OREGON DEVELOPMENT LEAGUE

do business unless it can make connection on fair terms with the lines at center at Portland. Every effort to build this road, as well as other needed ones, is balked or thwarted by the objections of the main lines, which refuse to take cars from the independent roads on terms that can be met; and this fact being known, efforts to raise money are strangled, time and again a railroad to Tillamook had been beaten in this way—

But the country wants these short auxiliary lines. It needs them. It needs them for local development. If the main lines will build them, well and good. But they will not; and each of the main lines puts a veto on initiative by another, and at the same time veto on independent enterprise.

Mr. Killingsworth's bill may not have any chance to be drawn from the 'cold storage' in which it has been laid away; but it represents something nevertheless. It is reasonable that we should have these local lines, and it is not reasonable that the great lines, which are in combination against others while they contend in bitter opposition among themselves, should obstruct them.

"By these conditions our coast counties remain sealed up. Dog-in-the-manger does the business. So in regard to development in various parts of the country east of the Cascade mountains. That no road has been built, all these years, from Riparia Wash, along Snake river, to Lewiston, Idaho, is another peculiar outrage. The great lines will not do these things nor permit others to do them. Such conditions call forth, while they justify, measures of legislation like that of the Killingsworth bill; which, whether altogether wisest and best or not, at least are protests against continued strangulation."

What Does This Mean?

The above was not written by an anti-railroad man but by an editor who has always been their champion, and who is at present a director in one of the largest railroads in the country. He has himself been turned down on all his efforts to secure extensions of short lines in this state. He says the railway dynasty controlling the trunk lines in Oregon have for years prevented all extensions. He says all efforts to build independent or competing lines in Oregon have been called off by the managers sitting in their offices in the New York skyscrapers—not by the officials of these roads in Oregon, who must carry out the orders of the non-resident millionaires who levy their tribute on Oregon and keep this state under the wet blanket. The Killingsworth bill lifts one corner of that blanket for the first time in many years. All efforts to secure such legislation in the past has been throttled, and it was almost a miracle how it ever got through this time. (Laughter.)

Will Give New Lines a Chance.

"The Killingsworth bill will let capital into the state and give new branch lines a chance. The great trunk lines lying like a dead tree across our state would have to handle the cars and make traffic arrangements on a competitive basis for new lines to Tillamook, from Salem to Dallas, from Roseburg to Coos Bay, and for the extension of short lines in Eastern Oregon. The dead trees of Oregon would sprout and bear green and thrifty branches and with what the transcontinental lines were doing for us, Oregon would enter upon a policy of railroad expansion and cease to remain a blank in the reports of new mileage published annually from all the states in the Union. The agreement of the 'railway dynasty' in Oregon to make this neutral territory was off. 'The gentlemen's agreement, to not permit any branch lines or extensions in this territory for all time to come had been rudely broken into by the legislature. The policy of strangulation that has prevailed too long has been suspended and this state is going to develop and expand and build up industries on a scale not dreamed of by the present generation. The population and wealth of the world is going to flow to us from the outside and we are going to be permitted to develop from within.

State Will Protect Itself.

"The conquest of the Santa Fe system, and the report that the Standard Oil magnates had secured control of the Harriman lines, has aroused people in Oregon to a greater pitch of excitement than ever before. As the Oregonian says, every interest of the farm, mine, factory and workshop lies at their mercy. The people of Kansas have taken up arms to fight the octopus to a finish and the legislature has decided to establish an oil refinery and the President has backed them in their fight. It is going to take the best men in the legislature of this state and the best men we can send to congress to check this awful power that by over-capitalization on one side robs the producer and citizen with unjust rates, and by under-valuation cheats the state, the county, the city and the schools out of a just share of taxes. If the policy of strangulation on the part of the railroad syndicates, coupled with the policy of absorption into the hands of the 'SYSTEM' is continued, there is nothing left for the people but by employing the initiative and referendum to enact a maximum rate law and a just assessment law and protect themselves against further robbery and injustice." (Great applause.)

On motion a unanimous vote of thanks was given Colonel Hofer for his presentation of the subject, and after listening to other speakers the large gathering at the court house adjourned. Colonel Cooper declared it was one of the most profitable gatherings of the league ever held and that the club would favor forming a league of the valley clubs to take up the matter of promoting the building of the trolley lines and branch lines of railroads.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

Lost All by Fire.

(Stayton Mail, February 17th.) Tuesday night, about 8 o'clock the home of Perry Bressler and family, a short distance north of the station at Kington, burned to the ground, and the entire contents was consumed.

Mr. and Mrs. Bressler had come to Stayton to attend lodge, leaving their little boy and Oliver Baker at the house. They decided to go to King's store for a while, and left everything apparently safe. They had been at the store but a short time, when they noticed the blaze, but before they could reach the house it was too far gone to save anything. The people of Stayton donated nearly $60 to the unfortunate people, and this sum will be added to by the neighbors and friends about Kington and along the line of the C. & E. R. R., where they are well known.
