

STATE FAIR BOARD

Reports Prospects Are Good for Large Meeting This Fall

According to W. H. Downing, president of the state board of agriculture, the prospects for a successful state fair this fall are very flattering and all departments are active.

One of the big attractions will be "Woodmen Day" on Tuesday, September 13. The board has offered $600 in prizes for the drill teams and entries from almost every portion of the state will be made. The teams will be accompanied by thousands of visitors, and coming at the first part of the fair will augment the crowds to some extent during the remainder of the week.

The county exhibits will also be a splendid feature. Six counties have made entries and others will probably be heard from. Those now entered are Marion, Linn, Polk, Benton and Washington, while Yamhill will also likely have an exhibit. The prizes aggregate $1300 divided as follows: First, $300; second, $250; third, $200; fourth 150; and four other prizes of $100 each for other exhibitors.

The province of Alberta, Canada has asked for space and will have a collection of the resources of that northern country.

The stock exhibit may be a little shot of last year on account of many herds being sent to St. Louis, but from recent inquiries it is safe to say that it will be good.

Space promises to be scarce as many industrial enterprises have made application. Never before in the history of the fair have so many exhibitors at this time of year notified the secretary that they would be represented.

Mr. Downing will go to Portland this afternoon and purchase a new track sprinkler, as the old one is in poor condition and could not keep enough water on the track.

The horses are working out every day and they embrace some of the fastest steppers in the west. Many a spirited heat between the hot blooded animals occurs daily and several records have been lowered.

The new street railway loop will give the fair a much better car service, a thing that will be of great benefit to the fair and an accommodation to the patrons.

"New Era in Oregon." A Portland paper heads an article "New Era in Oregon." Of course, New Era is in Oregon and has been for quite a while.

Big Log Drive. The Spaulding log drive of 7,000,000 feet is coming down the river and will be at Salem in a few days.

These two words, Schilling's Best, are perfect assurance of getting your money's worth.

Mrs. Burcham was formerly Miss Emily Henry of this city, a teacher in the East Salem school, and is well known here. She has been visiting for some weeks past at the home of her father in this city.

Creffield in Prison. "Apostle Joshua" Creffield seems not to mind his surroundings at the county jail while awaiting trial on a criminal charge, says a Portland paper. He spends most of his time lying on a cot in his cell, reading the Bible supplied him by O. V. Hurt, his father-in-law and one of the men whose family was broken up by the prisoner's fanaticism.

When some of the other inmates made a number of sarcastic comments on his tenets of faith this morning Creffield paid no attention to them for some time. Finally he turned to the most persistent of his tormentors and declared:

"I don't care for your talk. The Lord is my protector."

The "apostle" was visited this morning by Fred Baum, a member of the Salvation Army. He stood at the bars and chatted with his visitor for about five minutes. The burden of his remarks was that the people are all in the dark and that he is the Moses sent by God to lead them out of the wilderness of ignorance and sin.

Creffield appears to be growing stronger. His cheeks are taking on a natural color and he eats and sleeps well. The officials declare that his poor physical condition is due largely to fright. He seems to feel perfectly safe in the county jail, and if any thought of the future troubles him he does not show it.

Carpentry. A. Olinger, the old reliable carpenter, has again opened a shop with W. T. Rigdon, the Court-street undertaker, and is ready now to take orders for job work on immediate call. Rigdon's phone, 2271, 142 Court street.

Oregon Doctors Meet. The Oregon State Medical association will hold their 31st annual meeting in Portland on August 30. A number of interesting papers will be read and the physicians expect a large attendance.

Prominent Methodist Divine. Bishop Cranston, the Methodist divine, passed through Salem Monday on his way to Portland, after dedicating the new church at Springfield.

Ice Cream Poisoning. An epidemic of sickness at Canemah led to the discovery that many of the people have been poisoned by eating ice cream. No one is in any real danger from the sickness, the worst case reported being that of Charles Midlam, and he is said to be recovering. The ice cream was made Sunday and refrozen yesterday. It is thought that, being allowed to stand over Sunday night started the bacteria life in the cream and it is these germs that started the extreme pains in the anatomy of the Canemah people.

When through here he will adjourn to take up Judge Boise's adjourned term at Dallas, Aug. 6th, but will then expect to return to Salem to finish up such business as may demand his attention.

The following docket entries were made today:

In the case of the Wm. Cooper estate vs. Gilbert Bros., for an accounting, the receiver was ordered to pay to E. J. Dunn $478, and the offer of W. L. Payne was accepted.

In the case of Hinkle vs. Hinkle, testimony was taken this morning and the trial goes forward this afternoon.

In the case of Aug. Klinger vs. Rose Klinger, the defendant defaulted and the divorce was granted.

Killed Large Buck. Miss Black and Miss Johnson returned to the former's home near Sumner today, from a week's visit at the home of E. J. Cofflet, on Coos river.

Miss Black brought with her the head and horns of a four-point buck which fell a victim to her prowess with the rifle yesterday morning. The animal was killed at a distance of "one or two hundred yards," receiving six shots out of a possible eight from the rifle of the young lady. The horns which are in the velvet, will be mounted by C. H. Marsh and will be a trophy to be proud of.—Marshfield Mail.
