

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS UNDER GENERAL DIAZ

City of Mexico, Dec. 1.—All Mexico united today in paying honor to General Porfirio Diaz, the occasion being his inauguration as president of the republic, to which office he was re-elected last summer. The ceremonies also included the induction into office of Ramon Corral, the new vice-president.

The inauguration was the most elaborate in the history of the country. The day was observed as a general holiday; business was everywhere suspended and the people gave themselves up to the enjoyment of the occasion. The inauguration ceremonies took place in the assembly hall of congress in the presence of a notable gathering of army officers, civilian officials, members of the diplomatic corps and many other prominent personages.

The day was ushered in with a salute fired by a battery of artillery, followed by the ringing of chimes. The citizens found the city gaily bedecked with the flags of all nationalities, the Mexican banner, of course, predominating.

The spectacular feature of the day's celebration was a procession of historical and allegorical floats. The floats were representative of the various epochs of Mexican history since the conquest, and of the Indian life of the country prior to the landing of the Spaniards. During the day many games and athletic sports were enjoyed by the vast multitudes. Tonight the entire city will be ablaze with illuminations and there will be band concerts on the principal plazas. The celebration will continue to the end of the week and undoubtedly will be hugely enjoyed by all classes, and free performances in all places of amusement.

The inauguration today marks the beginning of the twenty-fifth year of General Diaz's occupancy of the presidency. It is his seventh term, and it will very likely be his last, as he is now in his seventy-fifth year. He was elected in 1876 for the first time, and has served continuously ever since except during the term immediately after his first one, when one of his friends was in office. The constitution was amended then, allowing presidents to be elected for successive terms, and he has been at the head of the government ever since.

QUEEN ALEXANDRA CELEBRATES BIRTHDAY

London, Dec. 1.—Looking as young and beautiful as the average women of three-fourths her age, Queen Alexandra today celebrated her sixtieth birthday, having been born December 1, 1844. The anniversary was celebrated in the midst of a family gathering at Sandringham. During the day her Majesty received many messages of congratulation, as well as a number of presents, the donors comprising the German Emperor, the Czar and Czarina, the King of Portugal, the King of Italy, and the members of the Danish royal family.

In the morning the Prince and Princess of Wales, with their children, visited her Majesty to offer their congratulations. A feast was given in the afternoon to the school children of the parishes of Sandringham, Wolferton, Newton and Dersingham. In the evening the King and Queen gave a dinner party.

In observance of the anniversary the public buildings of the city and the West End clubs were decorated with flags. The customary salutes were fired by the royal artillery in St. James's park and at the Tower. All the ships at Portsmouth were dressed, and the royal standard flew from all the stations and the town hall. Royal salutes were also fired at Malta, Gibraltar and other places.

At Windsor the bells of St. George's chapel and those of the parish church were rung. The mayor sent a telegram of congratulation to her Majesty, and a royal salute of 21 guns was fired in Windsor Great park.

BOUGHT CHRISTMAS PRESENTS

Christmas shoppers have already begun to drop into the city from the surrounding towns. Yesterday, a young man laden with bundles was to be seen in the waiting room of the depot, showing the contents of each one to a companion, but evidently quite pleased to hold them high enough for every one in the room to see them. One was a new hat, another a suit of clothes, another a pair of shoes, etc., until he had displayed the whole lot, and then, with an air of mystery, he lifted a cane about 2 1/2 inches in diameter, and demanded to know what his friend thought of that. Of course, the friend thought it very nice, but seemed to form an absolute affection for it when he learned to his astonishment that the top of the cane could be removed, which was done to prove the fact, displaying a long, thin flask of whiskey cleverly concealed on the inside.

A Frightened Horse

PULLED OUT OF MANHOLE

New York, Dec. 1.—A policeman, a detective and a prisoner were compelled to use a derrick to drag a man accused of attempted burglary from a coal chute in front of the restaurant at No. 304 Canal Street. The man had become so tightly wedged in the hole that when he was finally pulled out he fainted from exhaustion and had to be revived by an ambulance surgeon.

According to the police, Joseph Ganon and James Delaney, waiters out of work, tried to rob the Canal Street restaurant owned by Mrs. Elsie Brandt. They pried off the lid of the coal chute and Ganon lowered himself into it, while Delaney was to act as lookout. Scarcely had Ganon's head disappeared than Delaney noticed a policeman approaching. He replaced the lid of the chute and stood on it looking as unconcerned as possible. The officer looked at Delaney very sharply and the latter becoming alarmed, ran.

After a chase of four blocks, in which Detective Grace joined, Delaney was captured, and the two officers and their prisoner returned to the restaurant. Suddenly the detective heard a noise in the coal chute. He pried off the lid, and the coal smudged face of Ganon appeared. He was so fat that he had stuck in the tube and could get neither up nor down.

The three men tried in vain to get him out, and finally borrowed a small derrick and a block and tackle.

Rigging it over the chute, they managed to get a purchase on the imprisoned man and drag him to the street, where he fainted from pain. He was revived at the station house, and when taken before Magistrate Cornell at the Center Street Police Court he was held in $500 bail for attempted burglary. Delaney was held in the same amount.

APPEARING OLD
Acts as a Bar to Profitable Employment.
You cannot afford to grow old. In these days of strenuous competition it is necessary to maintain, as long as possible, one's youthful appearance. It is impossible to do this without retaining a luxuriant growth of hair. The presence of Dandruff indicates the presence of a burrowing germ which lives and thrives on the roots of the hair until it causes total baldness. Newbro's Herpicide is the only known destroyer of this pest, and it is as effective as it is delightful to use. Herpicide makes an elegant hair dressing as well as a Dandruff cure. Accept no substitute—there is none. Sold by leading druggists. Send for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

DESTROYED LOTTERY TICKET

Then Discovered That It Had Won a Handsome Prize

Sacramento, Cal., Dec. 1.—Morgan Morgan, a well-known local merchant, took this afternoon's local train for San Francisco to make a claim to the agency of a large lottery concern for the modest sum of $15,000, to which he believes he is justly entitled.

There are certain circumstances, however, which may militate against the fruition of Mr. Morgan's hopes.

It appears that Mr. Morgan bought a ticket in this month's drawing. He left the ticket at home and carried the number in his memorandum book. One evening at home he looked over what he supposed was the proper drawing, and finding that his ticket was not in the list threw it into the waste basket. It was burned next morning in the furnace. Down town a little later, Morgan found the correct drawing and discovered that his number as written in his memorandum book had won $15,000. He goes to San Francisco to convince the lottery people that he is entitled to payment on his destroyed ticket. Morgan will be supported in his contention by the party who sold him the ticket.

CUTICLE COMES HIGH

Seattle, Dec. 1.—For the skin that was taken from the body and grafted upon the right leg of his 4-year-old boy, who lost that limb through being run over by a Northern Pacific train, George A. Elskildsen is asking Judge Griffin to award him $1,900. The son's leg was crushed and later was amputated a few inches below the knee. To make the stump heal the father agreed to have skin taken from his own body and made a part of the lad. While the grafting process was taking place the father was compelled to lie in the hospital beside the boy. For this inconvenience and suffering the father seeks to recover from the railroad company. Edwin Elskildsen, the son who lost his leg, has already succeeded in obtaining $11,000 from the City of Seattle. The boy was walking across Railroad Avenue in front of the Union Station when his foot fell into a hole two and a half inches wide and about six feet deep inside the track. The boy and his parents tried to pull the leg out but it was too tightly wedged. The hole into which the leg was pinioned was directly in the rear of a train of cars that were unattached to an engine. While the parents were attempting to pull the lad's leg out an engine was attached to the cars and they were backed over the boy's leg. The leg was lying across the track and the boy had the rest of his body outside of the track. The wheels crushed the leg so badly that it had to be amputated. In the present suit the father asks also for compensation the nursing that he has had to give the lad who is now a nervous wreck.
