Injured in Runaway.

Albany, Or., March 29.—George Beamis, a pioneer resident of Oregon, and one of the best-known figures in this section of the valley, met with a runaway accident last evening that may prove fatal.
 Mr. Beamis, in company with Henry Hector, had started home from Albany. They were on the steel bridge which spans the river here, when in endeavoring to pass another rig, Beamis' team became frightened and began plunging. The carriage tongue was broken and the rig overturned, throwing the occupants out.
 Mr. Beamis struck on his right shoulder, his heavy companion falling on top of him. The under man suffered a broken collar-bone, fractured ribs and serious internal injuries. Splinters from the collar bone pierced the lungs, and the man's condition is serious. His advanced age, about 78 years, renders his chances for recovery slight.
 Mr. Beamis is one of the heavy taxpayers of Benton county, living a few miles from Albany. He has been a miner, speculator and farmer, but in recent years has devoted his attention to dealing in blooded stock.

Edison—Vaudeville.

Lively Bill at the Edison.

Good talent can be seen this week at the Edison. There is some plot to each act, which makes them all the more interesting. The Wiley Ferris Co. offer a novel Irish specialty, in which they introduce some very good aerobatics and posturing; they also use a trained dog, which adds novelty to the act. The little boy is particularly clever. Morris & Morris, who have played the principal theatres of the East, also offer an act full of good things not seen before in Salem. Miss Morris makes a capable "Irish" woman, a character not easy to assume properly, while Mr. Morris assume the character of a Highlander of the comical type. Morris Jones talks about funny things, and sings "Does This Train Go to Heaven?" in good voice. Still more variety is lent by the Edison-o-scope, which dashes off a film and winds up a show worth many times the admission.

DRAMATIC AND MUSICAL

Entertainment at the Grand Opera Houses, Thursday, March 30th.

The dramatic and musical entertainment to be given Thursday, March 30th, at the Grand promises to be a big success. The program is in fine shape and tickets are selling rapidly.

The farce, "Mr. Bob," is a splendid comedy in two acts. It has a strong plot, and is full of wit and extremely laughable and humorous situations.

Miss Bertha Kay will be seen in the title role, as the star specimen of a yachtswoman, "Mr. Bob."

Miss Ethel Harris, in the soubrette part of "Patty," the stage-struck maid, Miss Harris will be strongly supported by Mr. Ray Chapler, as "Jenkins," the English butler.

Mr. James Mott, in the ridiculously pathetic role of "Brown," the man who "came down."

Mr. Wallace Trill, as "Phillip," and Miss Eileen Fawk, as "Katherine," his cousin, and Gussie Farnel, as "Aunt Becky," splendidly portray their characters.

60 Voices in Comic Operetta.

The comic operetta, to be given by 60 young people, presents a scene of school cadets and girls enjoying a holiday picnic. Two little peddlers, a little old man and little old woman, appear, selling notions, candy, pop-corn, etc. They create a great deal of sympathy among the young people, who respond generously to their entreaties, but are amazed at the deception of the old couple. Although the policemen are somewhat troublesome, the merry company enjoy themselves until they bid farewell and return home.

The little old woman will be taken by Galatia Humphreys, who, with her splendid voice and dramatic ability, cannot fail to charm. She will be strongly supported by Myron Clinton, as little old man.

Beside the farce and operetta, character songs will be given, also an artistic club drill by ten little girls.

The entertainment is a public library benefit. Seats 50c, 35c, 25c. Box office open Thursday morning.

Remember to see the farce at the Grand, Thursday, March 30th.

Brooklyn Dog Show.

New York, March 29.—Over 300 exhibitors, representing practically every well known kennel in the East, from Vermont to Texas, are entered in the third annual bench show of the Long Island Kennel club, which opened today in Brooklyn and will continue until the end of the week. A novel feature of the exhibition is to be a series of indoor whippet races, in which the best racing whippets of New England will be matched against the pick of the local packs in a series of championship contests.

Leave Salem Friday.

Only two more opportunities to hear the Oliphant sisters at the Methodist church, as they leave for California on Friday. The interest and large attendance at these services nightly has not diminished from the first. Much good has been accomplished, and the sweet songs of these gospel singers will linger in the hearts of the people for many days.

A hobo tinker at Baker City filled up on nose paint, and then laid down on the railroad track.

When found by the police he begged to be let alone, and said he wanted the next train to run over him. He was put in the bat cave until sobered up.

J. C. Dunn, a resident of Grants Pass, drowned in the Rogue river.

He was in a small boat in company with another man. The boat was swamped in a rifle, and in an instant both men were in the water. The other man reached the shore, but Dunn was unable to swim in the strong current.

Roseburg amateurs will put on the farce comedy of "Captain Rocket," with a strong cast.

College Baseball Today.

New York, March 29.—East and South there are a number of important baseball games among the college teams today for the fans to read about and ponder over. In this section the chief games scheduled are those between Princeton, Pennsylvania and Ursinus at Philadelphia, and Yale and Manhattan at New Haven. At Nashville the Cornell team lines up against the nine of Vanderbilt university.

Here is an awful warning to women: Mrs. Alice Carlon, of Grants Pass, put a box on a chair, and, in trying to stand on it and dust the upper part of the room, slipped and fell, breaking two of her ribs, and sustaining other injuries.
