spoke from the rear platform, expressing the pleasure of the meeting. The train stopped at Reynolds avenue, where the party entered carriages, and were driven over the battlefield.

Luncheon was served at the Eagle Hotel, and the exercises of the day were entered upon:

The President's Address.
"The Civil War was a great war for righteousness; a war waged for the noblest ideals, but waged also in a thoroughgoing, practical fashion. It was one of the few wars which mean, in their successful outcome, a lift toward better things for the nations of mankind. Some wars have meant the triumph of order over anarchy and licentiousness masquerading as liberty; some wars have meant the triumph of liberty over tyranny masquerading as order; but this war of ours meant the triumph of both liberty and order, the triumph of orderly liberty, the bestowal of civil rights upon the freed slaves, and at the same time the stern insistence on the supremacy of the national law throughout the length and breadth of the land. Moreover, this was one of the rare contests in which it was to the immeasurable interest of the vanquished that they should lose, while at the same time the victors acquired the precious privilege of transmitting to those who come after them, as a heritage of honor forever, not only the memory of their own valiant deeds, but the memory of the deeds of those who, no less valiantly and with equal sincerity of purpose, fought against the stars in their courses. The war left up all as fellow-countrymen, as brothers, the right to rejoice that the Union has been restored in indestructible shape in a country where slavery no longer mocks the boast of freedom, and also the right to rejoice with exultant pride in the courage, self sacrifice, and the devotion, alike of the men who wore the blue and the men who wore the gray.

"National greatness is of slow growth. It can not be forced and yet be stable and enduring; for it is based fundamentally upon national character, and national character is stamped deep in a people by the lives of many generations. The men who went into the army had to submit to discipline, had to submit to restraint through the government of the leaders they had chosen, as the price of winning. So we, the people, can preserve our liberty and our greatness in time of peace only by ourselves exercising the virtues of honesty, of self-restraint, and of fair dealing between man and man. In all the ages of the past men have seen countries lose their liberty, because their people could not restrain themselves, and therefore forfeited the right to what they were unable to use with wisdom.
"It was because you men of the civil war both knew how to use liberty temperately and how to defend it at need that we and our children and our children's children shall hold you in honor forever.

"Today, all over this land our people meet to pay reverent homage to the dead who died that the nation might live; and we pay homage also to their comrades who are still with us.

"All are at one now, the sons of those who wore the blue and the sons of those who wore the gray, and all can unite in paying respect to the memory of those who fell, each of them giving his life for his duty as he saw it; and all should be at one in learning from the deaths of these men how to live usefully while the times call for the performance of the countless necessary duties of everyday life, and how to hold ourselves ready to die nobly should the nation ever again demand of their sons the ultimate proof of loyalty."

The Day at Washington.

Washington, May 30.—Sullen skies greeted Memorial Day at Arlington cemetery, the principal local point for a majority of those who observed the day. Preceding the exercises there was a parade. The absence of the President, who is at Gettysburg, acted to deter the usual number of visitors.

The Day at Salem.

The members of the G. A. R., W. R. C. and the veterans of all the wars met this afternoon at the G. A. R. headquarters at 1 o'clock.

The procession was formed on Commercial street in the following order: Salem Military Band, Company M., Third Regiment, O. N. G.; Sedgwick Post, G. A. R. and veterans, Woman's Relief Corps, other organizations and citizens.

The procession (under the direction of Field Marshal Daniel Webster) started at 1:30 marching east on State street to Liberty, north on Liberty to Center, then west to the steel bridge, thence back to Commercial, thence South on Commercial to Ferry, where the procession disbanded and the members of the G. A. R. and W. R. C. took cars that were provided for them to the cemetery, where the ritualistic services were held. A firing squad of the militia were present and after the exercises fired volleys over the graves of the veterans. The cemetery was a mass of beauty, covered with millions of flowers. The cars were loaded with people bearing flow-

RUSSIANS HANG THEIR ADMIRAL FOR TREASON

Plan to Trap the Army of the Mikado When It Advances on Port Arthur

Kuropatkin Will Make An Attack in the Rear When Japs Assault the City

Berlin, May 30.—The Kleins Journal today prints a report that Rear-Admiral Uchtomsky was hanged at Port Arthur for treason.

Will Wait Under Walls.

St. Petersburg, March 30.—It is announced General Stessel will await the Japanese assault under the Port Arthur walls, while Kuropatkin attacks in the rear.

Russians Plan a Trap.

London, May 30.—Reuter's agency reports from New Chwang says that the Russians have planned to trap the Japanese army now marching on Port Arthur.

St. Petersburg, May 30.—General Kuropatkin reports a Japanese force marching from Kwadianslang toward Salmades, in Eastern Manchuria.

The Nove Vremya prints a report from Port Said that a number of Japanese torpedo boats have arrived in the Red Sea.

Japs Score More Victories.

Tokio, May 30.—General Kuroki reports that the Japanese routed 2000 Russian cavalry near Yang Ching, 20 miles northwest of Kuantien. The Japanese afterward occupied Yang Ching.

Berlin, May 30.—The Tageblatt reports a German military attache has been dispatched to the Russian Manchurian headquarters with a long autograph letter from the Kaiser to Kuropatkin.

Waterspout in Switzerland.

Geneva, May 30.—A waterspout struck Leavourins, in the mountains, this morning, and did damage amounting to 2,000,000 francs. A huge wall of water rushed down the mountain side, tearing houses from the foundations and destroying crops in the neighborhood.

Dalny Evacuated.

Chefco, May 29.—Dalny has practically been evacuated according to the steamer Sikh and Russian refugees arriving here today by junk. All valuables, ammunition and most of the troops have been taken to Port Arthur. The only civilians remaining are the electrical engineers in charge of the mines laid in the harbor, and also those set to destroy docks and piers.

One large Russian warship, probably the armored cruiser Bayan, and three torpedo boats reached Tallenwan Bay on Thursday last, the 24th inst, from Port Arthur, and it was doubtless this vessel which attacked the Japanese left wing during the battle at Kinchou on the 26th instant. The junk just arrived here, on their way down, passed 14 Japanese war vessels nine miles outside of Dalny, so that Bayan will likely be captured.

The United States gunboat Frolic, now here, will go to Niu Chwang, in case that town is evacuated by the Russians.
