OFFICIAL CENSUS SALEM, MAY, 1904, 12,287.

Republican National Ticket

For President, THEODORE ROOSEVELT, of New York. For Vice-President, CHAS. W. FAIRBANKS, of Indiana. For Presidential Electors: G. E. Dimick, of Clackamas; A. C. Hough, of Josephina; J. N. Hart, of Polk; Jas. A. Fee, of Multnomah.

WAITING.

I wait in the twilight shadows, love, For the kiss of long ago, And the press of your hand on my weary brow, And the smile I used to know, I am tired and footsore, and long is the way, And the years drift slowly by, And the glory of life has slipped from me, And the voice of the world is a cry, The little cot on the windy hill, Through the drift of the years has stood, But where is your step in its lonely halls, Which thrilled its heart of wood? Alas, it is gone, and silence reigns, On the crags the shades creep o'er, And the glory of life has crept from me, Yet I wait for my love of yore.

Come over the wreckage of crumbled dreams, Of days that are dead, sweet olden guest, And bear me away in your tender arms To the Isles of Eternal Rest. -Millidge Sherwood in Sunset Magazine for October.

WATSON ON THE CAMPAIGN.

"Tom" Watson, of Georgia, Populist nominee for President, has issued his letter of acceptance, and it is "a daisy." If Mr. Watson will come to San Francisco, says the Chronicle, and make a speech, we undertake to guarantee to him the biggest audience which the Mechanics' Pavilion will hold. This would not be because San Francisco is full of Populists, for quite the contrary is true. Mr. Watson would get very few votes in California even if he had an electoral ticket in this state, but we all do like to hear some other fellow ranted, and Mr. Watson rants Judge Parker to a turn. Now one must not forget that although Mr. Watson is running on a Populist ticket he is really an out and out Democrat endeavoring to "reform" the party which he loves and purge it of disaster and to lead it through the valley of humiliation out on to the mountain top of unshining and unopinioned advocacy of free trade, soft money and general uprooting of everything. He is doing what Bryan would like to do if he had not incautiously got himself into a box where he can't get out. Mr. Watson is bumping Parker because he says he is too much like Roosevelt. He can endure Roosevelt, because he does not try to hide his iniquity, but comes out in the open like a man and defends it. But he has no respect for Parker, whom he denounces as unimmaculate and as a man destitute of all the qualities that are required for leadership. We commend Mr. Watson's description of the Democratic party and exhortations to the careful study of "the Democratic masses" and ask each individual among them to pick out, if he can, so much as a single sentence and expression, which is not absolutely true.

THE PENLAND CASE.

The jury in the Penland case were out all night and disagreed, and this damage suit will have to be tried again. There is a great deal of sympathy in this community for the Penland family, growing out of the manner of Mrs. Penland's death. The case was argued with such ability on both sides, that it was not easy for the jury to decide either way. One great difficulty in securing a verdict in such cases grows out of the rulings of the court on contributory negligence. No matter how negligent a corporation, the slightest degree of contributory negligence on the part of the plaintiff defeats the action. This rule is harsh and unjust, and while it is the law very few damage suits will succeed. This fact makes the fight of counsel for the Penland family all the more noteworthy. Come help decide who wins the case at the Huskia.

WHAT SHOULD BE THE UNIT?

In the controversy over the so-called local option law, a great deal of energy is expended in the dark, over what is really meant by the law. A local option law, as most people understand themselves and the proposition, means that each integral unit, or voting precinct may vote for or against granting liquor license. But this law was so drafted that the definition of the unit was left to the petitioners. They might ask for a vote by precinct, by a group of precincts or by counties. By another provision of the law, if the county votes as a unit, and the majority vote against prohibition, still those precincts in the county that are carried by prohibition shall be bound by it. If the county carries then those precincts voting against are also bound. It will be seen this all leads to confusion. If the law made the state the unit, that would be clearly a state prohibitory law without concealment or evasion. If the law made counties the unit, and counties could vote prohibition up or down that would be plain and understandable. If the law made precincts the unit, and each precinct could vote license or no license, that would be plain and honest and straightforward local option. The present local option law is a medley of local option and prohibition. It will bring on continuous strife and disorder, litigation and prosecution will multiply under its provisions. In most states the liquor dealers have contended for local option law. In most states prohibitionists have fought tooth and toe-nail against local option laws. According to the prohibition party, the state should be the unit, and the national government should prohibit the manufacture and sale of all intoxicants. According to the Oregon local option managers the county is the unit of prohibition, and a dry county might be ranged alongside of a wet county. According to general understanding local option should be precinct option, except in incorporated cities that have their police power granted under special charters. Oregon had as fair and practical a local option law as there was in any state, and cities could have a wet or dry charter according to their charter. The question, what should be the unit underlies the whole controversy.

THE SACRED ELEPHANT.

(Caspar Whitney in October Outing.) The day was in Siam when the lucky man who discovered a white elephant was raised to the rank of nobility, and in case of capture, very likely was given one of the king's gross of daughters in marriage. In the old days the catching of such an elephant was a signal for a general holiday-making and feasting; nobles were sent to the jungle to guard it, and ropes of silk were considered the only suitable tether for an animal entitled to such deferential treatment. When My Lord the Elephant had rested at the end of his sullen tether sufficiently to have become reconciled to his encompassed condition and respectful man, he was taken in much glory to Bangkok, where, after being paraded and saluted, he was lodged in a specially prepared palace; he was sung to and danced before, given exalted titles, shaded by golden umbrellas and decorated with trappings of great value. In fact, the white elephant was once made a great deal of, but never really worshipped, as some writers have declared. It is still very highly prized by the king because of its rarity, and though capture is unusual enough to create excitement, yet popular rejoicings and honors for the catchers do not nowadays attend the event. But the white elephant continue to stand unemployed in the royal stables at Bangkok, where western ideas are becoming evident in electric lighting and trolley cars. There were four in the royal stables at the time of my visit, leading lives of luxurious ease. The real local consequence of the white elephant rests in it being to Siam what the eagle is to America, the lion is to England—the national emblem. On a search background it forms the Siamese imperial flag, and gives name to one of the highest orders of merit in the gift of the king.

PARKER AND THE NEGRO.

When Judge Parker was asked the question, "Do you believe that colored voters should be allowed to enjoy the voting privileges which the Federal constitution guarantees them?" and answered, "If you have done me the honor to read my letter of acceptance you will find that that point has been covered," he little thought how eagerly would be read that clause of his letter which ought to relate to this subject but does not. He well knew that his letter contained nothing whatever pertaining to the protection of the negro's constitutional rights; not only that, but he knew that only

CHRONIC SORES

Wheeling, W. Va., May 28, 1901. Some years ago while at work, I fell over a truck and severely injured both of my shins. My blood became poisoned as a result, and the doctor told me I would have running sores for life, and that if they were healed up, the result would be fatal. Under this discouraging report I left off their treatment and resorted to the use of S. S. S. Its effects were prompt and gratifying. It took only a short while for the medicine to entirely cure up the sores, and I am not dead as the doctors intimated, nor have the sores ever broke out again. Some 15 years have elapsed since what I have described occurred. Having been so signally benefited by its use I can heartily recommend it as the one great blood purifier. JOHN W. FUNDUS. Care Schmulback Brewing Co.

Chronic sores start often from a pimple, scratch, bruise or boil, and while salves, washes and powders are beneficial, the unhealthy matter in the blood must be driven out or the sore will continue to eat and spread. S. S. S. rescues these old sores through the blood, removes all impurities and poisons, builds up the entire system and strengthens the circulation. S. S. S. is a blood purifier and tonic combined. Contains no mineral whatever but is guaranteed purely vegetable. If you have an old sore write us and our physicians will advise without charge. Book on Diseases of the Blood free. The Swift Specific Company, Atlanta, Ga.

a short time ago in his address in Georgia on the Fourteenth amendment he had avoided this very question leading the New York Evening Post to declare: "For him the great bulwark of the suffrage, with the penalties laid down for discrimination in any class in its exercise, simply did not exist. If wholly to avoid the burning question of the day is to show yourself fit for the presidency, then Judge Parker's address should have sensibly advanced his candidacy."

Then the Evening Post adds: "Can a man named as 'our next President' agree to such a local nullification of national laws? If he can, he is not fit to be President next year or any other year." Judge Parker has simply become a trimmer on the negro question, as he has on every other question that has arisen during this campaign. He is not merely a straddler, he is a coward, unwilling to commit himself upon any public question concerning the great policies which should be put into action to the betterment of our country and its people.

Certainly no truer words were ever spoken by the Evening Post than when it said that such a man is not fit to be President this year or any other year.

X-RADIUMS

J. D. Quillen brings out a new paper at Grants Pass—the Herald. As one editor down there has just been convicted of criminal libel, there would seem to be a field for a live paper there.

The Journal is still the champion of the poor—and friendless dog.

Now, wouldn't we appreciate one floozy paved street, as the rainy season comes on.

Quite a range of enjoyment at Salem, from the Huskia Bee to Romeo and Juliet.

The bald-headed men were not satisfied to see the chorus girls at the opera house last night, but gazed at them on the streets today, and some followed them to the train. That shows how far the bald-headed man will go.

The Coos Bay papers keep talking about the belt line for the cities down there. Do they mean the kind the soldier boys talk about being so fashionable at Manila?

The poor victim of gambling, who works all day to earn a few dollars, only to lose them at the gaming table, should learn that everything in this world is governed by law, and he who attempts to win by chance plays a losing game.

All Republican can take their choice at the direct primary. For recorder—W. A. Moores and S. A. McFadden. For marshal—Jim Lewis, Tom Cornelius, Lon Gesner and Louis Polson.

There seems to be no way to stop them. The young men are determined to vote for Teddy for President. The Young Men's Republican Club will open the ball with a big rally in this city.

The Eugene football team has a man named "Hag." Salem girls generally regret that the two "varieties" will not play in this city.

Sometimes a dog has more friends than any one thinks he has.

If there are any China pheasants that have not had the liver blown out of them by repeating guns, they ought to be set up in glass cases, mounted to be preserved as specimens of the extinct species.

Preparing for Jubilee.

Rome, Oct. 14.—There will be great doings in Rome in November and December for the celebration of another Jubilee of the Immaculate Conception and the holding of a "Marian Congress," at which all countries will be represented. This congress will be held in the vast Church of the Twelve Apostles, and in the halls of the Cancelleria and the Roman Seminary. There will also be a Marian Exposition, which will occupy the eight large halls of the first floor of the Lateran Palace. But the great event of the jubilee will be the Papal Mass in St. Peter's on December 8, and the solemn crowning of Pius X. of the mosaic picture of "Our Lady" in the choir chapel. On December 8, 1854, immediately after the mass, in which the Dogma of the Immaculate Conception was defined, Pius IX. set a rich crown on this image, but the new crown is vastly more precious. It consists of twelve large stars, formed of hundreds of precious stones, and united by an aureole of solid gold. Either during the function in St. Peter's or on the same day in the Vatican, in the presence of the Pope, Perosi's new cantata will be sung and in the evening there will be a general illumination of the houses of Rome.
