ROBES PROVE COSTLY

C. P. King, the young man who was arrested last night by Officers Lewis and Murphy for stealing an overcoat from R. D. Maplesden, the California representative of the Oregon Nursery company, was arraigned before Judge Judah this morning on the charge of larceny from a building and waived examination. He was bound over until the February term of the circuit court in $300 bonds. Attorney E. D. Horgan appeared for the state.

F. Balhorn, a resident of North Salem, called at the police station this morning, and returned the overcoat which King is charged with stealing, saying that he met the young man on the street last night, who put up a hard luck tale about being hungry and feeling sorry for him, he gave him $3 for the coat. King, when he learned that the coat had been returned, requested the officers to return the money to Balhorn out of the $3.00, which he had when arrested. Mr. Balhorn identified the prisoner, and no doubt remains that he is the guilty party, and will plead to that effect in the circuit court.

Two More Permits.

Two marriage licenses were issued today, William McIntyre and Mrs. Ethel Van Vlack and Samuel M. Wright and Miss Winnie Stitler being the happy parties.

Tonka, the usual cheat for vanilla, costs one or two cents for a certain amount; Schilling's Best vanilla a dollar.

One is strong; the other is fine. One is rank; the other is delicate. Nevertheless four-fifths of "vanilla" is tonka. The 98 cents accounts for it.

EXPORT COBALT TO GERMANY

Grant County Product Will Be Used by the Krupp Company

Grant county cobalt may be shipped to Germany, to be used in the manufacture of the Krupp guns, if the deal now on between the Krupp company and the Standard mine people is successful, says the Pendleton East Oregonian.

Zoeth Houser, one of the principal owners of the Standard mines says the Krupp people have made several offers for the cobalt output of the Standard its famous mine yielding 17 per cent of this metal per ton, or 340 pounds of cobalt to the ton of ore. The cobalt in the raw state is worth about $500 per ton, or $2.60 per pound in the refined state.

A movement is now on foot to put in a mill and reduce the cobalt ores to a marketable product at the mine, and if this is done it will add an important industry to the Grant county mining district.

Cobalt is found with gold in large quantities in the ledges of the Quartzburg group, in cluded in the Standard, and as cobalt is a rare metal, and one that is indispensable in the manufacture of heavy guns and armor plate, the possibilities of the new industry may be imagined.

If the refining plant is installed at the mine it will mean the employment of about 50 men, in addition to the miners, and would enable the company to separate its gold from the ore at the mine, without the cost of long distance shipments to smelters. The Standard mine is the only mine in the district that carries cobalt in large quantities.

Oregon Personalities.

"Major" Reese, who got his start a few years ago as one of the unnecessary committee clerks, is on trial for embezzlement of funds as army paymaster. He is one of the "forced" federal appointments from Oregon.

L. E. Church, of Portland, who was recently mentioned as one of the exploiters of trolley lines all over Western Oregon, is building paper railroads in Western Washington.

Mayor Ben P. Cornelius is up for reelection at Hillsboro.

W. E. Applegate is indicted at Portland for pool-selling.

Alfred F. Sears has been made president of the State Bar Association.

Otto Hansen, Salem mining man, is taking a party into the Gold Creek mining district of Marion county.

NIGHT CLERKS FILL CITY LODGING HOUSE

The city jail was literally full of hoboes this morning, the fruit of a busy night on the part of Officers Lewis and Murphy. Seventeen of these knights of the road answered roll call, and a more nondescript lot could not have been gathered together on any pretext. Among the lot were five boys ranging in age from 15 to 19 years, one Swede, with his belongings done up in a red bandana handkerchief, one coon, who was over six feet tall, Italians and other foreigners galore. One of the lot was a very decent appearing young man, who was armed with a lineman's kit, and he was loudly protesting that he had never been under arrest before, and appeared much relieved when it was explained to him that he was not under arrest, but was just lodged for the night to keep him from being arrested. An Englishman was also present, and, evidently, if not the scion of some noble house, came from a very good family, and seemed greatly dejected when he realized how low he had fallen. One member of the party had a slight scratch on his face, which the officers explained was gained by falling off the top of the engine cab.

After the lodgers had been warned by Judge Judah that they would be promptly arrested if caught in town again, the chief formed them into a battalion, with the coon as drum major, and took up the line of march down High street to State, thence up State out of town.

One article among the belongings of the party, which its owner received back with great joy was a hand book on "Etiquette, or How to Behave in Polite Society." It was suggested that Judge Judah use this as the topic of the lecture which he delivered before the parade started.

Interest in Street Paving.

W. L. Archambeau, representing the Warren Construction Company, of Portland, has established headquarters in the First National Bank building, where he will explain the merits of the Bitulithic pavement, and show samples. The members of the paving committee are anxious that the property owners on State, Court and Commercial streets, should learn of this material, and the method of construction, and ask a careful investigation while Mr. Archambeau is in the city.

Telephone Robbed.

The pay telephone box at the S. P. depot in Albany was robbed last evening, while the office force was absent. It was the work of tramps, and it is thought that only a small amount of money was secured.

A Runaway Bicycle.

Terminated with an ugly cut on the leg of J. B. Orner, Franklin Grove, Ill. It developed a stubborn ulcer unyielding to doctors and remedies for four years. It's just as good for burns, scalds, skin eruptions and piles. 25c at J. C. Perry's drug store.

Woodmen at Turner.

The Woodmen of the World camp at Turner had a jollification last evening. Several members from Albany, Salem and neighboring camps attended.

The Lebanon schools have been closed by a scarlet fever scare.

DEATH

This is a queer headline, is it not? Nevertheless it suits the situation to a dot. It will be death to our doll prices, which have always been twenty-five per cent lower than any other Salem store. We have made a determination to close out every doll in our store this week. Mark our word, we are simply going to slaughter prices. If you buy elsewhere you'll be sorry.

Big Doll Reductions are in order at our store because we need room. We are crowded, and need the space for our big book display. Help us out and save yourself money. Our loss--your gain.

CHINESE MERCHANT MARRIES

Lo Jong Hing, the Chinese merchant, who conducts an Oriental store on Liberty street, opposite the Wiggins depot, wooed and won a pretty maiden with dreamy almond eyes, and she is now on the road to this city. She will arrive on the afternoon overland, and this evening will take Lo unto herself in true American style.

The marriage license, which was issued today gives Lo Jong Hing and Chew Hop the right to enter the state of matrimony with all the pomp and ceremony of the paler skinned brethren.

A friend of the groom said this morning: "Chew Hop heap pretty Chinese girl. She born in San Plisco, and speaks good Melican." The many friends of Lo will wish him a happy life. Full particulars of the wedding will appear tomorrow.

Practical Schooling.

School at the Capital Business College is not divided into terms. We have class and individual instruction, and students are entering constantly. A course of practical study at this school will put the young person in line for greater opportunities. No one can accept a paying position without the necessary preparation. We prepare you. Have you not often missed an opportunity for promotion because of a lack of business training? We can help you. We are always glad to send our catalogue to interested persons, or to talk matters over at the college office. Let us talk with you.

COUNTY COURT ENJOINED

Judge Hamilton, of the circuit court, has enjoined the enforcement of the prohibition order in Coos county on application of residents of Marshfield. The reasons set forth in the application for the injunction were 21, the principal contention being that the petition asking for the election was signed by less than the required five per cent. of the legal votes of the county.

The order made for the election was not made at the regular term of the county court and the clerk failed to post the necessary notices of election. The incorporated cities and towns in the county by special act of the legislature are held to have the right to sell liquor despite the prohibition enactment.

This only leaves three counties in the state where the prohibition law will be in force after January 1st. They are Curry, Benton and Tillamook counties.

Returned From Hospital.

Mrs. Fannie Mulkey returned to her father's home, at 13th and Center streets, today after successfully undergoing an operation at the Salem Hospital. Mrs. Mulkey's many friends will be glad to know that she is improving, and that the chances are for a speedy recovery.

INDIAN QUESTION APPEALED

The question of whether Indians are citizens will be fought out in the United States supreme court. A Grand Ronde Indian was recently convicted of murder in the United States district court, and the attorney for the defense will appeal on the ground that his client is a citizen of the state of Oregon, and entitled to a trial in the state circuit court. This will raise an interesting question, as Indians, under the severalty act have been declared citizens of the state, and have exercised the right of suffrage for several years.
