Tired. That one word tells the whole story. No rest. No comfort. All tired out. Fortunately, physicians know about Ayer's Sarsaparilla. They prescribe it for exhaustion, anemia.

STRAW BERRY SEASON

Salem Canning Company Have Nearly Two Hundred Hands Employed

The Salem Canning Company opened their up-to-date canning plant Thursday for the strawberry season. The company have made a radical change from last year as to buying. All of their berries were contracted for in advance, thus they will not all come in at one time, and it will enable the cannery to run steadily throughout the season, and give steady employment to about 200 hands. Although the cannery has not been running three days the organization is nearly perfect, and everything is running as smoothly as clockwork. The amount of fruit to be handled this year greatly exceeds last, and if things go through all right a great many improvements are to be made in the plant. One new warehouse has already been built, and more are to follow.

About 200,000 pounds of berries at 3 1/2 cents per pound have been contracted for already, and, as they are handling about 12,000 pounds per day, the heaviest run will be off in about 10 days, although strawberries will be handled more or less for two weeks. After the strawberry season other fruits will be canned, and after that corn. There will be, probably, a steady run until the last of October.

The strawberries this year are much better than they have been for years, and about 7200 cans are put up daily. Wilsons and Clark Seedlings are the only kind used, and they are of fine size and quality.

It is an interesting sight to watch the process which the berries pass through, after they leave the wagon in which they are brought to the cannery. First they go to a long table, where girls separate the berries from the hulls. They are then sorted and graded and sent to the filling tables, where they are weighed into the cans, the same weight going into each can. They are then covered with syrup and sent to the capper, where a cap is put on the can, and only a small hole is left in the cap, from which the air is exhausted. They are then soldered up and tested for leaks in a vat of hot water, and then are put into vats of boiling water and cooked.

Fines Were Paid.

J. P. Rogers paid his fines last evening for keeping his four saloons open on Sunday. He objected to being taxed costs in each case, and when the court assessed the fines he refused to pay, and went to the county jail under commitment. When he arrived there he handed over the money in each case, less the costs and $2 for a day's servitude. He was not in jail in the strict sense of the word, but sufficiently, however, to save several dollars. Mr. Rogers contended that the four arrests were all made at one time, and that he did not think it was fair to be charged for consecutive service on each case.

FARM HOUSE BURNED

Resident of Dick Klein Near Pratum Destroyed--Neighbors Give Aid

The farm house of Dick Klein, who lives two miles from Pratum, was destroyed by fire last evening, and the building and contents were a total loss. M. Klein was shingling his barn when the fire started, and was unable to save a thing from the building. The home was recently built, and, as Mr. Klein is a poor man, struggling to pay for his little place, the neighbors started a fund to build him a new house, and this morning a subscription paper was circulated in Salem for contributions to assist in buying the necessary material. He has a wife and seven children, and has the sympathy of all in his loss. Quite a snug amount is already pledged, and enough will be raised to build the house.

Postmaster Minto.

John W. Minto, who yesterday was appointed postmaster of Portland, is a product of Marion county, of the vintage of 1848. He was educated at Willamette University, after which he engaged in stockraising and farming. Between 1876 and 1879 he followed the sheep business in Eastern Oregon, but the hard winter of 1878, which destroyed 5000 of his herd, drove him back to Salem, where he went into the sand and brick business. For several years he was chief of police at Salem, and from 1884 to 1888 was sheriff of Marion county. After completing his term as sheriff he moved to Portland, where he busied himself in real estate, and later worked for the firm of Staver & Walker. From 1891 to 1893 he served in the custom house as weigher and gauger. In 1894, he was defeated on the Republican ticket for sheriff of Multnomah county, but was appointed chief of police, a position which he held for three years. He then was employed by the O. R. & N. until November, 1899, when he became deputy collector of internal revenue.

SALEM SOCIAL EVENTS

Wagoner-Allin Nuptials.

A very pretty home wedding was solemnized Wednesday, June 8th at the residence of the brides parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Wagoner, in Independence, when their daughter, Florence Inez, became the wife of Dr. William R. Allin, of Independence, Rev. J. A. Brown, of the Christian church of Monmouth, officiating.

The Wagoner home was beautifully decorated. The color scheme in all the rooms was red, and was carried out very charmingly in roses and quantities of green foliage. The ceremony took place at 10:30 a. m. in the presence of only the immediate relatives.

The bride wore a handsome gown of Champagne etamine over silk, and carried a shower bouquet of white carnations. She was unattended.

After the congratulations, a dainty wedding luncheon was served.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Wagoner, of Independence, and is a handsome and accomplished young lady, and is a favorite with her many friends in Independence and in this city.
