

SOUTHERN OREGON CAMPAIGN

The Journal Editors' Estimate of Results on Tuesday's Election

Young Lady Editor at Gardiner Pays Him Some Compliment--Paradise of Old Inhabitants

Roseburg, Nov. 5.—My impression of the state campaign just closed is that the Republicans will poll about two out of every three votes cast on Tuesday, and if Oregon sentiment is any gauge of results the Republican national ticket will sweep every northern state and several in the south. Many of the younger and business Democrats and Populists will vote for Roosevelt, and some Democrats will not vote at all. Parker was never their choice as a candidate, and he has not increased his popularity, while the shadow of Cleveland hard times has not lost its power to make even Democrats stop and think. This writer closes his speech-making just as he had got his voice in good shape, and winds up his campaign work this evening at Toledo, Lincoln county.

At Scottsburg.
This is one of the most interesting towns in Oregon, from an historical standpoint. It once had 1,500 population in the palmy days when the mining rush was on from California to the Oregon gold fields in the '40s and '50s. Yessels came up to Coos Bay much as they went to Skagway in the days of the first Alaskan discoveries, and then the stream of travel came overlaid up to the Umpqua and out over the trail up the river and across the mountains to where Drain now stands. I climbed the mountain this side of Elkton, over the old trail the miners made in those days, while the stage toiled slowly around on the grade below us. How they must have scrambled over that high peak in the days of the gold excitement, and rushed feverishly forward to reach the coveted diggings. All the way was then lined with Indians, and they were not overly friendly at having the whites invade their hunting and fishing grounds. Many a miner was buried in nameless graves on that trail. There were Indian fights along the whole route, from Curry county into the heart of the Rogue river country. Mr. Hedden, Sr., of Scottsburg, is one of the heroes of that Indian war, having rescued a comrade who was shot full of arrows and helped carry him out to where this stage station now stands. He was a hero in those days, and his devotion is recorded in Oregon pioneer history. Mr. Hedden is in the '90s, and hale and hearty, so he is rewarded with long life for his good deeds and honored by all who know him.

Paradise of Aged People.
Scottsburg is the original home of the "Don't Worry" club, and in any crowd there will be a large number of gray heads. We were told of a dozen venerable Scottsburgers whose total age reaches nearly a thousand years. Put them all together and they would have a longer record than Methuselah. Mr. Hedden's son, John Hedden, is the merchant, postmaster, banker, justice and general referee in all the interests of the neighborhood. He glories in the title of being a Republican and an honest man, and the people trust him with their money and matters without bonds. He was never known to wrong any man or take advantage of him. Although he belongs to no church and uses about the same red-hot vocabulary that old Zach, Chandler

TIRED WOMEN.

Women who are easily fatigued, tired, nervous or sleepless will derive great benefit from a few doses of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. It is a mild tonic for their various organs and strengthens and stimulates them in the performance of their duties. Women everywhere who have tried it freely endorse it. We urge all women to try a bottle. It also cures Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Poor Appetite, Cramps and Sick Headache.

HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS

and President Jackson were accused of laying hold upon at certain occasions, he will probably come as near going to heaven as some of the rest of us. Scottsburg was the starting place of some of Oregon's great men, among them Allen & Lewis of Portland. In the '60 a flood came and swept away the aspiring second city in the state, and once a rival of Portland for the honors of being at the head of navigation. Thus transitory is human greatness. What is first today shall be least tomorrow, and he that would be greatest in the kingdom of heaven, let him become the useful servant of others.

At Oakland.
Saturday afternoon was a busy time with the farmers and business men of this turkeyopolis of Oregon, where more of these birds are shipped in undress form than from all the rest of the state together. But the attendance of voters of all parties was good. One lady brought her little boy many miles through the mud. "She was bound to have him know the truth and have prosperity if she had to go through the mud to get it. The local committeeman, J. A. Underwood, worked hard to get a meeting, and so did Judge A. Stearns, of the large hardware firm of Stearns & Chenoweth. United States Commissioner Z. L. Dimick, a brother of Senator Dimick, of Coos county, is also a loyal worker. I found some Iowa men running the new Commercial bank, of which A. F. Brown is president and Lynn Caton and A. E. Caton cashiers. These gentlemen, with Editor Vernon of the Oakland Owl, are pushing the town through a strong commercial club. I talked expansion and development work as well as politics.

Met a Relative.
I did not know I had any distant relatives in Texas, until I came across D. W. Hoffer of Divide, Douglas county, in traveling to one of my appointments, and he is not near enough related to hurt him any in the estimation of the people, although claiming descent from the same original stock in the old country. Judge Hoffer was district attorney at Greenville, Tex., and has shortly become the owner of a mountain ranch, where he has waxed fat, sturdy, healthy and sassy. He says his first team as public prosecutor in Texas he had six murder trials to handle, and he has scarcely heard of such a crime since coming to Oregon. He loves the freedom from crime in this state and also the political independence of the people. Down there a man dared not scratch the Democratic ticket and be respectable. We hope Judge Hoffer will continue indefinitely to get the benefit of Oregon climate as he has gained from 145 to 210 in about six months.

At Wilbur.
Here we had the large school house upstairs jammed full of men, women and children. Some of the grown-ups and heads of families went to school as children to Rev. T. F. Royal, now of South Salem, and in spite of all worldly influences have remained staunch Methodists, have been prosperous and made good citizens and mostly Republicans. I suspect once in a while one is a Prohibitionist. Judge Tanner of Portland was detained and could not attend this meeting, but Chairman Marsters and Mrs. Marsters drove down from Roseburg, and after the meeting took me back to that city with them. Mr. Marsters was defeated for reelection to the state senate, but that has not soured him in his political activities. He has been out in this campaign working hard as ever, and takes the true view of politics—that what a man can do for himself is but a small part of his rewards. It is what he does do and can do for his friends and associates that counts in the long run, and in this respect he is a thoroughbred.

At Elkton.
This is the old stage town on the Umpqua, and has dreams of being a railroad point some time in the future. It is where a railroad would leave the river to come over to the Southern Pacific, but until the great struggle for conquest among Harriman and his rivals has been settled it is doubtful if Oregon gets any extensions. Elkton has two fine large churches, a large school house, but I was told has only three months school this year. A poor rancher's wife told me this whose four little children walked over two miles to school, and I was surprised at such a state of affairs in a prosperous community. I could scarcely believe it, and as I was on the road away from there before I got the information, was unable to verify her statement. It is almost impossible to conceive that such an old community, so healthy, with two churches, a strongly moral and prohibition community, would have such a travesty on public education. In three months the children would barely learn to read and write, and without prompting at home would forget what they learned in the other nine.

A PITHY STATEMENT

Mr. Geo. W. Putnam Gives an Apt Illustration

HIS VIEWS ON VINOL WORTH LEARNING.

This Is the Preparation That Is Being Much Talked About.

A reporter asked Mr. Geo. W. Putnam the same question that hundreds have asked him in the last few days, "Just tell me precisely, please, why Vinol is better than cod liver oil?"

Mr. Putnam replied in his genial way, "You have given me a rather difficult task. I can explain to you in a few minutes the advantage of Vinol, but to do in a half dozen words would hardly be possible. Perhaps I can illustrate its value, however, in a brief manner. Suppose you had never seen a hen's egg. A man who knew of them should tell you to eat three every day. I do not say that you would, mind you, but I am inclined to believe at the start you would make an heroic effort to get away with the whole thing, shell and all. The meat of the egg would be what you need, the shell rather superfluous. In fact, as a matter of nourishment not quite the thing for your stomach."

"There you are with cod liver oil. In it you have a medicine, or rather in the liver of a live cod there is a medicine known to be valuable for certain forms of wasting disease, a great reconstructer. Doctors have administered it for years. They were like the man who had never seen an egg before. They gave it to their patients just as they found it, shell and all. Yes, that is exactly it. The grease was useless and as bad for the stomach, almost, as would have been the shell of the egg. The kernel, or the meat of the remedy, the vital principles that they were after, were contained in it. Science has stepped in and done exactly what the man with the egg might have done—found a way to separate the healthful interior from the worthless husk."

"Now we have the active medical principles of the cod's liver. We have thrown away the useless encumbrances that formerly encloaked it, namely, the objectionable fat. We have taken this extract, placed it in a delicious table wine, and there you are. Patients who have needed cod liver oil and could not take it, have no trouble in taking Vinol. Why, you would enjoy drinking it yourself, so pleasant is it, if I did not tell you it was anything but a mild table wine. If you needed it, however, for a medicine, you would soon find it to be something different. The medicinal properties of the cod's liver had damage done by disease that are of a wasting nature, and the same principles give strength to the weakened digestion and enable the poor sufferer's worn out stomach to digest and obtain nutriment from everyday food. These same principles are also active disease germ annihilators."

"Yes, I am glad to have you come any time that you care to learn anything more about Vinol. It has already proved itself to be a winner."

Vote Same for a Century.

Uniontown, Pa., Nov. 7.—An unbroken record of father and son having voted for every Democratic candidate for President from the beginning of the party up to the present time is perhaps represented by no other living man than Joseph Hayden, 92 years old, of this city, who will tomorrow support the Democratic candidate for the eighteenth time in a Presidential election and make a crowning record of father and son voting in every election extending over the entire history of 115 years of the United States gov-

THE REAL TEST

Of Herpicide Is In Giving It a Thorough Trial.

There is only one test by which to judge of the efficiency of any article and that is by its ability to do that which it is intended to do. Many hair vipers may look nice and smell nice, but the point is—do they eradicate dandruff and stop falling hair? No, they do not, but Herpicide does, because it goes to the root of the evil and kills the germ that attacks the papilla from whence the hair gets its life.

Letters from prominent people everywhere are daily proving that Newbro's Herpicide stands the "test of use." It is a delightful dressing, clear, pure and free from oil or grease. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c. in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

ernment, from the first election of George Washington.

No other family can show a better record of faithfulness in voting and fealty to their party candidates than the Hayden family. Joseph Hayden's father, John Hayden, was a revolutionary soldier, and from the beginning of political parties in the United States a Democrat, and voted that party's ticket up to his death in 1836, the same year that his son Joseph was first old enough to vote in a Presidential election and thus carry forward uninterrupted the record of Democratic voting.

Faith and Fact.

Faith is one thing and fact another, it sometimes takes any amount of faith to produce one fact. Years of earnest work and faith have produced one fact about medicine that is deserving of mention here. If people who are troubled with general weakness through overwork, dissipation or exposure can get a remedy that will make rich red blood from the food they eat, their return to health is assured. Good blood is the life of the body as well as the nerves. Weak, sickly, pale people who suffer with indigestion, dyspepsia, sick-headache, loss of strength and ambition, having dizzy spells and always tired, can be cured sound and well with Dr. Gunn's Blood and Nerve Tonic. Sold by druggists for 75c per box, or 3 boxes for $2. This tonic acts in a common sense way, curing disease by giving strength to resist it.

For sale by Dr. S. C. Stone, druggist.

Austria's Coming Ruler.

Vienna, Nov. 7.—The most talked of person throughout the dual empire at the present time is Archduke Francis Ferdinand, nephew of Emperor Francis Joseph and heir presumptive to the throne. Attempts are no longer made to conceal the fact that the venerable Emperor is fast sinking, and that it is only a question of months and perhaps weeks before the Archduke will be called upon to ascend the throne of the Hapsburgs and take up the difficult task of maintaining order in the conglomerate empire and preventing it from falling asunder.

The Archduke, though still far from being popular, has succeeded in rising in the public regard, especially since his morganatic marriage four years ago to Countess Chotek. From a rather wild and profligate bachelor he has been transformed into a model husband. The only fear expressed as to his prospective accession to the throne is that he will be a reactionary ruler. He lacks individuality and is known to be under the clerical influence of his wife. He is especially unpopular with the Hungarians and on more than one occasion he has shown great want of tact by wounding their national pride. He may be said to be popular only with the Bohemians, who look to gaining their autonomy under his rule, thanks to the influence of his wife, who is by birth a Czech.

Not a Sick Day Since.

"I was taken severely sick with kidney trouble. I tried all sorts of medicines, none of which relieved me. One day I saw an ad of your Electric Bitters and determined to try that. After taking a few doses I felt relieved, and soon thereafter was entirely cured, and have not seen a sick day since. Neighbors of mine have been cured of Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Liver and Kidney troubles and General Debility." This is what B. F. Bass, of Fremont, N. C., writes. Only 50c at J. C. Perry's drug store.

Former King Marries.

Paris, Nov. 7.—A dispatch from Algiers says that Prince Hamaght, formerly king of Anam, and the daughter of Judge Loah, the chief judicial officer of Algiers, announcement of whose engagement was made some weeks ago, were married there today. The ceremony was performed by the archbishop of Algiers.
