ACCIDENTAL?

The jury returned a verdict of accidental death on the man who fell from the window ledge on which he had fallen asleep. But the death was really due to carelessness which made the accident possible.

There are a great many lives suddenly terminated as a result of carelessness, although the medical certificate may read "heart failure." When a man takes chances with his stomach and neglects the warning symptoms of disease, he is carelessly inviting calamity.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation. They do not neuter the pill habit.

MARKETS IN GOOD CONDITION

Henry Clews, the well-known New York banker and broker, in his regular report for the week ending October 8th, says:

"Powerful manipulation and a good supply of favorable news combined to stimulate the market into greater activity, the only check to a further rise being the outpour of stocks from both inside and speculative sources, which caused more or less erratic fluctuations. History is once more repeating itself in the stock market, and at last the confidence so persistently displayed by insiders for months is extending to the outside public, simply because current developments prove that this confidence had been based upon actual conditions of which the leaders naturally possessed previous knowledge. The week has been fruitful in favorable developments. A number of very satisfactory railroad reports were forthcoming, some of which showed gratifying gains in gross earnings, others important reductions in operating expenses, while others have joined or promised to join the ranks of the dividend payers. All of these disclosures prove that the railroads, as a whole, are enjoying continued prosperity. Nor is this all. Traffic managers appear very confident in a continuance of this prosperity for another season, and it must be conceded that such views are well supported.

"The rise in the market has now been carried to a pitch where sharp reactions are inevitable, and yet the situation at this writing appears so well in hand that the leaders are quite likely to resume the upward movement. One thing may be taken for granted, and that is, with so much success being them those in control are not likely to stop until the rise has been pushed to the extreme limit. If this should be their policy there is nothing in sight to check it except sudden desertions from the bull ranks, or else a sharp contraction of the money market. Neither of these contingencies are very probable just now, for the public have only recently come into the market, and the surplus holdings of the largest financial interests have not yet been sufficiently distributed, and until they are the market will not turn. The situation in the money market is not yet unfavorable to present bull operations. Though loans are at high-water mark, and though the reserve was cut in half long before the crop demands had reached their maximum, the surplus is still much above the average at this season, and the margin of safety has not yet been exhausted. The money market is just now largely controlled by some financial and banking interests who are engineering the current rise, and who are quite likely to be among the first to appreciate monetary limitations. Nevertheless, the first indication of a turn will come either from heavy inside selling or contraction in the money market. One of the main sources of buoyancy is the increasing supplies of money. Several millions of gold are now on the way from Australia, to be added to our already plentiful stock of gold, the inflationary effect of which upon values is not yet fully appreciated. Our circulation increased over $3,800,000 in September, and is now more than $150,000,000 in excess of October 1st last year. This redundancy of money and its effect upon interest rates is unquestionably one of the most powerful elements in the present bull movement."

MINE STILL AFIRE

Marshfield, Or., Oct. 12.—The Spreckels coal mine at Beavel Hill was opened at 11 o'clock yesterday forenoon, after being hermetically sealed for 97 hours. That afternoon attempts were made to put out the fire, where it was smoldering in No. 6 gangway, but with only partial success, and at 9 o'clock last night the main entrance was again sealed up and the mine closed to smother the fire. When the mine will again be opened is not known, but it is probable it will be only a day or two. Every preparation has been made when it is opened again to quickly extinguish the fire.

It can be confidently announced that the danger is past, and that the great mine is saved. It is believed that Superintendent Chandler has the situation under perfect control, and that the question now is simply one of delay. This is a serious matter at this season of the year, when orders are piling in for winter coal, but it is not so serious as the loss of the mine, as was at first feared.
