NEW YORK FASHION LETTER

be in style this season, one wear a three-quarter length garment, whether it is a loose coat, lined at the back, a double or military cape, or one exceeding gathered to a yoke, with little (which survive all caprices of fashion) also. The paletot shape has large, loose sleeves, and often handsome appliques in black or fashionable "burnt orange," around the shoulders and neck. Black coats are also of this shape, are made with very full skirts, not unfrequently quite plain, or with two tucks, or fully trimmed. The new Paquin skirt which of course excites much comment, is cut in four gores of the same size, the center laid on a straight line of the cloth, which makes the edge a little on the bias. The lower edge of the skirt is finished by a wide hem, and as it is very full, a lily hair cloth flounce on the drop skirt is indispensable in order to prevent the folds from falling around the feet of the wearer.

This stylish street suit, supplied by The Modes Fashion and Pattern Co., of this city, is of marine blue zibeline, finished with small gun metal buttons. The jacket is closely fitted with narrow back and side back gores, the seams extending to the shoulders and producing a long-waisted effect that is very becoming. The skirt is shaped with nine gores which are fitted smoothly around the waist and hips without darts.

Fall and Winter Millinery

Is of the most pronounced character, and the high crowned or Directoire hat has potent rivals in the long-haired beaver, and the poke hat as well. The fluffy beaver is both plain or in shaded color tones, and delightful contrasts or harmonies are the usual result. Plumes are the preferred garniture or mammoth flowers and leaves, one, or more together, or as a circlet. Colored leaves may be combined with roses or dahlias, or compose an entire hat—a small size of course. Peaches and grapes add their charm, placed in clusters on black tulle, or pendant from beneath a brim.

Poke Hats

Intended for street or carriage wear are quite large, either of velvet or beaver, with many ostrich tips at the front, and handsome face trimming, shirred silk in three tints being especially attractive. For evening, they are smaller and of light hued velvet or white, smooth-finished beaver, elaborately trimmed with shaded ribbon, flowers and chiffon. The independent crown flourishes—coming also of chenille in the Tam O'Shanter shape, of fur, or of velvet folds finished by a buckle, and where a silk crown is used, the height may be increased by an accordion plaited silk ruffle placed around the top of the crown.

BRYAN'S VIEW OF PLAFORM.

shall not misrepresent the situation, or appeal for votes for the ticket on false grounds. A Democratic victory will mean very little, if any, progress on economic questions so long as the party is under the control of Wall Street element. * * * The labor plank, as prepared, by Judge Parker's friends on the subcommittee, was a straddling, meaningless plank. * * * The nomination of Judge Parker virtually nullifies the anti-trust plank. * * * William Jennings Bryan, in "The Commoner," July 13, 1904.

73 Courses of Reading!

THE ENCYCLOPAEDIA BRITANNICA is known everywhere as the greatest reference work in the world. It is more than that. It is a collection of all histories, all biographies, all arts, all literatures and all knowledge—scientific, professional and mechanical.

On account of its world-wide range of subjects, it might become bewildering to the general reader. But for his aid a special volume has been prepared. It is a "Guide to Systematic Reading," containing no less than 73 distinct courses, adapted to (1) Young People, (2) Students, and (3) the Busy World.

I. The Young People.

The Guide makes BRITANNICA of unusual interest to younger readers. Five courses of reading are suggested to them: General History, Biography, Science and Games, Sports and Pastimes. These topics indicate their wide usefulness and appeal. They will send the boys and girls to reading BRITANNICA with delight.

II. The Student.

No less than 24 courses are mapped out for the student, following every great line of thought—Literature, Astronomy, Biology, Zoology, Botany, Geography, Mathematics, Theology, Engineering, etc.

An education neither begins nor ends at college. The most a college can do is to point out lines of study which the student is to follow for himself. BRITANNICA, the "great home university," not only points out but supplies the material.

III. The Busy World.

In 44 suggestive chapters, the Guide to BRITANNICA appeals to busy men and women in every walk of life—from the inventor to the manufacturer, from the architect to the builder, from the doctor to the chemist, from the laborer to the capitalist, from men of every trade to men of every profession. All find the facts that they need—and find them quickly.

You cannot afford to be denied admittance to this great world college when you can get it for

WHAT IS SAID OF IT
"It is without a peer in the whole noble army of encyclopaedias."—LYMAN ABBOTT, D.D.
"The Encyclopaedia Britannica is king of its tribe."—PROF. DAVID SWING.
"The most useful reference book for young or old is the Encyclopaedia Britannica. Children, beginning at 10 years old and on, need its stores of historical, biographical, mythological, elementary-scientific, natural history information. The eager boy can study ballroom, kinds of dogs, or treaties, locomotives, habits of the house-fly or cockroach. The youth may want information on subjects from poetry or electricity to the settlements of the Fill Islands of volcanoes and earthquakes, or a most fascinating story of Napoleon; and for the still older all the fundamental conceptions of law, medicine, theology, ethics, sociology, curves and functions, architecture, art—all the way up, perhaps, to the origin of some fine editorial on Chinese institutions. Whether for education or information, to man who once has this book will ever let himself or his children be without constant access to it. If another delight came and the ark had room but for one secular book, this is beyond any doubt the one."—CLEMENT BATES, Judge of Court, Cincinnati, Ohio.
