

OTTO FLOTO SHOW

Neat Parade This Morning
Followed by Two Performances

The Floto shows arrived this morning as advertised. Needless to state all the small boys in town were on hand at 6:30 to see them unload. Hardly had the train stopped when the men in charge of the different departments went to hustling. First the big wagons began to roll down the runs and were drawn by beautiful big Percherons, some dapple-gray, some coal black and some bay, all seeming to know the responsibility of their position, for each tried to outdo his fellows, hauling the wagons and dens to the lot.

Then the crowd that always gathers to watch proceedings was astonished to see a large tent spring up in a remarkably short time. Some shouted "look out for the elephants," and a small man with a large elephant whom he called "Mamma," appeared. Four men grabbed the tongue of one of the dens containing "King Edward" and his mate, two majestic African lions, and at the word of command "Mamma" placed her trunk at the back of it, and gently but firmly pushed it into position inside the menagerie. Thus all of the dens were placed, until suddenly the side wall went up, and the small boy was told to keep out. One boy objected, as he said he wanted to stick his finger in the monkey cage to see if Mr. Monk would bite.

At 10 a. m. there is a bugle call and performers and riders can be seen hurrying to the dressing tent. At 10:15 another call is given, and almost instantly the parade starts out. The bands play, the callopo gives forth a shriek, and then the boys turn somersaults, and quarrel because one wants to follow Happy Hooligan, and another wants to follow Dutchie. They settle the question by following the policeman, because he is sure to pinch poor Happy.

The performance began promptly at 2:30, and, judging from the shouts of laughter and applause the audience was pleased.

The animals all show careful training, and somehow give one the impression that they enjoy the applause just as well as the actors.

The whole performance is splendid, no waits, no tiresome adjusting of

THE NEW WOMAN.

Mrs.
EMMA MITCHELL.

Mrs. Emma Mitchell, 520 Louisiana street, Indianapolis, Ind., writes:

"For the past five years I have rarely been without pain, but Peruna has changed all this, and in a very short time. I think I had taken only two bottles before I began to recuperate very quickly, and seven bottles made me well. I do not have headache or backache any more, and have some interest in life."—Emma Mitchell.

The coming of what is known as the "new woman" in our country is not greeted by everyone as if she were a great blessing. But there is another new woman whom everybody is glad to see. Every day some invalid woman is exclaiming, "I have been made a new woman by Dr. Hartman's home treatment." It is only necessary to send name, address, symptoms, duration of sickness and treatment already received to Dr. Hartman, Columbus, Ohio, and directions for one month's treatment will be promptly forwarded.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, O.

properties, but a show that keeps one busy watching, yet sends you out satisfied that you have received the full value of your money.

Another performance will be given this evening, the doors opening at 7 o'clock, and the performance beginning one hour later.

Steep Road Grade.

An electric road is to be built up Mount Blanc, on the plan of M. Ballot, an engineer of great ability. The cog-wheel system used on the Jungfrau will be employed, and the railroad, which will start from a point 3260 feet above the sea level, will terminate only 810 feet above the summit of the mountain. The tourist will be 14,970 feet above the sea when he steps out of the cars. In making the ascent of the 11,710 feet from the starting point the road will traverse nearly 11 miles, to lower the grades as much as possible, and obtain the most favorable conditions for construction.

Pleased With Salem.

General Ben Simpson, who has been visiting his brother, W. B. Simpson, on South Commercial street, for the past two weeks, returned to his home in Portland today. General Simpson is an old pioneer of Oregon, and well known throughout the state. He went to Alabama about two years ago, and only just recently returned. This is the first time in 20 years that he has been at Salem, and he is much pleased with the growth and prosperity all around.

Marion Square Social.

The ladies of the Marion Square Improvement League are planning another social, which will be given Friday evening at the Marion square park. The Salem Military Band will also give a concert, and the people of Salem are all expected to come out and spend a pleasant evening, and help the good ladies who are entering into the work with such zeal. They will serve ice cream, cake and lemonade.

EDITOR MAKES TRIP

On a Drive From Salem to Yaquina Bay

(Special Correspondence.)

Lewiston, Polk County, July 25.

We crossed the Salem bridge at 8:15 a. m. Monday. The Willamette lay smooth as a mirror, like the picture Sam Simpson has painted in his immortal poem. A light veil of hazy smoky mist lay on the hills, the masses of green fir forest and squares of golden grain shimmering through and merging into the smoke from the slashings rising from the hills.

It took seven minutes to walk the horse across the long steel bridge and its approaches. Our horse had not been driven much for a week, and was inclined to dance and prance at every piece of torn paper hanging down from the sides of the bridge. Nailing and painting advertisements on our beautiful bridge should be forbidden, as they are never cared for afterward, and become a nuisance, flapping in the wind, and frightening horses. The horse shied once when he was really excusable. He sighted a young woman in a green dress with a red scoop hat, and chewing gum, and tried to climb the roadside fence until the perambulating color scheme got safely past.

Going to Eola we met a number of wagons loaded with baled hay, a valuable crop this year, but likely to turn out a larger supply than some are counting on. The dry weather in May and June enabled the farmers to save all the early hay, like orchard grass, blue grass, mesquite and clover. Large fields of timothy (Hurd grass) and clover were got in without a shower, and a great deal of fall sown grain hay. Spring sown grain will be mostly too short for the harvester to tie into bundles, and will be cut for hay. There is still a great acreage of late spring grain to be cut that will swell the hay crop immensely.

In spite of these additions to the hay crop it will bring a good price. Indications are that it will not go below $8 to $10 per ton, and much of the time for the year to come it will go along that price.

The roadside and countryside are rich with elements of beauty at this time of the year. Summer is at the glory of its fullness. The grain fields are either ripe and golden for the harvest, or the stubble glistens like burnished silver under the mellowing sunshine. Nature has finished her year's labors, and her wealth and bounty are spread on every hand, and she views her work with beaming satisfaction. All the fields are fringed with golden-rod, yellow and purple asters. The wild pansy has gone to bloom, and lifts its white seed pods above the grass, storing a harvest of seeds for the birds in winter.

On the road to Independence we noticed a few very fine hop yards. But most of the yards show the need of rain and more thorough cultivation. The berries are slender, and the foliage has a light green or yellowish cast that betokens a light crop.

The view looking north from the top of the hill just beyond the lone fir is beautiful. In all directions lie great reaches of grain fields, laid out in squares of yellow, green grain and brown pastures, flecked with groves of oak and fir and the Coast range and Cascade range of mountains for a background east and west.

The grain crops from Monmouth to Lewisville and toward Airle and Suvor are very fine in quality, and the fall grain will be an average crop. Late sown oats is yet in the making, and is doing well.

We stopped for dinner on a high ridge above Burns' mill, shaded with mighty oaks, the sea breeze fanning our dinner table—a la Adam and Eve style. The view in all directions was beautiful, the coast mountains looming up grandly.

This afternoon we drove up King's valley, and tonight will camp under the trees in the mountains. We have invaded the cougar country.

Poisoned Canned Beef.

Canned roast beef came almost causing the death of the members of the family of Benjamin Ekoon and that of several other persons Sunday. Shortly after dinner those who had eaten of the canned beef became very ill, and Dr. Fulton was called. He found all of the sufferers to be in a critical condition, but the timely administration of antidotes saved their lives.—Astorian.

Good Prices for Timber.

Two thousand dollars is the price which has been offered by timber buyers to about 250 people holding claims in Northern Klamath, Lake and Southern Crook counties. The most of the timber is owned by Albany people, and comprises a compact group of fine yellow pine claims, which were located about two years ago. Last fall the owners formed a combination known as the Albany Timber Pool, and agreed to hold their claims together until January 1, 1905, for a price of $3000 each. A vote was taken on the offer of $2000, but failed to get a two-thirds vote of those interested. The tract includes the best of the timber in that section of the state, and it is believed the price agreed upon can be secured. At present negotiations are still pending between the members of the pool and the timber buyers, the latter endeavoring to pick up as many claims outside of the pool in that vicinity as possible for $1000 each.—Klamath Republican.

Something very interesting in the Floto shows this year are three little lion cubs, just six days old. They are bright little fellows, crawling around, and are attracting a great deal of attention. Their mother is the big lioness, "Kate," which is one of the features in the menagerie. The lioness killed her last cubs, and they are very careful of these as the show intends to raise them.
