RIISING
YOUNG LAWYER

Makes a Great Plea Against Non-Suiting Penland

Was Indirectly Complimented by the Court in Its Comments

The greatest legal contest at this term of court was in the argument before Judge Burnett on the motion for a non-suit in the case of Penland versus the Southern Pacific Co., in a suit for damages for $5000. The able counsel for that corporation presented a strong case in their citations of authorities why the case should not proceed to the jury. C. M. Inman, of the counsel for plaintiff, made the argument to the court and spoke for more than hour in behalf of his client. It was generally remarked that a stronger presentation was never made in this city against a motion for a non-suit. Mr. Inman is a young man, having practiced but a few years, and working on a farm south of the city up the time of his being admitted to practice. He held the closest attention of the court throughout his argument, and what was unusual for an argument over law points, he interested all the spectators, and at times thrilled both court and audience with his eloquence. Inman displayed the greatest industry and scholarship in his array of judicial decisions applicable to the case, and in handling his law points. He speaks in a manner clear, earnest and convincing, has a good voice, and a fine presence, commanding attention by his sound common sense and impressive bearing. The humanity in the case was not lost sight of in the citation of authorities—that is he did not let his argument spread out in the dry and uninteresting manner, and fritter away on the quicksands of technicality, but tried every moment to get at the truth and principle involved. His exposition was logical, and his analysis of the testimony keen and convincing. His bearing toward the court and towards his opponents is frank, fair and gentlemanly, and his illustrations apt and his gestures appropriate. At the conclusion of his argument Judge Burnett looked impressed, and, calling upon the Southern Pacific counsel, stated briefly the arguments of Mr. Inman that he wished the defendants to give him light on. This morning he refused the non-suit and allowed a motion for more testimony for plaintiff. For a young lawyer, right from the plow, so to speak, Inman made a hit in his argument on the Penland case. The impression he gives of being very dignified is naturally a part of his make-up, and he walked behind the plow just as straight as he walks on the street or in the court room. If Mr. Inman makes as strong a plea before the jury he will get a verdict for his client. Salem has many able lawyers who can make a strong presentation of law or facts, but none of the newer additions to the Marion county bar have been such a surprise to the public and the profession as Clarence M. Inman.

ACCIDENT AT SASH FACTORY

Claude W. Townsend met with a painful accident at the sash and door factory of Brown & Lehman this morning, losing the end of his left thumb in the tenon. Dr Morse dressed the wound, but it will be several weeks before Mr. Townsend will be able to resume work. The accident occurred while he was fixing a belt and the end of his thumb was ground off between the root of the nail and the first joint. This is the second accident he has met with in the same mill having lost the index finger on his right hand some time ago.

Former Salem Lady Dies.

Salem friends will be sad to learn of the death of Mrs. Geo. Walterhouse, of Ypsilanti, Michigan, who died at her home in that city, October 3, 1904. Deceased was very well known in this city, where she resided with her husband some years ago, and all who knew her learned to love her for her many good qualities and true character. She was a gifted woman, and was prominent in church and social circles, and it was said had more friends in Ypsilanti than any other one person. About four weeks ago Mrs. Walterhouse was suddenly taken ill, and it was not until a few hours before her death that the illness was considered serious. She leaves a husband, father and three brothers and three sisters.

Dog Poisoner at Work.

The poisoning of dogs is reported from several parts of Salem, but the residents of Yew Park seem to be the main losers. Mr. Clark has lost two fine dogs. Prof. Seely and Mr. Lockhart each one, and there are others. The wretch should be brought up with a sharp turn, and punishment of some kind meted out to him. Perhaps the most cowardly creature on earth is the dog poisoner, and an example should be made of at least one of the scoundrels.

Fraud Order Issued.

Postmaster General R. J. Wynne has issued a fraud order against the Thomas A. Edison, Jr., Chemical Company, which has been doing business from headquarters at Nos. 14-16 Stone street, New York City. The company was charged with obtaining money through the mails by fraudulent pretenses, in representing as a cure-all "The Magno-Electric Vitalizer," an alleged invention of Thomas A. Edison, Jr.
The order of the postoffice department came as the result of a fight made by Thomas A. Edison, Sr., who claimed that the company was making capital out of the similarity of the names of father and son.
The elder Edison began his fight last September in the Federal courts, seeking to prevent the use of the name "Thomas A. Edison, Jr.," and claiming that the device sold by the company was fraudulent. The company won the case before Judge Bradford, of the United States district court at Wilmington, Del., whereupon Mr. Edison took the matter to the postoffice department at Washington.

"Never mind, my boy," said the Pot, "wait until Kettle supplies me with fresh boiling water and I'll do my part. I'm old fashioned but you can't improve on me. Let Cook keep me clean, give me one tablespoonful of Golden Gate for each cup, one for myself and boil five minutes—satisfaction!"

Nothing goes with GOLDEN GATE COFFEE but satisfaction. No prices—no coupons—no crockery. 1 and 2 lb. aroma-tight tins. Never sold in bulk.
