Preferring peace but not afraid of war; faithful to volunteer at the sign of national peril; a leader in civil life and yet so quick to comprehend the arts of war that he grew almost in a day to meet the high expectations of command. There is nothing which so tests a man as great and unexpected danger. He may pass his life amid ordinary scenes and what he is or does but few will ever know. But when the crash comes or the flames break out, a moment's time will single out the hero in the crowd.

contentment and repose may still be on the deadly circuit and tomorrow writhing in the toils of war. This is the time when great figures must be kept in front. If the pressure is great the material to resist it must be granite and iron. Whether we wish it or not, America is abroad in this world. Her interests are in every street, her name is on every tongue. Those interests so sacred and stupendous should be trusted only to the care of those whose power, skill and courage have been tested and approved. And in the man whom you will choose the highest sense of every nation in

SPEAKER JOSEPH G. CANNON.

A flash of lightning in the night will reveal what years of daylight have not discovered to the eye. And so the flash of the Spanish war revealed that lofty courage and devotion which the American heart loves and which you have met again to decorate and recognize. His qualities do not need to be retold, for no man in that exalted place since Lincoln has been better known in every household in the land. He is not conservative, if conservatism means waiting till it is too late. He is not wise, if wisdom is to count a thing a hundred times when once will do. There is no regret so keen, in man or country, as that which follows an opportunity unembraced. Fortune soars with high and rapid wing, and whoever brings it down must shoot with accuracy and speed. Only the man with steady eye and nerve and the courage to pull the trigger brings the largest opportunities to the ground. He does not always listen while all the sages speak, but every day at nightfall beholds some record which if not complete has been at least pursued with conscience and intrepid desolation. He is no slender flower swaying in the wind, but that heroic fibre which is best nurtured by the mountains and the snow. He spends little time in review, for that he knows can be done by the schools. A statesman grappling with the living problems of the hour he gropes but little in the past. He believes in going ahead. He believes that in shaping the destinies of this great republic, hope is a higher impulse than regret. He believes that preparation for future triumphs is a more important duty than an inventory of the past mistakes. A profound student of history he is today the greatest history maker in the world. With the instincts of the scholar, he is yet forced from the scholar's pursuits by those superb qualities which fit him to the last degree for those great world currents now rushing past with larger volume and more portentous aspect than for many years before. The fate of nations is still decided by their wars. You may talk of orderly tribunals and learned referees; you may sing in your schools the gentle praises of the quiet life; you may strike from your books the last note of every martial anthem, and yet out in the smoke and thunder will always be the tramp of horses and the silent, rigid, upturned face. Men may prophesy and women pray, but peace will come here to abide forever on this earth only when the dreams of childhood are the accepted charts to guide the destinies of men. Events are numberless and mighty, and no man can tell which wire runs around the world. The nation basking today in the quiet of the world beholds a man who typifies as no other living American does, the spirit and the purpose of the twentieth century. He does not claim to be the Solomon of his time. There are many things he may not know, but this is sure, that above all things else he stands for progress, courage and fair play, which are the synonyms of the American name.

There are times when great fitness is hardly less than destiny, when the elements so come together that they select the agent they will use. Events sometimes select the strongest man, as lightning goes down the highest rod. And so it is with those events which for many months with unerring sight have led you to a single name which I am chosen only to pronounce: Gentlemen of the United States the highest living type of the youth, the vigor and the promise of a great country and a great age.

The Ewald Fruit Farms

PERMIT US TO CALL YOUR ATTENTION TO OUR LATEST IN FRUIT FARMS

We have secured the well-known EWALD FARM, which lies less than TWO MILES SOUTH OF SALEM, and will cut it up into SMALL TRACTS suitable for fruit growing and farms of small acreage.

This big Ewald farm consists, at the present time, of 550 acres and will cut up into about ONE HUNDRED small farms of 5 acres and upwards.

Two hundred acres are heavily timbered with good second-growth fir.

About 330 acres are improved, unimproved and cultivated, and comprises some of the best agricultural land in this county.

The balance, some 20 acres, form a valuable rock quarry, which is available for private parties, contractors, etc., desiring stone and rock for any purpose.

There are several SPRINGS on the farm of the finest water.

There is a story-and-a-half house, barn, outbuildings, etc., with fruit trees, which will be sold along with one of the small tracts.

About one-half of this 550-acre farm lies west of the Liberty road, and the other half east of the Liberty and south of the Jefferson roads, and forms the boundary lines between the two roads, beginning at the forks on South Commercial street.

With the NEXT FEW DAYS we shall have a large corps of civil engineers in the field, which will rapidly survey and plat out this farm, carefully cutting up these smaller tracts to the best advantage for the purchaser. As soon as this work is done the streets and highways dedicated to the public and the tracts all plainly marked, we will be ready for the big sale.

We shall, later on in the week, set a day for this big opening, and announce it in plenty of time so that all may avail themselves of the opportunity of buying some of this land at their own terms. Remember, these tracts are in great demand and they will go rapidly. $5 a month, or its equivalent, without interest, buys any of the tracts.

DON'T FORGET the opportunity of buying land just outside the CITY LIMITS does not come often at $5 a month.

Frank W. Waters, Manager

Theodore Roosevelt, of New York.

Senator Beveridge Seconds.

Senator Beveridge said:

“Gentlemen of the Convention: One difference between the opposition and ourselves is this: They select their candidate for the people, and the people select our candidate for us.”

“This was true four years ago when we accepted the people's judgment and named William McKinley, whose perfect mingling of mind and heart, of wisdom and of tenderness, won the trust and love of the nation then and makes almost holy his memory now. His power was in the people's favor, his shrine is in the people's hearts.”

“It is true today when we again accept the people's judgment and name Theodore Roosevelt, whose sympathies are as wide as the republic, whose courage, honesty and vision meet all emergencies, and the sum of whose qualities make him the type of twentieth century Americanism. And the twentieth century American is nothing more than the man of '76 facing a new day with the old faith.”

“Theodore Roosevelt, like William McKinley, is the nominee of the American people. So were Washington and Jefferson in the early times; so was Andrew Jackson when he said ‘The Union: It must be preserved,’ so was Abraham Lincoln when the republic saved, he bade us ‘bind up the nation's wounds,’ and Grant when, from victory's very summit his lofty words, ‘let us have peace’ voiced the spirit of the hour and the people's prayer. When nominated by parties, each of these great presidents was, at the periods named, already chosen by the public judgment. And so today, the Republican party, whose strength is in its obedience to the will of the American people, merely executes again the decree which comes to it from the American home in naming Theodore Roosevelt as our candidate.”

“The people's thought is his thought; American ideals, his ideals. This is his only chart of statesmanship—and no other is safe. For the truest guide an American president can have is the collective intelligence and massed morality of the American people. And this ancient rule of the fathers is the rule of our leaders now.”

“Theodore Roosevelt is a leader who leads; because he carries out the settled purposes of the people. Our president's plans, when achieved are always found to be merely the nation's will accomplished. And that is why the people will elect him.”

“They will elect him because they know that if he is president we will get to work and keep at work on the canal. After decades of delay when the people want a thing done, they want it done.”

“They know that while he is president the flag will ‘stay put,’ and no American advantage in the Pacific or the world be surrendered, Americans never retreat.”

“While he is president no wrongdoer in the service of the government will go unwhipped of justice. Americans demand honesty and honor, vigilance and fearlessness.”

“While he is president, readjustment of tariff schedules will be made only in harmony with the principles of protection. Americans have memories.”

“While he is president peace with every nation will be preserved at any cost, excepting only the sacrifice of American rights; and the vigor with which he maintains these will be itself a guarantee of peace.”

“The American people will elect him because, in a word, they know that he does things the people want done; does things, not merely discusses them—does things only after discussing them—but does things; and does only those things the people would have him do. This is characteristically American; for wherever he is, the American is he who achieves.”

“On every question all men know where he stands. Americans, frank themselves, demand frankness in their servants. Uncertainty is the death of business. The people can always get along if they know where they are and whither they are going.”

“His past is his proof. Every great measure if his administration was so wise that, enthusiastically sustained by his own party it won votes even from the opposition.”

“Do you name Cuban reciprocity? The opposition resisted and then opposition votes helped to ratify it.”

“Do you name corporate legislation? The opposition resisted and then opposition votes helped to enact it.”

“Do you name the canal—that largest work of centuries, the eternal wedding of oceans shrinking the circumference of the globe, making distant people neighbors, advancing forever civilization all around the world? This historic undertaking in the interest of all the race, planned by American statesman ship, to be wrought by American hands, to stand through the ages protected by the American flag; this vast achievement which will endure when our day shall have become ancient, and which alone is enough to make the name of Theodore Roosevelt illustrious through all time—this fulfillment of the Republic's dream accomplished by Republican effort, finally received votes even from an opposition that had tried to thwart it.”

“Of what measure of Theodore Roosevelt's administration does the opposition dare even to propose the repeal? And when has the record of any President won greater approval? And so the people trust him as a statesman. Better than that, they love him as a man. He wins admiration in vain who wins not affection also. In the American home—that temple of happiness and virtue where dwell the wives and mothers of the Republic, cherishing the beautiful life and guarding the morality of the nation—in the American home the name of Theodore Roosevelt is not only honored but beloved. And that is a greater triumph than the victory of battlefields, greater credit than successful statesmanship, greater honor than the presidency itself would be without it. Life holds no reward so noble as the confidence and love of the American people.”

“The American people! The mightiest force for good the ages have evolved. They began as children of liberty. They believed in God and His providence. They took the truth and justice and tolerance as their eternal ideals and marched fearlessly forward. Wildernesses stretched before them—they subdued them. Mountains rose—they crossed them. Deserts obstructed—they passed them. Their faith failed them not and a continent was theirs. From ocean to ocean cities rose, fields blossomed, railroads ran; but everywhere church and school were permanent proof that the principles of their origin were the life of their maturity.”

“American methods changed, but American character remained the same. They outlived the stage coach, but not the Bible. They advanced but forgot not their fathers. They
