Stole Her Hubby.

Dolla A. Keen, of Hillsboro, has brought suit against Susan Keen for robbing her of the affections of her husband, William B. Keen. She alleges in her complaint, filed in the clerk's office Wednesday that during the years 1902-3 she and W. B. Keen, her then husband, lived at Cedar Mills, that county; that during the same years the said defendant, then Mrs. Susan B. Reynolds, a widow, lived on her farm at said town, near the home of the plaintiff; that for 25 years the plaintiff and W. B. Keen lived happily together as husband and wife, and raised a family of children; that during 1902-3 the said defendant wrongfully, wickedly and maliciously sought and made the acquaintance of the said W. B. Keen, and knowing that he was the plaintiff's husband and the father of their children, wrongfully, wickedly and maliciously besought, persuaded, allured and induced the said W. B. Keen to leave and abandon said plaintiff, and he has ever since refused, failed and neglected to support the plaintiff and said children, and she has been compelled to support both herself and them.

Great Britain has more doctors, proportionately speaking than any country in Europe. To every 100,000 persons Great Britain has 150 medical men, Germany forty-eight, Switzerland forty-two and Russia fifteen.

JAP WRESTLED WITH NEW YORK POLICEMAN

Higashi, a Japanese who weighs just 120 pounds and is only five feet three inches in height, appeared at police headquarters in New York City recently, at the request of Commissioner McAdoo, to show the police the value of the wiles and tricks of jujitsu, or Japanese wrestling. Two of the policemen Higashi met were "Ajax" Whitman, the bicycle policeman, who weighs 200 pounds, and Charles Kammer, who stands five feet eleven inches in his stocking feet, weighs more than 200 pounds, and once held the national championship as middleweight boxer. The spacious trial room had been cleared for the occasion. Its floor was covered with thick layers of soft rugs. At one end stood the policemen. On the middle of the floor waited the little Jap. He looked as if any one of the five men present might make a single mouthful of him. His dress was that of the ordinary citizen, including collar and cuffs. When asked if he were not going to undress for the trial, he shook his head smilingly. Then, at a nod from the chief inspector, Ajax stepped forward, having previously stripped off coat and vest.

"I am afraid of hurting the chap," he remarked casually as he approached his antagonist. And again the Jap merely smiled. But when he saw that the policeman took an attitude as if intending to wrestle according to occidental methods he spoke up:

"You had better not resist, or I may hurt you."

"Aw, come off," was the retort, accompanied with a contemptuous laugh. Next moment something happened. But if their lives had depended on it nobody in the room could have told just how it came about. Ajax was lying on his back flat on the floor. The Jap was standing just where he had stood before, having barely moved. Quick as a flash the big policeman was on his feet again. Higashi seemed to step sideways as if intending to get out of the way. As he did so he leaned forward slightly. There was a crouching and mingling of arms. Ajax was heard to draw a deep breath. And once more he was prostrate on the floor.

Getting up a little more carefully and slowly than the previous time, the policeman held back a moment. His face was very red, and there was fire in his eyes. Apparently he was preparing for a serious effort. This time Higashi did not wait for him, but approached with short, quick steps. Body met body, but the struggle lasted only a few moments. The tall form of the policeman was seen to whirl through the air and land heavily on the rugs, back downward. On top of him was the little wrestler, holding on in some curious sort of a way that prevented the man underneath from stirring, although it was plain to the observers that the latter exerted his utmost strength to free himself.

Finally Higashi sprang aside and Ajax scrambled to his feet, purple with rage.

"I'll finish that fellow yet," he cried.

"I don't want any more of him," said the Jap, turning to the chief inspector. "If he makes me wrestle in earnest with him I'll probably break some bones—and I don't like to."

Chapped hands and face, red blotches and eruption prevented by using Rose and Cucumber Jelly (Curosa Cream).

OPEN YOUR EYES

To the fact that the old-fashioned wood stove is OUT OF DATE

YOU CAN SEE

That a gas cooking or heating stove is the handiest thing imaginable

THEY ARE CHEAP

And fuel is cheap. Only $2.00 a thousand when gas is used for cooking or heating in conjunction with illuminating gas. If you have no gas in your house attach a resistance coil to your electric light wire. It will give you plenty of heat.
