THE GROWTH OF SOCIALISM.

One cannot run the gamut of present day economic literature without being impressed not only with the unprecedented activity in this country of the Socialists themselves, but with the general recognition of Socialism by students of all classes of political thought, as a sturdy movement, already potent and increasing in geometrical progression.

In many foreign countries Socialism is already highly organized and furishes the principal impetus to anti-monopolistic and antimarchant movements.

In American politics it has not, up to this time, as an organization exercised any marked influence. In 1892, the first time the word was used in connection with a national political party in the United States, the Socialist Labor party polled 21,164 votes, while the People's party, closely allied in thought, cast 1,041,028 votes, and had 22 votes in the electoral college.

In 1896 the Socialist Labor candidate received 36,274 votes, an increase of 75 per cent, in spite of the candidacy on the Democratic ticket of Bryan, who was considered generally acceptable to Socialists as well as Populists.

In 1900, although Bryan was again the Democratic candidate, the Social Democratic party received 84,003, while the Socialist Labor party received 39,537, or a combined vote of 123,540, an increase of over 240 per cent in four years.

There are indications that both the Socialists and Populists expect to benefit greatly by what they believe to be the dissatisfaction of a large number of voters who have affiliated with the Democrats in the last two campaigns. Both Socialists and Populists expect to equal the votes of the Populists in 1892. This would mean over two million in all. While these claims are probably exorbitant, the record of growth of the Socialist party in this and other countries furnishes ample reason for considering it a formidable influence and perhaps a deciding one, in the coming contest between the two great parties, which promises to be close.

It is fashionable with the partisan press of the country to ignore this factor in preparing election estimates, but while it may be ignored in predictions, it cannot be ignored at the ballot-box.

The question of what figure will be cast by the Populists and the Socialists is quite pertinent. How many votes will they cast? Can they receive any

My Breath.

Shortness of Breath Is One of the Commonest Signs of Heart Disease.

Notwithstanding what many physicians say, heart disease can be cured. Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure has permanently restored to health many thousands who had found no relief in the medicines (allopathic or homeopathic) of regular practicing physicians. It has proved itself unique in the history of medicine, by being so uniformly successful in curing these diseases.

Nearly always, one of the first signs of trouble is shortness of breath. Whether it comes as a result of walking or running up stairs, or of other exercises, if the heart is unable to meet this extra demand upon its pumping powers—there is something wrong with it.

The very best thing you can do, is to take Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure. It will go to the foundation of the trouble, and make a permanent cure by strengthening and renewing the nerves.

I know that Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure is a great remedy. For a number of years I suffered from shortness of breath, smothering spells, and pains in my left side. For months at a time I would be unable to lie on my left side, and if I lay flat on my back would smother. A friend advised using Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure, which I did with good results. I began to improve at once, and after taking several bottles of the Heart Cure the pains in my side and other symptoms vanished. I am now entirely well. All these dreadful smothering spells are a thing of the past.—E. P. LAKK, Middletown, O.

electoral votes? From what party will they get their votes? What states are most likely to be affected?

These questions are difficult to answer, but they must be considered.—Columbian Press-Post.

GOSSIP AND SLANDER.

How much happier and better the world would be if all would say of one another only the things they could swear to.

Gossiping is the most vicious form of employment in which anyone may indulge.

Many think that women are the only gossipers; that men do not indulge; but this is not true. There are men, weak and low, who stand on street corners and by idle, thoughtless, smart or vindictive remarks, ruin the reputation of many a good young woman, or sink lower the name of one who has been thoughtless or unfortunate.

Not only do they lay siege by slander to young women, but the old as well, and men as well as women, suffer.

The professional assassin who goes forth at the midnight hour to waylay and kill, is not more steeped in dark and damning crime than is the man or woman, boy or girl, who ruthlessly in mischief or in malice, takes from another his or her good name.

A good name in woman is like a crystal mirror—bright and clear, but easily sullied by even a foul breath.

"They say" has brought a lot of misery into the world, and has caused more tears than would float a navy, and "I'm not sure, but I think" is first cousin and close companion to "they say."

In discussing people, don't say "they say," or "I think." Wait until you know, and then be silent.

The only time you can afford to say "they say," or "I think," or "it is rumored," or "I have heard," is when they say good things, or you think good things of him or her who is being thought or talked about.

Ever remember that calumny requires no proof.

SAYINGS BY PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT.

That whenever the need arises there should be a readjustment of the tariff schedules is undoubted; but such can with safety be made only by those whose devotion to the principle of protective tariff is beyond question; for otherwise the changes would amount not to readjustment but to repeal. The readjustment when made must maintain and not destroy the protective principle.

We believe in reciprocity with foreign nations on the terms outlined in President McKinley's last speech, which urged the extension of our foreign markets by reciprocal agreements whenever they could be made without injury to American industry and labor.

It is a singular fact that the only great reciprocity treaty recently adopted—that with Cuba—was finally opposed almost alone by the representatives of the very party which now states that it favors reciprocity. And here again we ask that the worth of our words be judged by comparing their deeds with ours.

We recognize the organization of capital and the organization of labor as natural outcomes of our industrial system. Each kind of organization is to be favored so long as it acts in a spirit of justice and of regard for the rights of others. Each is granted the full protection of the law, and each in turn is to be held to a strict obedience to the law; for no man is above it and no man below it. The humblest individual is to have his rights safeguarded as scrupulously as those of the strongest organization, for each is to receive justice, no more and no less. The problem with which we have to deal in our modern industrial and social life are manifold; but the spirit in which it is necessary to approach their solution is simply the spirit of honesty, of courage and of common sense.

The Isthmian canal is now being built by the government of the United States. We conducted the negotiations for its construction with the nicest and most scrupulous honor, and in a spirit of the largest generosity toward those through whose territory it was to run. Every sterner effort which could be devised by the spirit of faction or the spirit of self-interest was made in order to defeat the treaty with Panama and thereby prevent the consummation of this work. The construction of the canal is now an assured fact; but most certainly it is unwise to intrust the carrying out of so momentous a policy to those who have endeavored to defeat the whole undertaking.

In the Caribbean Sea we have made good our promises of independence to Cuba and have proved our assertion that our mission in the island was one of justice and not of self-aggrandizement; and there is no less than by our action in Venezuela and Panama we have shown that the Monroe doctrine is a living reality, and for the protection of civilization on the western continent, and for the peace of the world. Our steady growth in power has gone hand in hand with a strengthening disposition to use this power with strict regard for the rights of others, and for the cause of international justice and good will.

We earnestly desire friendship with all the nations of the New and Old worlds; and we endeavor to place our relations with them upon a basis of reciprocal advantage instead of hostility. We hold that the prosperity of each nation is an aid and not a hindrance to the prosperity of other nations. We seek international amity for the same reasons that make us believe in peace within our own borders; and we seek this peace not because we are afraid or unready, but because we think that peace is right as well as advantageous.

Our foothold in the Philippines greatly strengthens our position in the competition for the trade of the east; but we are governing the Philippines in the interest of the Philippine people themselves. We have already given them a large share in their government, and our purpose is to increase this share as rapidly as they give evidence of increasing fitness for the task. The great majority of the officials of the islands, whether elective or appointive, are already native Filipinos. We are now providing for a legislative assembly. This is the first step to be taken in the future; and it would be eminently unwise to declare what our next step will be until this first step has been taken and the results are manifest. To have gone faster than we have already gone in giving the islanders a constantly increasing measure of self-government would have been disastrous.

We face the future with our past and our present as guarantors of our promises; and we are content to stand or to fall by the record which we have made and are making.

CHEER UP.

Cheer up. The world is taking your photograph. Look pleasant. Of course you have your troubles, troubles you cannot tell the policeman. A whole lot of things bother you, of course. Business worries or domestic sorrows, it may be, or what not. You find life a rugged road whose stones hurt your feet. Nevertheless cheer up.

It may be your real disease is selfishness—ingrown selfishness. Your life is too self centered. You imagine your tribulations are worse than others bear. You feel sorry for yourself.—the meanest sort of pity. It is a pathetic illusion. Bid yourself of that and cheer up.

What right have you to carry a picture of your weebegone face and funeral ways about among your fellows, who have troubles of their own? If you must wail or sulk or scowl, take a car and go to the woods or to the unfrequented lanes.

Cheer up. Your ills are largely imaginary. If you were really on the brink of bankruptcy, or if there were no thoroughfare through your sorrows, you would clear your brows, set your teeth and make the best of it.

Cheer up. You are making a hypothetical case out of your troubles and suffering from a selfinflicted verdict. You are borrowing trouble and paying a high rate of interest.

Cheer up. Why, man alive, in a ten minute walk you may see a score of people worse off than you. And here you are digging your own grave and playing pallbearer into the bargain. Man alive, you must do your own work. Smile, even though it be through your tears, which speedily dry. And cheer up.

American sentiment will have to change pretty soon if it keeps within the under-dog rule.

If the Czar will send that three-day-old infant to Manchuria to direct the movements of his army and navy, the result would not be any more disastrous.

A Salem man has made inquiry at this office for a couple of stay-at-home tickets for his daughters for this week. Carnival was here recently, it must be remembered.

The professional masher gets it in the neck sometimes, but not as hard as he deserves at any time. A bundle of concert wrapped in a few store clothes never makes a gentleman.

The Fighting Editor. Representative Brownlow, of Tennessee, tells that once he was running a country paper during campaign times and was printing "fighting" language every week. One day just after the paper was out a big man, armed with a club, walked into the sanctum and

The frightened Brownlow had wit enough to answer that he was not, but that he would go out and hunt him up. He started for the street, and at the foot of the stairs met another irate fellow, who asked: "Will I find the editor of this dirty sheet upstairs?" "Yes," said Brownlow, "he's up there at his desk just itching for a fight." The second man went up and Brownlow disappeared. Which whipped the other is not related—and Brownlow didn't go back during the day to find out.

Peterborough Cathedral has the oldest working clock in England. It was erected about 1320, and is probably the work of a monastic clockmaker. It is the only one now known that is wound up over an old wooden wheel.

Australia has no orphan asylums. Every child who is not supported by parents becomes a ward of the state, and is paid a pension for support and placed in a private family, where board and clothes are provided until the fourteenth birthday.

A philologist says everybody pronounces "Niagara wrong. The accent should not be on the syllable "ag," but on the syllable "ar." Niagara is a Huron word, and the Hurons pronounced "Niagara" as the Indians and we do "Saratoga."

The first really efficient lucifer match may be put to the credit of John Walker, of Stockton-on-Tees, England, who in 1827 placed them on the market under the name of "congreves, in compliment to Sir William Congreve, the inventor of the war rocket.

Fair minded investigators of the habits and ways of the street beggars of New York are convinced that nearly all of them are as ardent impostors as those of Naples and Constantinople. When arrests of these mendicants are made it is often found that they have considerable sums in their clothes and bank books at home."

Paterson, N. J., has brought to view at various times no small number of eccentric persons. The latest freak in that community makes his breakfast of a cucumber, his luncheon of a carrot, a turnip or a raw potato, and eats a few nuts for supper. Mrs. Rosa Adams, niece of the late General Roger Hanson, C. S. A., wants every woman to know of the wonders accomplished by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I cannot tell you with pen and ink what good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for me, suffering from the ill peculiar to the sex, extreme lassitude and that all gone feeling. I would rise from my bed in the morning feeling more tired than when I went to bed, but before I had used two bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, I began to feel the buoyancy of my younger days returning, became regular, could do more work and not feel tired than I had ever been able to do before, so I continued to use it until I was restored to perfect health. It is indeed a boon to sick women and I heartily recommend it. Yours very truly, MRS. ROSA ADAMS, 819 12th St., Louisville, Ky."

Any women who are troubled with irregular or painful menstruation, weakness, leucorrhoea, displacement or ulceration of the womb, that bearing-down feeling, inflammation of the ovaries, backache, general debility, and nervous prostration, should know there is one tried and true remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. No other medicine for women has received such wide-spread and unqualified indorsement. No other medicine has such a record of female cures.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I am very pleased to recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for womb and ovarian difficulties from which I have been a sufferer for years. It was the only medicine which was at all beneficial, and within a week after I started to use it, there was a great change in my feelings and looks. I used it for a little over three months, and at the end of that time I suffered no pain at the menstrual period, nor was I troubled with those distressing pains which compelled me to go to bed, and I have not had a headache since. This is nearly a year ago. I always keep a bottle on hand, and take a few doses every week, for I find that it tones up the system and keeps me feeling strong, and I never have that tired out feeling any more. I certainly think that every woman ought to try this grand medicine, for it would prove its worth. Yours very truly, Miss ELSIE DANFORTH, 203 De Soto St., Memphis, Tenn."
