

GIRLS DON'T ALLOW MEN TO SPEND MONEY ON YOU

By Beatrice Fairfax.

Girls, do you ever think how much it costs a man to pay attention to a girl?

By "costs" I mean the actual money, not to mention time, that he spends on her.

So many of you write, complaining that your men friends do not take you to places of amusement, etc.

Don't you think yourselves that you demand a good deal?

You know the average young man is not making a very large salary, and if he is going to keep out of debt, and perhaps save a little he really has not a great amount left to spend on trifles.

This habit of expecting the men to spend money on them keeps the girls from a good deal of attention that they might otherwise receive.

Of course when a man becomes interested in a girl he naturally expects to give her any little treats that he can afford, but when he finds out how much is expected of him, he is frightened away.

He thinks to himself, "Dear me, I can't keep this up; I can't afford it."

A man quickly tires of spending money on a girl unless he is in love with her, and even then, if the girl is wise, she does not demand too much.

No man is pleased by the thought that a girl only likes him for what he gives her.

There is another side to it also. When you find a man of moderate circumstances showering gifts and treats on a girl you may be sure that he is improvident.

Do not jump to the conclusion that a man is stingy because he is not always inviting you out.

A great many young men have to help with the home expenses, a number of them carry life insurance and all of them who are ambitious are trying to save a little money.

When a man falls in love with you, wouldn't you rather that he should save all he can, with a view to marrying you soon, than fritter his money away on theatres, etc.?

Most girls consider an engagement ring absolutely necessary.

If the man can afford it, it is nice to have this souvenir of the happiest hour of your life; but when you love each other what difference does a trifle like a ring make?

There are so many ways to be happy without spending money when two people really care for each other.

And if you are not engaged to the man, all the more reason why you should not allow him to spend all his money on you.

Time and time again I have heard men say that they would like to know more girls, but that they really could not afford it.

"You see," said one man, "unless you take a girl everywhere she thinks you are stingy, and so we men without much money simply can't afford to become friends with any girl."

This is not a sermon, girls, it is just a little sisterly advice from one who has heard her brothers and men friends thrash this subject out many times.

POLITICAL PARAGRAPHS.

Most truly did Senator Fairbanks say in his speech of acceptance "We have peace and great prosperity at home and are upon terms of good neighborhood with the entire world. These conditions constitute the strongest possible assurance for the future."

The sneering, smiling Sultan of Turkey is furnishing approval of the Democratic cry that President Roosevelt's foreign policy is impulsive, unsafe and dangerous.

Candidate Davis boasts that he worked as a wage earner. He is now whooping it up for the party whose policies have made it impossible for the wage earner to work.

It will probably be a sad disappointment to Mr. Belmont to learn that money can not elect a President in opposition to the will of the people.

The photograph of ex-President Cleveland has been removed from the headquarters of the Kansas Democrats.

It is slowly dawning on the Democratic leaders that they can not settle the money question by performing the ostrich act.

As a result of the Republican financial and industrial policies we have today in the treasury of this country more gold belonging to the United States than was ever held by any government in the history of the world.

Over a hundred thousand men are today voluntarily idle and yet so great have been their wages and incomes during the past few years that they experience no suffering.

In 1890 the first law which the new Republican party succeeded in placing on the statute books was the so-called "Morrill tariff." At that time we were exporting forty million dollars worth of manufactures. During the fiscal year ending 1904 we exported about eleven times that amount or four hundred and fifty million dollars worth.

There never was a President in the White House who was a greater friend of the laboring man than Theodore Roosevelt. His record, from the time when he was an assemblyman in the New York legislature, to the present, has been a consistent one in this respect. President Roosevelt stands as the friend of the lawmaker and the enemy of the lawbreaker no matter what his politics or his calling.

FRANK BACON TALKS

Native California Actor Sees Marked Improvement In Salem

If the theater-goers of Salem will go back about seven or eight years, in those days repertoire or stock companies were quite a thing. At that time Frank Bacon was at the head of the Bacon Stock Company, and played a large and successful engagement in Oregon. Their stay in Portland lasted 52 weeks, being the longest run ever played in that city. Mr. Bacon is not a stranger here by any means. There is hardly a theater-goer in the state who is not more or less familiar with his droll method and quaint sayings. When the "Hills of California" his present success, was written there was considerable speculation as to who would be selected to play the star part. After considerable time it was given to Mr. Bacon, who has devoted all his time to the character of "Amos Hill," which he will present tonight at the opera house.

Mr. Bacon is a Californian. He is not only a farmer on the stage, but his summers are spent on his own orchard home, where he prunes his trees and follows the plow down the shady avenues. Californians are very much interested in this play, possible on account of its name, and then it deals with California life of today. The chamber of commerce of Santa Clara county are arranging to give away thousands of boxes of glazed and crystallized fruits throughout the East during Mr. Bacon's engagements. In each city there will be given what will be termed a Santa Clara valley night, and at these performances the fruits will be given away.

"It has been seven years since I have been through this section," said Mr. Bacon, in talking to a Journal reporter, "and I must say that Salem has advanced and improved as much, if not more than many of the surrounding places. I believe when the Easterner become familiar with the wonderful resources of this country, and the Lewis and Clarke fair will familiarize many of them as to what can be done, and what is being done, the great natural advantages certainly will turn the tide of immigration this way." With Mr. Bacon is his daughter, Bessie, who has been his chief supporter for the past three years, and she will be seen in the pretty part of "Poppy" Hill, which is the name of the state flower.

A PROMINENT MEMBER OF I. O. O. F. Threatened With Bright's Disease--Peruna Restored Him to Health.

O. FRED LINDSTROM, PAST GRAND MASTER I. O. O. F.
O. Fred Lindstrom, Past Grand Master Independent Order of Odd Fellows, Past Chancellor Twin City Lodge, No. 63, Knights of Pythias, also Past Chief Patriarch, Ridgely Encampment, No. 22, writes from 1223 University Ave., St. Paul, Minn. "Peruna has my hearty endorsement. There is no medicine I know of which can compare with it. I contracted a severe cold several years ago, which from neglect developed into urinary trouble, and threatened Bright's disease. As one of my friends was cured of Bright's disease through the use of Peruna I thought I would try it also, and used it faithfully for three and one-half months, when my health was perfect once more. I have never had any trouble since, and therefore think it is but just to give it unlimited praise."
Lindstrom.
Catarrah inflammation of the lining of the kidneys, also of the bladder, may be either acute or chronic. The acute form produces symptoms of such prominence that the serious nature of the disease is suspected, but the chronic variety comes on so gradually and insidiously that its presence is not suspected after it has fastened itself upon its victim.
At the appearance of the first symptoms Peruna should be taken. This remedy strikes at once at the very root of the disease.
