MARKET REMAINS STIFF

The local hop market continues to be strong, with an upward tendency. The buyers are active, and a number of lots have changed hands in the past few days, although growers are expecting higher prices.

The quality of the hops of the 1904 crop is good, and, while the quantity is somewhat short, the increased price more than recompenses the growers.

Buyers report "nothing doing" today, bulls and bears apparently watching the market for a chance to make a killing.

The Wearin' of the Brown

A Color Hint to the Wide-Awake

In cities and towns they're wearin' the brown. You've had blue serges dinned into your ears for a life-time; and now comes the brown serge; as pretty a piece of goods as you wish to see; in as pleasing a style as any one could wish to have made. Brown is the rage. A sensible color for fall or winter. Looks warm and comfortable. But more than that, they look the essence of "swellness," and they are. There are no end of brown patterns to select from; and brown shades of different hues. If you like other colors better, it's up to you. From $15 to $25 takes the choicest fall suits. They have the Salem Woolen Mill Store label on them, and that is an additional good word for them, and means much more in the matter of quality than you are aware of.

You will find your choice in the swell new brown effects, in both solid colors, plaids and other fancy effects. From
