OFFICIAL CENSUS SALEM.

THE MACHINE AND BROWNELL.

No man has served the political machine, or the powers that be, more faithfully at this session than Senator Brownell.

He delivered the votes from his county in both house and senate that made things go, and he has taken a back seat.

Senator Brownell had it in his power to mar the program at the most critical point of the performance but he refrained.

If there is a political machine in Oregon it owes Brownell a debt of gratitude, a debt not to be paid by passing resolutions.

Will Brownell be made governor or be sent to congress or the United States senate? What will the machine do for Brownell?

In the mean time watch what Brownell will do with the machine. He can be trusted to do things with the common people at all times.

SENATOR FARRAR DECIDED THE MATTER.

The deadlock that threatened to disrupt the upper house of the legislature was broken by Senator Farrar, of Marion county.

The Senator was allied with old political friends on the other side from the Kuykendall organization, but decided not to block legislation.

He was visited by the chairman of the congressional committee, by the state committee from this county, by the city Republican organization and the heads of the Republican organization and party workers from all parts of the county, and advised to take that step.

In doing so he acted the part of a gentleman, and informed the rest of the opposition of the step he had decided to take. This enabled them all to go into the regular Republican caucus and settle the matter.

Senator Farrar showed good judgment in this step, as it puts the Marion county delegation in a position to protect their constituents.

The immense interests of this county, as the center of the state government, in legislation, made such action wise and necessary to Senator Farrar.

Senator Kuykendall is to be congratulated on this easy and peaceful solution of a situation that if prolonged would have caused factional bloodshed in the political woodshed.

IS THIS IRONY OR SARCASM OR FACT?

It should be known to the people of Oregon that the great liquor interest of the state is endeavoring to organize the legislature. Naturally, it doesn't want to be "hurt." IT HAS SECURED THE ORGANIZATION OF ONE BRANCH, and is at work on the other. The liquor interest is a great interest, and feels that it is entitled to consideration.

The above editorial paragraph from a prominent Portland newspaper may be burlesque orrodomontade, but it reads like a cool, deliberate statement of fact.

Perhaps the newspaper that makes it would be willing to give some facts to back up its assertion. The legislature as a sovereign body cannot sue for libel.

An indictment doth not lie against the representatives of the commonwealth in a free country, but the indictment may lie. A newspaper that will make such a bold statement must have some facts to rest on.

According to the above statement, as the senate has since organized, it would

"A multitude of small expenditures makes you poor;
Just so, a multitude of small savings makes you rich."

The habit of saving is the direct road to prosperity. We solicit the accounts of those who wish to save a part of their income and place it where it will be earning something. Interest paid on deposits of one dollar or more, which can be made at any time.

Savings Department,
Capital National Bank

be interesting to know if the liquor interest has also organized that "branch."

Will not the newspaper that says with such coolness that the house is in the hands of the liquor dealers also tell the people whether the booze gang have captured the Oregon state senate. Let us know where we are at, and what we are to expect.

NOTHING FOR THE FARMERS.

The farmers of any neighborhood have to build their own roads by labor or taxation.

The convicts are all right to make staves for a corporation, to cut cordwood in competition with the farmer, to make brick in competition with common labor, to build capitol and asylums.

But the convicts must not break rock or work on the public highways. That would be too immediately beneficial to the farmer.

The lawmaker should look the facts in the face, and when some one tells you the convicts cannot be worked on the roads, ask him why they can be worked at almost everything else?

If the convicts could be worked in two gangs on the rock crusher they would produce thousands of tons of road material that the farmers would place on the roads and the country would get out of the mire.

It is feared that it is altogether too plain and intelligent a business proposition for great statesmen and politicians to understand. But a few of the commoner kind of legislators from the cow counties ought to be able to get it through their think-boxes.

X-RAYS

What you don't understand in this newspaper is irony.

For a "liquor dealers' organization" the house is not such a bad crowd.

When Walter Toozee takes hold of the string and pulls, the senate organizes.

The hours of chief justice rest lightly on the shoulders of Charles Erastus Wolverton.

Why does the house adjourn so often? Because it is a liquor dealers' organization.

Carter, of Benton, is a notable exception in one instance—he is not here to raise salaries.

The members have got their stamps and can now write to their wives, if they have any.

If you read something in this paper that seems radically wrong, consider that it is irony.

West, of Tillamook will secure a special act to enable his county to build a new court house.

Plain, honest John Richie, the farmer from Marion, has the ear of the house, if he hasn't the house by the ears.

The governor favors a short session. Speaker Mills favors a short session. The Journal favors a short session. That settles it.

The members better pass the appropriation bills, a flat salary law and adjourn. But they won't do that. The vacation is too pleasant.

Hermann, of Coos and Curry, is the busy man of the house. He makes no speeches or motions, but has a stenographer at his elbow, whenever there is an opportunity.

As a matter of record, the statement should be recorded that the unsuccessful candidate for speaker had the loyal support of all the Salem and Portland newspapers. But it was a business man's campaign.

Paul Wallace, the new chairman of the street committee, and Mr. Kurtz, the new street commissioner, are evidently not very good politicians, or they wouldn't allow those street scrapings to go onto the city's own property. Those gentlemen ought to go in and play politics or they will be counted N. G. Is the graft of grading up rich property owners and streets belonging to "abutters" really off?

Forced to Starve
B. E. Leach, of Concord, Ky., says: "For 20 years I suffered agonies with a sore on my upper lip so painful sometimes that I could not eat. After vainly trying everything else I cured it with Buckle's Arnica Salve." It's great for burns, cuts and wounds. At J. C. Perry's drug store; only 25c.

Mrs. Mary Toner, of McMinnville, died on Tuesday.

Remains to Be Burned

Berlin, Jan. 11.—Dr. Sylvester's executor, Consul Schiff, received a message from the dentist's daughter, Miss Florence Sylvester, who is studying medicine at the University of California, asking him to look after her interests. The message was unnecessary, as Sylvester had made her his sole heir. The funeral services will be held Friday. The remains will be cremated at Hamburg Sunday. A representative of the Kaiser will be present.

BIG
PLACED

Rapid progress is being made in the installation of the Golden Drift's gigantic centrifugal pump, at the mine near Grants Pass. This is the five-step affair designed by W. I. Fleck, and for the manufacture of which a San Francisco company had to get entirely new patterns and apparatus, as it exceeds in size anything ever turned out of the shops of that city. Mr. Fleck believed that the efficiency of five steps would be increased enormously over two and three-step pumps common in former centrifugal patterns.

The four turbines, which have a nominal capacity of 1600 horsepower, have been in place for some time. A large quantity of pressure pipe, to be used in delivering water from the pump to the placers on the hill, is arriving. This pump and the battery of turbines is but one unit of the several that can be placed below the great penstock built by the Golden Drift Company.

Asked for Information.

Washington, Jan. 11.—The senate today agreed to a resolution asking the interstate commerce commission to furnish information relative to the alleged excessive or exorbitant railroad rates unjust discriminations and violations of the published rate, with records bearing on such cases.

Glass Works Burned.

St. Louis, Jan. 11.—The plant of the St. Louis Plate Glass Company, at Valley Park, 20 miles west of here, was totally destroyed by fire today. The loss is $250,000.

Refused to Advertise

A special to the Indianapolis News from Marion, Ind., says that after a hard fight of seventeen years against competitors who advertised, Gunder Bros., dry goods merchants, the oldest mercantile firm in Marion and at one time the largest retail house in northern Indiana, have given up the hopeless struggle and sold out their business.

When gas was discovered in Marion the town began to grow rapidly, and competition in all business was soon encountered by all the old local merchants. The new merchants advertised, but many of the old established firms were slow in believing that it was necessary for them to use printers' ink, as they knew nearly every man in the county. All of them who are now in business concluded that it was necessary to advertise in order to hold what trade they had and to increase it, except Gunder Bros., who absolutely refused, claiming it was money thrown away. The firm had the best business site in the city, but the store was never filled with shoppers. Thousands passed and repassed the place day after day without stopping. The firm carried an excellent line of goods and treated customers well, but only a few farmers and some of the old citizens of Marion patronized the place. The store is now closed for good.

Most merchants now agree that advertising is a necessary and that the best medium is the local paper.

M'MILLAN WILL NOT BUILD PORTAGE ROAD

Governor Chamberlain is in receipt of the following letter from A. J. McMillan, United States engineer in charge of the construction of the Dalles-Celilo portage road.

The Dalles, Or., Jan. 10, 1905.
To the Honorable Portage Commissioners, Salem, Or.:

Dear Sirs: I hereby respectfully tender you my resignation, to take effect as soon as convenient for you to replace me. My health is such that I do not feel justified in trying to remain on the work any longer than until you can send some one to relieve me. Respectfully yours,

A. J. M'MILLAN.

The commission has not yet accepted the resignation, and they are loathe to lose such a valuable man. The matter has been taken up by correspondence, and, if unable to satisfactorily arrange with Mr. McMillan, a meeting will probably be called in a few days, his resignation accepted and a new man selected. It is true Mr. McMillan's health has been very poor recently, and he was quite ill at the last meeting of the portage road in this city.

RESERVISTS
AMUCK

Berlin, Jan. 11.—A fatal clash between the Reservists and the local garrison reports from Smolensk, Russia, that 3000 Reservists who were en route for the Far East, ran amuck, rioted and plundered parts of the city. The governor ordered the local garrison out and fired on the Reservists, killing 200 and wounding several hundred more. The colonel commanding the Reservists and five of the junior officers have committed suicide since from shame.

Movements of the Chadwicks.

Jacksonville, Jan. 11.—Miss Mary Chadwick, daughter of Dr. Chadwick, arrived on the steamer Algonquin from New York today. She went to the home of her uncle, R. H. Chadwick, who dislikes notoriety, and denounces the local press for publishing the Chadwick affairs. He admits going to Europe with Mrs. Chadwick two years ago.

Arrangements are being made at Albany to close all stores next Friday from 11 to 1, for a noonday revival service at the opera house.

NEW YORK FASHION LETTER

But few genuine novelties are apparent in new jewelry. Pearls occupy the foremost position, either in collars of many strands, kept in place by diamond clasps, or in long ropes wound many times around the neck. So great is the rage for wearing jewelry that imitations have reached a remarkable degree of perfection, and those who cannot afford the real resort to the imitation, usually difficult to detect. Small watches remain marvels of beauty as ornaments for elegant waists and the sole novelty is a small diamond ball containing a tiny watch, which is attached to the end by a long chain.

Pendants occupy a prominent place in popular favor, and are attached to bracelets, brooches, necklaces and sometimes to rings. The variety is immense and range in prices from costly and exquisite jeweled creations to—well, there must be something for the bargain counter. One of the newest charms for a necklace or bracelet is a motor lamp, the light a ruby. Chain bracelets are much liked again, and never seem more charming than when supplemented by a dainty watch set with jewels. Bracelets of heavy chain set with mock jewels are affected by many well-dressed women. Of brooches, the variety is great, but there are no distinct novelties this season.

Keen Blasts render furs the important topic of the hour. What nature provides against cold must always take precedence over any substitute, therefore all good managers are taking advantage of C. C. Shayne's January offers, and purchase at a reduction. The more so since his reliability is beyond question, a fact which cannot be too strongly emphasized, as in for the buyer must depend upon the rectitude of the dealer. The woman of moderate means who has looked longingly at a Persian lamb jacket or a black lynx has may now possess it at a price far below what was early in the season, as a liberal discount is now being allowed on every kind of fur.

For Evening Hostery embroidery in small, neat designs is eagerly welcomed by its many admirers and daintiness reigns supreme. Hand lace and combinations of colored crepe embroidery on silk hose. Imitations of de china as well. Other styles formed of steel beads and spangles, reach the tiny gold, silver or crystal beads, and are shown in many of these have one, two or three two or three seasons the ostrich feather, true jabot.

er fan is again revived, but a good deal smaller than heretofore. The empire fan comes in spangled gauze, hand-painted designs on a filmy foundation, and also in the richest lace. They owe their popularity to some extent to their convenient size, and then, too, everything pertaining to that special epoch in France possesses a certain prestige.

This pretty evening waist, the illustration of which is supplied by the Modes Fashion and Pattern company of this city, is developed in blue moire, trimmed with black chiffon velvet. Evening waists are this season made either moderately low with elbow sleeves or else extremely décolleté, without even a suggestion of an arm covering. Fichus, especially the Marie Antoinette, are a charming accessory, and scarfs of crepe, mousseline or chiffon, the ends stamped in lovely floral patterns, rival the Pouter scarfs, which, although beautiful, appear hard by comparison.

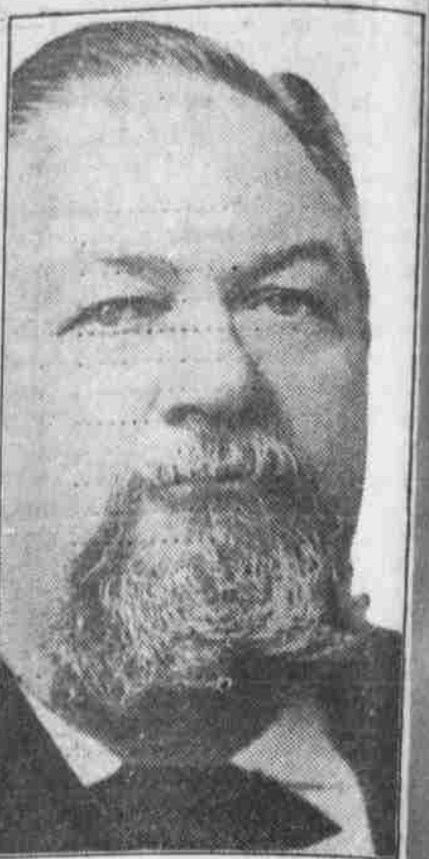

The Graceful Jabot Collar is eagerly welcomed by its many admirers and comes in heavy or sheer lace and combinations of colored crepe and steel beads and spangles, reach the tiny gold, silver or crystal beads, and are shown in many of these have one, two or three two or three seasons the ostrich feather, true jabot.
