LITERATURE IN THE BIBLE.

The greatest minds in the world have all shown a high appreciation of the literary value of the Bible.

No argument is needed to show that the Bible contains the most perfect poems and the most finished dramas.

It is a lamentable fact that the Bible is studied to little purpose in most of our colleges and universities.

Yet without inspiration from the spiritual wells of truth found in the sacred scriptures there is almost no creative literary power.

Take a well known passage from Job 7, 17-18: "What is man that thou shouldst be mindful of him? And what thou shouldst set thine heart upon him? And that thou shouldst visit him every morning, and try him every moment?"

The paragraph begins with a general statement about man. The next sentence contains an element of loving kindness for the individual. The third clause becomes familiar and expressive friendly personal interest.

The last clause, "and try him every moment," is a deeply penetrating thrust for righteousness and awakening personality. The soul of man is to be subjected to divine test every moment.

Notice how the fire of this composition is brought down from the general to the particular. With what fine gradations of thought the concentration of ideas is wrought out.

Remember the Bible is not natural history, political discussion, or merely human and material moralizing.

It is a history of the spiritual development and struggles of humanity, in which are to be found the very springs of literature.

It is a pity that our religious prejudices will not permit us to study and appreciate the Bible more as literature and less as the foundation of some creed.

MR. ROOSEVELT IS RIGHT THIS TIME.

The New York Evening Journal of August 19 (W. R. Hearst's paper), says: Theodore Roosevelt tells the men of the Grand Army of the Republic, assembled in Boston, that the United States is going to hold on to the Philippine Islands, and that the work done there "will not be undone."

Mr. Roosevelt is right. The people of the United States, when they took the Philippines, assumed the responsibility, not only for the present but for the future, for a good many millions of human beings AND A LARGE SLICE OF THE EARTH'S SURFACE.

Laws which are good here must be good in the Philippines, and they will be applied there. That which is progress here must be progress in the Philippines, and it will be developed there.

The United States will not back out and invite the Filipinos to fight it out among themselves, leaving the savages to fall to slashing each other and the half-breeds to plotting and selling each other out. It would be the simplest way out of it, and the most cowardly. That will not be the American way.

The people of this country came across the Atlantic Ocean, they did fairly well here, obeying, on the whole, their best instincts, and succeeding fairly well in establishing a popular government.

They have now crossed the Pacific Ocean, after crossing the American continent. They will have their troubles over there, but they will succeed again fairly well in establishing a just government.

The American people do not want any imperialism, but they do want expansion, and they have always had it. They are not going to back out of an undertaking, either on foolishly sentimental or conveniently cowardly grounds. They will do the work they have undertaken in the Philippines, educating the people there, and, incidentally, educating themselves in the process.

THE HARVEST APPLE TREE.

The old harvest apple tree—
Haunts of boy, and bird and bee—
With its arms held wide to welcome all the breeze's revelry!
You remember where it grew,
And remember how we knew
All the goodness and the gladness that it held for me and you.

In the branches, waving high,
We were sailors, and we'd cry
As ahoy! to all the argosies of clouds a-sending by,
On the grass below we'd weave
All the fancies that deceive
And convince us of the truthness of the land of make-believe.

The old harvest apple tree—
Haunts of boy, and bird and bee—
With its arms that waved a welcome every day to you and me!
Clear in memory's dim haze,
Happily it swings and sways,
Waiting us a thousand echoes of the cherished yesterdays.

Mrs. Hannah Joseph's Funeral.

Yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock, at the First Presbyterian church, the funeral of the late Mrs. Hannah Joseph, was held. Dr. Ketchum, of the Presbyterian church, and Rev. Cliffe, of the First Baptist church officiated. The church was filled with many friends who had come to pay the last tribute of respect to the departed.

The services were opened with prayer by Dr. Ketchum, after which a quartette composed of Mrs. Hallie Parrish Hingeb, Mrs. Myra Wiggins, and Messrs. Chas. Roth and John Fechter sang a selection entitled "The Mansion in the Skies."

Dr. Ketchum took his sermon from the book of Second Corinthians, 1st verse, and he spoke many comforting words for the grieving ones left. He told of the long and useful life of the deceased, her many traits of goodness and kindly disposition. She had been a member of the Presbyterian church for forty years, and not once had she wavered in the straight way.

The quartette then rendered "Asleep in Jesus," both of the selections having been favorites of Mrs. Joseph's.

The services were concluded by a prayer offered by Rev. Cliffe. The remains were interred in the Old Fellows cemetery, where fitting services were held, two beautiful selections being rendered by the quartette.

The floral offerings were numerous and showed the love and esteem in which Mrs. Joseph was held.

CONVICT LABOR ON ROADS.

Governor Chamberlain deserves credit for having convicts build five miles of excellent public road leading from Salem to the reformatory.

That road, however, is not finished, owing to the inability of the state or county to put a metal surface on the road.

The legislature should extend the act so that convict labor could be employed to prepare broken rock.

There is abundant material for manufacture of crushed rock, and the power to operate the rock crushers is available.

The cheap labor of the convicts is needed to do the rough work of preparing the rock for the crusher and distributing the same.

We present below an article from the pen of the state highway commissioner of Michigan that has a great deal of sense:

(Midland, Mich., Republican.)

In the United States there is performed by convicts not less than 15,000,000 days' work a year. If utilized in preparing road material, it would crush and load on boat or train 60,000,000 tons of stone, which would build 60,000 miles of nine foot wide country road.

Believe the honest man from dishonest competition, and it is dishonest to tax the honest family supporting laboring man to run the state institutions and then sell the labor of the convicts for half what it is worth. Put them to preparing good roads material, and then every day's work creating the material will create a demand for another day's work to apply it to the road, then the convict will be working for the laborer instead of against him.

HORATIO S. EARLE,
State Highway Commissioner.

PUSH THE CHARTER SUIT.

There should be no time lost in bringing the charter suit to trial. The Greater Salem charter has nothing to fear from the courts.

For the first time in the history of this city a charter was deliberately prepared in the interest of the whole community.

The Greater Salem charter is not drawn up in the interest of warrant scalpers, corporations, or big real estate holders.

Mr. Pogue has been itching ever since the charter was passed to get up a lawsuit, and take it into the courts.

Several efforts have been made to raise money to bring the suit to tie up the charter, and knock it out, but all fell through.

At last a nominal defendant has been secured, and some one has put up the money for Mr. Pogue to begin the suit.

Without prejudice to Mr. Pogue, let the suit be brought to a trial. Let the case be advanced on the docket. Let it not be hung up for years.

Another thing, let there be no skulduggery permitted in the way of stipulations in the interest of any rich man. Let us have a square deal.

The time when one man or any few men could keep their hands on the throttle, and keep this community down, is past. Salem will go forward.

The suburbs cannot have all the benefits of belonging to this city, and escape all the obligations and burdens of citizenship.

DOWNFALL OF PORT ARTHUR.

From the beginning of the war with Russia it has been apparent that Port Arthur and Vladivostok must fall into the hands of the Japanese.

With their navy supreme on the Asiatic waters, there was no opportunity for the Russians to garrison these ports properly.

The occupation of Port Arthur by the Japanese is now an accomplished fact—a fortress that Russia has spent thirty million roubles to build.

The failure of the Siberian railway to carry and army and provisions into Vladivostok and Port Arthur reveals that Russia is weak on land also.

But the corruption of her government, the triple oppression of an aristocracy, state, church and military system, render Russia weak.

With the fall of Port Arthur and Vladivostok there is more prospect of peace in the Far East.

Russia awakens with her supposed impregnable strongholds at the mercy of the enemy.

Japan steps into the arena of the world's great powers, and the Orient and the Occident awaken to the possibilities of the little brown men.

Well When Sick.

All we can do is give advice.

Of course that's easy.

But our advice is really worth a little more to you than most people's, for we offer to give you the first bottle of our medicine free, if it fails to help you.

We could not afford to do this unless our medicine was good. Such an offer, on the wrong kind of medicine, would put a merchant prince in the poor house.

Dr. Miles' Nerve, however, as years of experience have proved, is a medicine that cures the sick.

Those whom it cannot benefit—less than one in ten thousand—we prefer to refund their money.

All we ask of you is to try Dr. Miles' Restorative Nerve for your complaint. If you suffer from sleeplessness, nervous exhaustion, dizziness, headache, muscular twitchings, melancholy, loss of memory, weak stomach, poor blood, bilious troubles, epilepsy, St. Vitus' Dance, etc., we will guarantee to benefit you or refund your money.

You are the doctor.

"My son Bert, when in his 17th year, became subject to attacks of epilepsy, so serious that we were compelled to take him out of school.
