

STATE HOUSE GOSSIP

Hundreds of New Laws Coming Before the Governor

Many Applicants for the New Places on the Bench and One Prosecuting Attorney

The governor and secretary of state are working hard taking care of the grist of bills left by the legislature. Nearly 100 bills are yet to come into their hands, about 75 having come to the governor since the legislature ended Friday, and some were yet to be signed by Speaker Mills, who came up today for that purpose. The secretary of state has employed A. O. Condit, of this city, to have the laws copied for publication, so as to have them printed by the time they go into effect. Mr. Condit has done this work for many years, and is said to be a very competent man for the task.

Money Held Up.

As the general appropriation bills contain no emergency clause appropriations for the state institutions will not be available until May 18th. But Secretary Dunbar says there will be money enough for the payrolls, but some claims will have to wait until that time arrives.

It is expected that there will be a referendum taken on the general appropriation bill, as its items cannot be referred to the people separately. If a referendum is taken all the appropriations will be tied up until there is another election, and the state would be compelled to pay interest on a million or more for two years. A bill was prepared by the secretary of state to provide for monthly payment of employees, and that will go into effect in May. Under that payrolls will be made up on the 10th of each month.

Important Appointments.

As a result of legislation at this session there are many applicants for appointments at the hands of the governor to an additional judgeship in the second district one in the eighth district, and a new district attorney in the tenth district. It is a cold day when the lawyers do not create a few offices for their especial benefit and the accommodation of the dear people in the way of ermine wearers and prosecutors.

Lawyers Seabrook, of Marshfield, and Harris and Bilyeu, of Eugene, are named as possible associates for Judge Hamilton, of Roseburg, but, under the bill, the man named must reside, after appointment in Lane, Lincoln or Benton counties. As that district already has a Democrat on the bench, it is thought the governor will name a Republican for the additional judge. In the eighth district Sam White, Wm. Smith, M. D. Clifford and J. B. Messick are mentioned by redhot telegrams, and letters to come by the thousands. For district attorney in the tenth district Clarence Crawford, J. A. Burleigh and Turner Oliver, the attorney for the beet sugar trust are being petitioned for.

PAULSON RETURNS MONEY

Clerk Says Legislature Paid Him More Than His Share

Thomas Paulson, clerk of the agricultural committee during the recent session of the Oregon legislature, erstwhile representative from Multnomah county, having served two terms as ex-assistant state printer has returned $57 of the sum appropriated for his services on the committee mentioned, to the secretary of state saying that he cannot conscientiously keep it, not having earned it.

January 20th, Mr. Paulson went to his home in Portland, with the intention of spending Sunday there, the legislature having adjourned, but while walking up the front steps of his dwelling he slipped, fell and broke his hip. He was under the doctors care for 19 days, and was unable to return to his work at the capitol until the last week of the session, when he appeared upon crutches and resumed his duties.

When the appropriation bill was made up Mr. Paulson's time went in for the entire session, but he has refused to accept the entire sum, saying that he cannot conscientiously do so, having been absent for 19 days.

He explains that the legislative body appropriated the sum while in ignorance of his absence, and he does not think it right that he should be paid for work which he did not do.

Mr. Paulson was a member of the house for two sessions, and worked for State Printer Stinson in 1865, when two men did all of the work of the office on a foot-power job press. He is an old man, having lived 72 years.

ITALIAN WILL HANG

Supreme Court Affirms Decisions of Lower Court

The supreme court today handed down two decisions:

In the case of the State of Oregon, respondent, vs. James G. Lee, appellant, which was appealed from Washington county, Hon. T. A. McBride, judge, the action of the lower court was reversed and a new trial ordered by Justice Bean.

The defendant was tried and convicted of the larceny of a calf. From the judgment sentencing him to the penitentiary he appeals.

In the case of the State of Oregon, respondent, vs. Frank Guglielmo, appellant, which was appealed from Multnomah county, Hon. John B. Cleland, judge, the action of the lower court was affirmed.

Guglielmo was the Italian who murdered his sweetheart, Freda Guarascia, and was tried and convicted of murder in the first degree, and sentenced to hang by Judge Cleland. He appealed to the supreme court from the judgment.

Justice Moore ruled: "Believing that the defendant had a fair and impartial trial, in the manner prescribed by law, and that no prejudicial error was committed, the judgment is affirmed."

At The Dalles.

Everybody was glad to greet their old friend, J. H. Cradlebaugh, on the streets of The Dalles today. Mr. Cradlebaugh is now located at Merlin, a small mining town in Southern Oregon, where he is employed by a mining company. He is also interested in the Merlin Townsite Company. Having recently met with an accident, he is not looking so well as usual. In his inimitable way Cradlebaugh tells that two weeks ago he had gone up into a printing office to pay a bill, when the accident happened. He draws therefrom the moral that "a fellow should never pay a printing office bill."

Inasmuch as the accident happened as he was leaving the office, his friends who have read his splendid newspaper articles, draw a different moral—that Cradlebaugh should never have left the newspaper office. In coming down the stairs his heel caught on a protruding nail, and he fell headlong, striking on his head, which rendered him unconscious for two hours. He was also confined to his bed for ten days, and has not fully recovered from the shock yet. A friend who had heard of the accident before says that when Cradlebaugh came to and found surgeons giving him a hypodermic injection, the ruling passion asserted itself, and he feebly said: "For heaven's sake, doc, don't remove my vermiform appendix." And it stayed. Cradlebaugh would joke at his own funeral.—The Dalles Chronicle.

Mr. Cradlebaugh was formerly of The Journal force.

Japs Discover Glands.

The world in general is greatly indebted to Japanese scientists and chemists for many valuable discoveries, the latest of which is of a very interesting nature.

There is in the body of each of us a pair of organs known as the adrenal glands, yet unknown to the public, though life could not continue without them. It was a Japanese chemist, Takamine, who isolated from these glands the invaluable substance which they produce for the benefit of the rest of the body. It is known as adrenalin. It is the most powerful of all chemical agents for stopping hemorrhage. It will arrest bleeding from the nose when everything else has failed. Not that that much matters, for the nose is accessible to mechanical means, but adrenalin has already saved many lives that were oozing away in a thin red stream that no surgeon could reach.

RUSSIAN STUDENTS REDHOT

St. Petersburg, Feb. 20.—While Cosacks were parading the streets, especially the Nevsk prospect, in the neighborhood of the Kazan cathedral, the usual districts for student demonstrations today a great mass meeting of students and professors of the St. Petersburg University assembled to discuss the question of joining the strike, and inaugurated similar instructions. The auditorium of the university was packed. Student orators denounced the course of the government, declaring promises would no longer avail, the government must grant freedom of speech, conscience and press, and convocation of the national assembly. They also demanded ending of the war. The professors were unable to suppress the rising feeling. At an overflow meeting the revolutionary spirit ran riot, students even glorifying in the murder of Prince Sergius. The meeting took a recess at 3 o'clock, the students singing the "Marseillais," carrying red flags.

Cheyenne, Feb. 20.—In the Cody divorce case this morning Banker McArthur, of North Platte, testified that at a banquet a North Platte, in 1903, Cody called for coffee, but he chef gave him whiskey instead, which made him dreadfully sick. This was one of the occasions on which Cody alleged that his wife gave him poison. Witness for defense today testified that Mrs. Cody never used profane or vulgar language, never drank or kept liquor about the place, was kind and indulgent with Cody and members of her family, and always treated Cody's guests with consideration.
