FARMER SEVERELY INJURED

While driving along the railroad track on Trade street, near Willamette University, yesterday afternoon, at about 2:30 o'clock, J. A. Hewitt, a well-known farmer, residing in Polk county, met with a serious and painful accident. His horse became frightened by a freight train, shied, and turned the buggy sharply around, so that the wheel became jammed. The sudden turn threw Mr. Hewitt out of the rig in such a manner as to break his left leg and hip in several places.

The horse, after throwing Mr. Hewitt out, started to run, but was stopped by Ronald Glover, a student attending the University, before any damage had been done to the buggy.

The injured man was at once removed to the Florence Sanitarium, where his wounds could be properly cared for.

Mr. Hewitt has two sons attending Willamette University, whom he was on his way to see at the time of the accident.

COURTEOUS YOUNG PEOPLE

By Cynthia Grey.

There are little courtesies which young people are likely to forget, and which are marks of good breeding.

To answer pleasantly and honestly when spoken to; to rise when an elder friend or stranger enters the room; to look out always for the comfort of the aged; to recognize anyone who may enter the room; to be ready to say "good-bye" to whoever may go out of the room; to say thank you for a favor; to be careful not to tread upon people's toes; if it is unavoidable an excuse should be made at once, but if it is mere carelessness no amount of excuses will make the offense pardonable; to listen, not interrupt, when someone else is talking; to be interested in what a companion is saying, not to listen to him with one ear, and to someone at the other hand with the other. Nothing is so disconcerting as to have someone laugh suddenly at what someone across the room is saying, when he is supposed to be listening to a serious story before him. To be cheerful, to be helpful, to be generous and generous always.

This means that these courtesies must be practiced at home. The boy or girl who is ill-mannered at home, will be found out when he goes away from home.

The Good of the Child.

(By Cynthia Grey.)

A high school superintendent at one time suddenly forbade whispering. Then every evening after school hours he asked the pupils to report on misdemeanors. About half of them lied about it. The superintendent expected this, but continued the practice. What would be the effect upon the truthfulness of that band of young people?

A teacher once ordered a little girl to refrain from whispering. The pupils had been in the habit of turning to each other and quietly asking any question that they considered necessary. Unconsciously this girl whispered. The teacher called her to the board, dictated and made her write the following: "I solemnly promise never again to whisper as long as I remain in this school." The teacher knew, or should have known, that she was making the girl promise what was almost an impossibility. What would be the effect upon the child and upon the school?

A mischievous youngster tripped another boy as he passed him in the aisle. For this misdemeanor he was made to remain the whole of the morning in a small 3x4 room, where there was neither light nor air. What was the effect upon that child's health?

To humiliate a child is the aim of some teachers. Anything that makes a child feel that he is bad, injures him. To punish a child merely for a slight misdemeanor makes him a hero among the children, and places him, in his own estimation, upon a pedestal of honor.

There is no part of teaching that requires more thought and tact than does discipline.

A well-known educator once made this remark: "If we had more hearts in our teachers and fewer brains in their heads, we should have better schools and a better world."

A skilled disciplinarian is a better teacher than is the man or woman who knows books, but does not understand the heart of a child.

ATAXIA FOUR YEARS

FOLLOWS MALARIA CONTRACTED IN SPANISH-AMERICAN WAR.

Victim Had Become Helpless When He Tried Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, But Was Cured in Four Months.

Because he did not know that there is a remedy for locomotor ataxia, Mr. Ariel endured four years of weakness, pain and the misery of thinking his case to be incurable. Any druggist could have told him that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, after establishing a reputation for the quick and thorough cure of ordinary nervous disorders, had been used in cases ataxia with results that were astonishing even to the makers of that great nerve remedy.

The Dr. Williams Medicine Company investigated these cases carefully, found the facts beyond dispute, and the cures lasting. Then the victims of locomotor ataxia were told to despair no longer. In the hope that it may shorten the misery of others similarly afflicted, Mr. Ariel makes the following statement:

"At the outbreak of the Spanish-American war I went with Company B, Eighth regiment, M. V. M., into camp at Chickamauga, and while there my system became thoroughly poisoned with malaria. When I was mustered out, I carried the disease home with me. After awhile locomotor ataxia appeared."

"How did the ataxia begin?"

"I first noticed a pain in my ankles and knee joints. This was followed by a numb feeling in my legs. I was at work in the Portsmouth, N. H., navy yard when the symptoms first appeared. At times I had to drag myself around; my legs would shake or become perfectly dead."

"Did you ordinarily have any difficulty in walking?"

"I had had constant trouble in getting about in the dark. I kept light burning in my room at night, as I could not balance myself in the darkness. Even with the aid of a light I wobbled, and my movements were so unsteady that I would reach out and catch hold of chairs to prevent myself from falling."

"How long were you a sufferer?"

"Four years in all. During the last three years I was confined to bed, sometimes for a week, again for three or four weeks at a time. When I was lying down the pain in my back was frequently so severe that I had to be helped up and put in a chair to get a little relief. I had considerable pain in my bowels, and no control over my kidneys. The worst of all was that the doctor would give me no hope of recovery."

"How were you cured?"

"I read in a newspaper that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills had cured locomotor ataxia, and one or two of my friends spoke to me about them. In the fall of 1903 I began to take them for myself, and I had not used more than one box before I found that the pains in my knees and ankles were greatly relieved. Four months afterward I became a perfectly well man, and I am today enjoying the best of health. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cured the locomotor ataxia, and drove the malaria out of my system, too."

Mr. Edward H. Ariel lies at No. 43 Powwow street, Amesbury, Mass. Every sufferer from locomotor ataxia should try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills without delay. There is no reason why they should not do for others all that they have done for Mr. Ariel. They also cure sciatica, neuralgia, and partial paralysis. Any druggist can supply them.

Why They Sent.

The Astoria News says: James Hennessy Murphy, who delivered the oration at the St. Patrick's day exercises held in this city, perpetrated a very good joke in his opening remarks. He said he had been around town during the day—that he had visited the docks, the lawyers offices and newspaper offices—and that he had found this rather a breezy community. "And I have wondered why you sent to Portland for an orator," continued Mr. Murphy. "I have come to the conclusion that you were really not short of orators, but that you just wanted to see if there was one Portlander who could leave the city without consulting his bondsmen." The joke brought down the house, and it was some minutes before Mr. Murphy could proceed with his address.

Don't buyers get pretty tired of the fake ads of dealers who advertise to "go out of business," "leave town," "move away," "have sold" and all those descriptive methods? Can their goods be any better than their word?

and beaten, in a labor riot, until covered with sores, a Chicago street car conductor applied Bucklin's Arnica Salve, and was soon sound and well. "I used it in my family," writes G. J. Welch, of Tekonsha, Mich., "and find it perfect." Simply great for cuts and burns. Only 25c at J. C. Pory's drug store.
