AMUSEMENTS.

TONIGHT.
Edison—Vaudeville.
COMING ATTRACTIONS.
Grand—Paul Gilmore in the Mummy and the Humming Bird.
New Edison Theatre.
Another large crowd gathered in front of the Edison last night. The one act farce is a great laugh producer, in fact it is just one long scream.
The Wheeler & Wilson trio are very clever and versatile. They are good singers and dancers. Little Gladys was clever as the little waif, and Lou Wheeler cracked new puns. Jay Bogart made a hit as Weary Willie. Harry Moyer had a new song, and the Edison-o-scope showed a new film of aquatic and heavenly scenes. The Edison is certainly holding up its record as a purveyor of good, clean vaudeville.
Chosen Athletic Manager.
Pat McArthur, of Rickreall, has been chosen graduate manager of all State University athletics, with authority to suggest plans to under-graduate managers. He is invested with the power to change schedules and outline plans to make all athletics pay for themselves.—Folk County Itemizer.

CHEMAWA TELEPHONE LINE

The Chemawa Mutual Telephone Company, which was organized recently, met today, and completed their organization, and adopted a set of by-laws, and are now getting down to solid work. They have arranged for a large number of phones and will have their line completed to Salem within a week. When the system is finished from Salem to Chemawa, then the matter of extending the line will be looked into. The officers of the new company are confident from the encouragement already received, that in the near future they will be able to add some very good rural routes to their system, and when all have been connected with the Salem line it will be of great importance to the business interests of the Capital City. Many new subscribers are already wanting to get in on the ground floor, but the company are not, as yet, quite ready for the extension of the lines, but they hope in the near future so to be. The wire and poles are all purchased, and the work of construction will be pushed as hard as men can do so to complete the line this week.

A Pleasant Way to Travel.

The above is the usual verdict of the traveler using the Missouri Pacific railway between the Pacific coast and the east, and we believe that the service and accommodations given merit this statement. From Denver, Colorado Springs and Denver there are two through trains daily to Kansas City and St. Louis, carrying Pullman's latest standard electric-lighted sleeping cars, chair cars and up-to-date dining cars. The same excellent service is operated from Kansas City and St. Louis to Memphis, Little Rock and Hot Springs. If you are going east or south, write for particulars and full information.

DRAGNET TAX BILL

Will Result in Securing Taxes From Some Great Delinquents

Mr. Settlementer on the passage of this bill said this state had been very liberal in disposing of lands to wagon roads and for school purposes, and many of these lands have never paid taxes. The attorney-general is authorized to look up such property and employ counsel to make values and sue for taxes and pay for same out of proceeds. The bill passed.

Senate bills were put to second reading.

House—Tuesday Afternoon.

A bill has been advanced to third reading to better enable bees to protect themselves.

California Murder Case.

Auburn, Cal., Feb. 14.—The defense in the Weber murder case was begun this morning. In the opening statement of the attorney for the defense he intimated there would be no effort to prove an alibi nor a plea of insanity could be made, but contented himself with the statement that he would refute the testimony of the prosecution's witnesses. The detectives Ryan and Ragan were exploited. Judge Low and pawnbroker F. A. Rose, all of San Francisco testified that the reputation of pawnbroker Carr, who testified he sold Weber the pistol with which the murder was committed, was bad. Upon cross-examination he admitted that the reputation of all the pawnbrokers was bad. Myrtle Hall and Lottie Smith contradicted Mary Clark's testimony regarding Weber's movements the night of the crime. Fred Rechenbacher and Tom Shaver testified that they made a search under the Weber barn, and did not see the pistol. This was two days before the gun was found. Under cross-examination they said they were looking for money, which Weber was said to have stolen from the bank, and thought nothing about the pistol.

PORTLAND PORT BILL VETO

Sustained and Bill Failed to Pass Over Governor's Objections

Special order at 11 o'clock was the governor's veto of the Port of Portland bill, that he charges is a bill to legislate Messrs. Spencer and Thomas out of office.

Bailey, of Multnomah, spoke for the bill, which was an effort to secure harmonious working of the board. He read the law of 1903, which provides that the legislature shall fill vacancies. The board had a right to declare vacancies if a commissioner refuses or fails to attend the meetings of the board for a period of 60 days. Captain Spencer had failed to attend, and his place had to be filled by the legislature. It was not legislating him out of office. In relation to Thomas he had stated that his integrity was called in question. He read a letter showing that Thomas had demanded money, read an affidavit from a contractor, J. B. Bridges, to the effect that Thomas demanded $250 from him as contractor. This was supported by other affidavits and statements of expert accountants. The only effect of sustaining this veto was to keep a dishonest man on the board. He claimed that a number of bills had passed and been approved by the governor naming senators as various commissioners and as regents of schools.

Newell spoke for the veto, explaining the work and purpose of the commission. He charged that the control of the board was a matter of constant strife between the rival factions at Portland. He favored amending the bill to allow the members to be elected. Kay said it was strange that if Thomas had been such a grafter he had not been removed. He wanted the veto sustained, and to have this matter removed from machine politics.

Smith, of Josephine, said that the supreme court had held that appointments of members of the legislature on such commissions were not lucrative positions, and, as the Multnomah delegation was agreed on this measure, he believed the bill should be passed over the veto.

Bailey showed that the plan of Newell and Kay, to have the board elected, to get it out of politics was a mistake of judgment, as that would make the board partisan, and all of one faction. The charge that it was a factional board was not true, as there were Simon men on the board.

Roll call on the bill showed 38 ayes, 21 noes, McLeod absent. So the veto was sustained.

HUMANE CAPTAIN.

Saves Life of Yellow Dog. Although Boat Was Behind Time.

The steamer Oregon arrived on time this morning from up the river. She was unable to make Corvallis on account of the low stage of the water, necessitating a stop over night at Albany, and it is said that if the cold weather does not break that the water will drop so low that Independence will be the highest point reached.

The boat was a little late on the up trip last night on account of a delay which was not on the schedule. Shortly after passing Fairfield Captain Rabe heard the cries of some animal, which seemed to be in distress. Upon investigation it was learned that a small, yellow dog of mongrel variety had fallen over the river bank, which is high at that point, and landed upon a ledge, just above the water's edge, and was unable to make his escape without swimming the river, which would have been nearly impossible. Although the captain was a little late, and to pick up the canine would mean the loss of time, humanity won, and the steamer went to the rescue, the dog was placed upon the top of the bank, and the steamer came up the river behind time.
