OFFICIAL CENSUS SALEM,
MAY, 1904, 13,287.

THE KIND OF MAN THE PRESIDENT LIKES.

Systematic in his great pressure of business, methodical in his pastimes, a human machine of tremendous capacity of daily output, geared to habits of the utmost efficiency, this is George B. Cortelyou as seen by the world with which he comes in official contact. His is a sound mind in a body as sound as a nut, and he so orders his pastimes that they help to keep him fit for all he has to do. More than one guest of the President has had cause to regret that he had neglected hard riding or enthusiastic walking in his earlier years, and many a smile of pleased appreciation of an afternoon's outing in the company of this most distinguished citizen has masked sore bones and aching muscles.

Here is where Mr. Cortelyou has proved himself capable of keeping to any pace cut out for him. In his office no amount of work has been able to daunt him, while on the road he is trained to come up smiling no matter how rough or long the going may be. In his unostentatious way, he is one of the best sportsmen in Washington, and his condition is that of an athlete keyed to the hour. He learned to ride as a youngster who had to have a "leg up" to mount, but once on board he stuck like a burr. Riding was an ardent pastime with him many years before he had to follow a hard-riding President.

He picked up boxing, and became uncommonly handy with the gloves, until prizes for amateur sparring matches were among his athletic laurels. The deep-chested, broad-shouldered, compactly-muscled build of him was ready for the making of a good all-round athlete, had Mr. Cortelyou cared to specialize in this glittering field. Though a hard-working youth, however, he found time to become a more than respectable swimmer and oarsman. It was a training that bred in him the love of outdoor exercise, and which sends him out on long, swinging walks whenever he can get free from official harness. "That man is as strong as a horse and works like a team of 'em," was the admiring tribute once paid by Speaker Cannon to the untiring industry of Mr. Cortelyou. He is a notably consistent figure in a vigorous "outdoor administration," and in his own quiet way preaches the gospel of the "strenuous life" by his daily works.

STEFFENS IN NEW JERSEY.

"New Jersey is selling out the rest of us," writes Lincoln Steffens in his story of "New Jersey: A Traitor State," in the April McClure's; and this revelation of what he has found in Jersey he considers the most important of his articles. It is so big a subject that only the first half appears in this number: How the state became the business tenderloin of the country, a financial pirate's haven where cronies receive their "Letters of Marque," is here set forth; the great trust-making industry itself is reserved for discussion in another paper. It is a breathless narrative, this story of the enslavement of a state; it goes so far back and is so appallingly complete. There has been no one of Mr. Steffens' articles that gets nearer to the root of things. Manipulation of the law began so early in New Jersey that its history is a primer of the game. The simple methods of a century ago are he index to all political corruption.

It was in New Jersey that "special privilege was born. The state was founded upon the loyalty of 'special business interests.' Railroading in its infancy 'organized' Jersey politics for its own, and today the state bows to the same master.

The fight with the railroads, perennial in Jersey, has been a vicious circle of struggle, success, relaxed vigilance and renewed subjection. Mr. Steffens says of the conditions the fight has bred: "When we began to investigate New Jersey, we thought we knew something of political and commercial corruption. We have charted some of its submerged depths; but here we have found ourselves at times off soundings and the leadman has reported no bottom."

EASTERN CROOKS COMING.

Reports from various towns and cities of the state show that many burglaries are being committed, apparently by men who are recent arrivals from the East and South. The officers at St. Louis have notified the police on the coast to look for hundreds of sure thing men, burglars, forgers and other criminals.

Salem has escaped from the workings of the advance guard of this motley crowd of scoundrels, but for how long remains to be seen. The local officials, both city and county, are well prepared to put a quietus on the operations of

WINK AT VICE.

There is a modern tendency to wink at vice. Youth for pleasure, age for business, and old age for religion, is the abominable adage we frequently hear. The lusts of the flesh are regarded as mere juvenile indiscretions, youthful follies, which mature age will correct. Sobriety, morality, religion will all come in due time.

The wrecks that strew life's seashore are too common for experience to give much credence to that idea. Without doubt the horror of this world is that vice which roars its monuments in graveyards, hospitals, garrets, cellars, impaired minds, and polluted hearts. Men and even women regard this vice lightly. Fashionable and moral society places no ban on this horror. The guilty and polluted wretch mixes with the purest in the land, and is assured of a glad welcome. The rake and the debauchee can defy all justice but that of heaven. So long as virtuous women are willing to receive moral outcasts as their companions and friends, men will get worse, instead of better. It rests largely with the young women of this country if society is to be raised out of this swamp of sensuality to the secure heights of virtue, where God's sun shines, and God's breezes blow, and all life is beautiful.—Albert E. Vert in The Pacific Monthly for April.

DAVID MEYERS DEAD

David Myers, one of the best known pioneers of the state, passed away at his home in Seio, Linn county, on Wednesday evening, after a lingering illness, aged 71 years, 1 month and 17 days.

Deceased was born in Trumbull county, Ohio, February 16, 1834. He came to California when he was 20 years old, and since that time has been identified actively with the West. He was moderately successful in the mines, and located in Portland in 1858, where he worked at the carpenter trade, removing the same year to Stayton, Marion county, where he managed a sawmill. He resided there until 1862, when he located a farm east of Seio, and has followed the business of woodworking, owning and operating a sawmill at Seio from 1883 until his health failed him in 1895, when he retired.

Mr. Myers was married to Miss Mary P. McDonald, who was a native of Andrew county, Mo. She passed away in 1883, leaving the care of 12 children, some of very tender age entirely to the father.

Ten of the children survive him. They are: Jefferson D., president of the Lewis and Clark fair board, Portland, but formerly a well-known resident of this city; Maudie, a teacher in the Lincoln school of this city; Lola, a trained nurse at the Salem hospital; Mary, Elizabeth and Laura, of Portland; Eva, Myrtle, Flora, and Edward D., all of Seio. Nathaniel Clay and Ida died several years ago.

Mr. Myers was a member of the Masonic fraternity and the Workmen. He was highly esteemed as a citizen and neighbor, and in his death Oregon loses a good man, the family a kind and tender father, and the fraternities an unselfish brother. The funeral was held at Seio today.

KANSAS PIONEER DEAD

Abraham Smith died at his home near Liberty, Thursday, April 6, 1905, at the age of 74 years. Deceased was born in Guernsey county, Ohio, in 1831. He removed to Kansas at an early date, and was prominently connected with the history of that state, holding many positions in the county where he located. He was known among his friends as "Honest Abe," and had the reputation of being as true as steel in a business and political way.

He hunted buffalo and other game with Buffalo Bill, and took a leading part in legislative affairs in Kansas, being a member of the legislature of that state for several terms.

About 20 years ago he retired from an active business life and removed to Arkansas for his health. In 1892 he came to Oregon, and has lived here ever since, a number of his children having settled near Salem prior to that time.

He leaves a wife and seven children, as follows: Mrs. Abraham Smith, of Liberty; Joseph N. Smith, Dr. F. E. Smith, Mrs. J. N. Smith and Mrs. Earl Jory, of Salem; D. M. Smith, of Portland; Albert and Kelly Smith, of Osborne, Kansas.

The funeral was held from the country residence this afternoon at 2 o'clock and the remains interred in the City View cemetery.

PAINFUL PERIODS

Suggestions How to Find Relief from Such Suffering.

While no woman is entirely free from periodical suffering, it does not seem to be the plan of nature that women should suffer so severely. Menstruation is a severe strain on a woman's vitality. If it is painful or irregular something is wrong which should be set right or it will lead to a serious derangement of the whole female organism.

More than fifty thousand women have testified in grateful letters to Mrs. Pinkham that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound overcomes painful and irregular menstruation.

It provides a safe and sure way of escape from distressing and dangerous weaknesses and diseases.

The two following letters tell so convincingly what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will do for women, they cannot fail to bring hope to thousands of sufferers.

Miss Nellie Holmes of 540 N. Davison Street, Buffalo, N. Y., writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"Your medicine is indeed an ideal medicine for women. I suffered misery for years with painful periods, headaches, and bearing-down pains. I consulted two different physicians but failed to get any relief. A friend from the East advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I did so, and no longer suffer as I did before. My periods are natural; every ache and pain is gone, and my general health is much improved. I advise all women who suffer to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."

Mrs. Tillie Hart, of Larimore, N. D., writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"I might have been spared many months of suffering and pain had I only known of the efficacy of Lydia E. Pinkham's Ask Mrs. Pinkham's Advice—A Woman Best Understands a Woman's Ills.

Vegetable Compound sooner; for I have tried so many remedies without help.

"I dreaded the approach of my menstrual period every month, as it meant so much pain and suffering for me, but after I had used the Compound two months I became regular and natural and am now perfectly well and free from pain at my monthly periods. I am very grateful for what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me."

Such testimony should be accepted by all women as convincing evidence that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound stands without a peer as a remedy for all the distressing ills of women.

The success of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound rests upon the well-earned gratitude of American women.

When women are troubled with irregular, suppressed or painful menstruation, leucorrhoea, displacement or ulceration of the womb, that bearing-down feeling, inflammation of the ovaries, backache, bloating, (or flatulency), general debility, indigestion and nervous prostration, or are beset with such symptoms as dizziness, faintness, lassitude, excitability, irritability, nervousness, sleeplessness, melancholy, they should remember there is one tried and true remedy. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once removes such troubles. Refuse to buy any other medicine, for you need the best.

Don't hesitate to write to Mrs. Pinkham if there is anything about your sickness you do not understand. She will treat you with kindness and her advice is free. No woman ever regretted writing her and she has helped thousands. Address Lynn, Mass.

William Woodley Dead.

William Woodley died at the Salem hospital last night, aged 67 years. He was suffering from a partial stroke of paralysis, and was found in a comatose condition in his room at a High street rooming house several days ago, being removed from there to the hospital.

Little is known of the past life of the deceased. He came to Oregon about five or six years ago, and was very close about his affairs. He claimed that he was a soldier in the Union army, but never joined a Grand Army post nor applied for a pension.

He had several hundred dollars a few years ago, and was a constant worker, spending very little money, living alone and being very frugal. Coroner Clough and others are unable to find any trace of the funds. He worked around several of the saloons, cleaning up and doing other odd jobs, earning good wages.

He made a statement a few days before his illness that certain parties owed him $50, but when the people were questioned this morning, they denied the debt, and said that deceased was in arrears to them.

It is also said that deceased owned a tract of land in the East, but the particulars are vague. The matter will be thoroughly investigated. Deceased
