Republicans Were Out General-led in the Last Legislature
by the Opposition

"Portland has no candidate for a state office, but will make a demand for the next United States senator, and will probably get that," said a Republican very prominent in the councils of the party in this city today. "It is conceded that Linn county will keep the state printer for another term, and the attorney-general will stay with Douglas. Lane may reach out for the governorship, and Marion is conceded to have a claim on the representative in congress, if Hermann loses his grip. The warfare on Hermann comes from a source that is malignant and deep-seated. Although they admit they have no proofs against him, they will never let up their prosecutions until they have downed the old man. But this is all speculation," admitted the political sage, and then added: "The party has abundance of material for candidates, but it is sadly in need of better leadership and wiser counsels. The Republicans owe it to this strongly Republican state that they get closer together, and quit playing into the hands of the Democratic politicians. In my opinion there has got to be an organization independent of Portland, that will embrace the interest of the farmers and of the interior of the state, and give the people a better business administration in all departments and reduce state taxes about 50 per cent."

State Taxes Too High.
"The absence of Republican leadership and leaving all factions and members to play a game of fast and loose, with the opposition under the keen political direction of Governor Chamberlain, has cost the state dearly. Appropriations for the last two sessions have run beyond all bounds, and state taxes have gone up with a rush that is felt by the taxpayers all over the state. There should have been a definite program of retrenchment, as was outlined in The Journal for months before the session. The Republicans should have passed at least one revenue bill to offset the increase in demands on the treasury. They might have known the miners would not bear the heavy load imposed on them by the Eddy bill, and they should have passed the Sonnemann bill, to tax the gross earnings of the untaxed public service corporations. But that is too late to speculate about. The fact remains our state taxes are unconscionably high, and the blame is about equally divided between the legislature and the state officials. We must have a new alignment, new men in the leadership of the party, and a new program, if the party is to weather the storm of dissatisfaction."

Portland Leadership a Blank.
"There is dissatisfaction with the failure of Portland Republicans to provide any leadership in the legislature. In both houses there was failure of concerted action in the interest of the party or of the people. The Republicans of the rest of the state were looking to Portland for leadership, and got none. There were not even conferences between the members of the Multnomah delegation and the Republicans of the interior feel that they are abandoned and neglected at a critical time in the history of the party. TORMENTING
RHEUMATISM

Columbus, Ohio, May 20, 1903.
Six years ago I had a severe attack of Inflammatory Rheumatism. I was laid up in bed for six months, and the doctors I had did me no good. They changed medicines every week and nothing they prescribed seemed to help me. Finally I began the use of S. S. S. My knee and elbow joints were swollen terribly, and at one time my joints were so swollen and painful that I could not close them when opened. I was so bad that I could not move knee or foot. I was getting discouraged, you may be sure, when I began S. S. S., but as I saw it was helping me I continued it, and to-day I am a sound well man and have never had a return of the disease. S. S. S. purified my blood and cured me of this severe case of Rheumatism after everything else had failed. I have recommended it to others with good results.

The poisonous acids that produce the inflammation and pain are absorbed into the blood and Rheumatism can never be conquered till these are neutralized and filtered out of the blood and system. S. S. S. goes directly into the circulation and attacks the disease itself. It purifies and restores the blood to a healthy, vigorous condition. It contains no potash, alkali or other strong minerals, but is guaranteed entirely vegetable. Write us and our physicians will advise without any charge whatever. Our book on Rheumatism sent free.

little handful of Democrats in each branch were able to play with measures and carry the house or senate with Republican aid. With only ten Democrats in the house and five Democrats in the senate, Governor Chamberlain, in the absence of Republican leadership, got special legislation, and was able to defeat Republican party measures. The strong hand of a man like Senator Fulton was missed very much, and in the house the Republican minority was in close touch with the Democratic leadership under the direction of the governor. The result was the failure of Republican measures, and the utter absence of any definite program.

The Fraternal Insurance Orders.
"Representative Smith's bitter attack on the A. O. U. W., while it may have contained some truth, has, taken in connection with the governor's veto, put the leaders of the Democratic party on the defensive, so far as that powerful organization is concerned. But the truth of that attack is denied, and the more conservative of the fraternal orders were a unit in demanding legislation to correct abuses from carrying too cheap insurance on the one hand, and the pursuing of obsolete methods on the other. The leading fraternalists in the state drew up the Kuykendall bill, and agreed on its principal features. The Masons, Odd Fellows and Knights of Pythias were especially exempted from its provisions, and it was adapted to making more safe and certain the operation of the purely benevolent and insurance orders that carried death risks and benefits. Whether the bill was perfect or not it was demanded by the orders that are doing a large business in fraternal insurance, and they resent the veto, and will carry on a campaign to secure the passage of this law, which they say is now the law, or will soon be, of every other state."

From Well, Making a Daring
Rescue of Dumb Brute

Great excitement prevailed at 155 Court street yesterday afternoon when Mac Parker, the young man who lives at that place, returned home from his work. His mother appeared excited when he came in the door and commanded him to listen to a strange noise which appeared to come from under the house. Mac is of an inquiring turn of mind and he was not content to listen to the noise without finding the cause. To this end he crawled under the house and there, to his astonishment, found an old unused well, which he did not know was in existence before, and in the well something was floundering around and crying most piteously. Upon investigation this animal proved to be a small black water spaniel dog, which had fallen into the water, and was unable to get out. The well was about 20 feet deep, and had about six feet of water in it, and there was no visible way of descending into its depths. Mac is not a lightweight, and did not like to attempt a rescue down a clothes line into the depths of the black well, especially as a candle was promptly extinguished, when lowered into its depths by the gas. He is humane, however, and set about to effect some kind of means for rescue, when he was accosted by "Pete," who works at Sherman Thompson's, who wanted to know what the trouble was. Upon learning, he immediately pulled off his coat, and was soon lowering himself into the well by the clothes line. The trip down was soon made, and the dog secured and saved, then came the more difficult feat of climbing back out of the well. It was accomplished at last, boy and dog both on solid ground again and the well securely boarded up. Pete displayed great courage, and deserves great credit for his nerve in the rescue. The dog, it has been learned, belongs to a carpenter who lives on 21st street, who recently moved to Salem from the East, and, it is surmised, the while on an exploration tour of his new home town, the animal met with the mishap.
