AMUSEMENTS.

The Huskin' Bee.

One of the best amateur plays ever given before the footlights of the Grand Opera House was on Tuesday evening, "The Huskin' Bee," under the auspices of the Woman's Club, and directed by Miss Clara Louise Thompson. It was a complete success, and brought out some of Salem's most talented people. Long before the curtain rose, the house was filled by a large crowd, and by 8:15 o'clock the entrance was blocked, and many were turned away.

The evening was one round of enjoyment. The play itself was "one long laugh," and the audience were in continual applause. Much real pain to facial muscles resulted and great merit was manifested in the playing and the stars were well supported by minor parts.

The entertainment was opened with an overture by McElroy's orchestra, and the curtain went up, disclosing the inside of a large barn, in the center of which was a large stack of corn, around which were, seated on bales of hay, sacks of oats, etc., a group of the funniest looking people imaginable. All over the audience you could hear whispers, such as "Look at Bertha Kay," and "Oh see Cooke Peyton," "Isn't Ed Averil a fright?" Upland Hay, the host of the play, was well sustained by Paul Sroat, whose disguise was perfect, and if his name had not been on the program it is to 1 to 1 he could have fooled his own wife. Mrs. Upland Hay was in reality Miss Bertha Kay, and her acting was of great merit. The four little "Hays," Jotty Watson, Joe Wunderli, Roy Bishop and Edward Hogue, were real in their acting. They all hunted industriously for red ears, and Timothy (Roy Bishop) proved the most successful, and made quite a hit with Shucks Cornhopper (Ethel Raymond). The Cornhopper family were all there. Farmer and Mrs. Cornhopper being well sustained by Emma Miller and Edgar Averil. Farmer Cornhopper tried to learn some fancy dancing steps, but when Upland Hay's boy Timothy got to talking of dancing, his father promptly squelched him. There were three little Cornhoppers, Tassel, Lope and Trot, or Clara Foster, Fred Thielsen and James O. Hartzel. Their work was laughable and made a great hit with the audience. Fred Thielsen was especially good, and he and his red bandana were "always there." There were other guests at the "Huskin'" who were even more laughable. John Gee Haw, and his hearty, melodious laugh, was heard at every convenient occasion. In life he takes the part of Mr. Roy Hewitt, but the funny man, or the one over whom the audience nearly collapsed, was Buck Strawpie, (E. Cooke Patton) the glutton, and what he ate was too numerous to mention. His inflated stomach, and the hypnotizing of O'Flannagan, the witty Irishman (Ed. G. Ristine) was simply side-splitting. O'Flannagan was one of the star actors of the play. In every situation he was right there, and had something witty to say. The only time when he didn't say a word was when Dorothy Doughnuts turned her back on him to look at Silas Sit-an-Whittle. These last two characters were sustained by Miss Ethel Harris and James A. Finch. Silas was very fond of "Doughnuts," and showed his passion for simpering at every opportunity. Dorothy had pretty cork-screw curls and a fan, behind which she was want to make goo-goo eyes at Silas. In fact, their love-making was so apparent on the stage, that it attracted the attention of Mrs. Upland Hay and Mrs. Cornhopper, who administered some wholesome advice, which didn't bother Silas one bit. Pompey, the coon, was well sustained by Whit Holman, whose disguise was perfect. Whenever chicken was mentioned, it made his barn-door mouth slobber over. Kitty Clover (Golda Goulet) and Besie Honey Maid (Olive McGee) were both good, and were very popular with the Cornhopper boys and Buck Strawpie, when he wasn't hungry. In fact the whole cast was good, and throughout the play won continual applause. Several handsome (?) bouquets were handed up over the footlights to some of the players.

Upland Hay informed his guests that there was a theatrical company stranded in the next town, and during the "Huskin'" the different players would entertain them, which they did with great credit. The German jig dance was very good, and was executed by Sophia Catlin, Althea Moore, Nellie Thielsen and Madeline Walker. They dressed in pretty Holland costumes, and wore large wooden shoes, but their dancing was light and airy. The Hey Rube dance, by Carl Gabrielson, George Skiff, Ted Holmes and Joe Haines was good. The boys wore typical hayseed costumes, linen dusters, and, with their long beards, presented a very laughable appearance. The song, "Has your mother any more like you?" was perhaps the most popular piece of the evening, for the little tots, Helen Hall, Harry Waterbury, Paula Linn, and Frances Linn, gave it in the most pleasing manner, and responded to the hearty applause by an encore.

"Pinky Panky Poo," a pretty Japanese love song, was by Miss Nina Bushnell, who made a pretty little Jap girl, and sang the song in her usual charming manner, which was received with great applause.

The Lucky Harmony quartet, Harry Munsen, Harry Lucas, Harry Moyer and George Snyder, made quite a hit with their songs. They are always welcomed with delight by Salem audiences. The Stewart quartet gave a selection, and were compelled to respond twice, and were much enjoyed.

Other specialties, which were all good, and well received, were buck and wing dance by J. N. Ristine; songs by E. J. Ristine, George Snyder, Ethel Raymond and Paul Sroat; song, "My Little Love Bird," by little Miss Gallea Humphrey; "Down on the Farm," by Al. Disque; home solo by H. St. Helens and the choruses by the company.

The Egyptian ballet was given by 12 of the most graceful young men in Salem, as follows: Fred Ellis, Otto Miller, W. G. Myers, Frank Catterlin, Frank Douglas, Henry Thielsen, Bob McCarl, Ed. Payne, Frank Rhodes, Will Walton, Walter Ostrander, Oliver Myers. It is a surprise what paint and powder will do, but these young men made very handsome Egyptian maidens. They wore elaborate costumes, and their dance was very good. The demands of friends resulted in so many encores that the program was prolonged.

The cake walk was one of the special features of the evening. The leader, George Washington Brown, otherwise Mr. Samuel G. Young, was the lightest of the light, and he carried his part well. The five couples had a hard strife for the cake. They were all so graceful, and their specialties were so many that the audience had a hard time deciding. It was finally awarded to Miss Neva Griswold and Mr. Harry Mohr, who proved themselves the most agile, although Miss Louise Hoyt and Mr. Claude Hibbard stood a close second. The costumes were elaborate.

The 20th century belles, Althea Moore, Madeline Walker, Mildren Bagley and Eunice Craig, were very graceful dancers, and brought much applause. The chappies, Marguerite Wilson, Claudine Rose, Belle Morrison and Nellie Thielsen, were also very clever.

The crowning event of the evening was when Miss Ethel Raymond, in a jaunty costume as the Sousa Girl, came out and sang a beautiful solo in her magnificent voice, during which the entire cast of players in the "Huskin' Bee" and the other performers gathered on the stage and joined in the final chorus. The applause was deafening, and the audience reluctantly took their leave.

Outside the opera house the crowd waited for their friends, ready to shower congratulations upon them. A few more anxious lads stood at the stage door and watched the scenes behind the curtain, which were very funny. The stage settings were good and the costumes of the players were original and ludicrous.

The Woman's Club are to be congratulated on the success of their entertainment and in securing Miss Thompson, who directed it, who has taken a great interest in it, and make it a success. She has given the play in several other towns, but never with more flattering success than last evening.

SOFTNESS OF SEALSKIN.

Is Rivalled by Human Hair Where Dandruff is Eradicated.

Sealskin is admired the world over for its softness and glossiness; and yet the human hair is equally as soft and glossy when healthy; and the radical cause of all hair trouble is dandruff, which is caused by a pestiferous parasite that saps the vitality of the hair at its root. Newbro's Herpicide is the only preparation that is fatal to the dandruff germ. Without dandruff there is no falling hair, but a luxuriant growth of glossy, soft hair is certain. Scouring the scalp won't cure dandruff. Kill the dandruff germ. Thousands of women see their beautiful suits of hair to Newbro's Herpicide. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c in stamps to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

PERU-NA NECESSARY TO THE HOME.

A Letter From Congressman White, of North Carolina.

HON. GEORGE H. WHITE.

Congressman George Henry White, of Tarboro, N.C., writes the following letter to Dr. Hartman in regard to the merits of the great catarrh cure, Peruna:

House of Representatives, Washington, Feb. 4, 1899. Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, O. Gentlemen—"I am more than satisfied with Peruna, and find it to be an excellent remedy for the grip and catarrh. I have used it in my family and they all join me in recommending it as an excellent remedy."

Very respectfully, George H. White.

Mrs. Nannie Wallace, Tulare, Cal., President of the Western Baptist Missionary Society, writes: "I consider Peruna an indispensable article in my medicine chest. It is twenty medicines in one, and has so far cured every sickness that has been in my home for five years. I consider it of special value to weakly women, as it builds up the general health, drives out disease and keeps you in the best of health."—Mrs. Nannie Wallace.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, Ohio.

HIT BY LOCAL TRAIN

Theron A. Lyon was struck by the southbound Albany local on Tuesday evening near the fair grounds, while returning with a horse and buggy from the country, and seriously injured. The horse was killed and the buggy smashed to atoms.

Mr. Lyon is a druggist in the employ of J. M. Haberly, and had been in the country distributing advertising matter and tacking signs. The road at the point where the accident occurred is almost parallel with the railroad, and, although the track is straight, Mr. Lyon did not appear to see the swiftly-moving train approaching and was caught by it.

The trainmen and passengers felt the jar, but the train did not stop until the fair grounds station was reached. Then it was discovered that the headlight was demolished, and there were other evidences of a wreck. The train was slowly backed to the place, where Mr. Lyon was found with several severe wounds. He was brought to this city at once conveyed to the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lyon, 371 Capitol street. While the wounds are painful they are not fatal, and the injured man will recover.

After futile attempts to call a physician Dr. Mott was at last reached and dressed the young man's wounds, which consisted of a triangular cut in the back of the head, and a severe gash on the top of his head. Both cuts are deep, and are said to be clear to the skull. The thing most feared at present is internal injuries, that have not been as yet discovered.

It is said by two boys who were on the train at the time of the accident, that when the train backed and picked Lyon up he was sitting in the buggy, but seemed to be unconscious, and that, from appearances, he had been thrown from the rig, and had crawled back into it again.

His condition is said to be worse this morning, but is not necessarily fatal if the internal complications do not set in.
