LAND BOARD RULES

A Salem special says: The state land board, has established a number of new rules regarding the purchase of state lands, which rules are designed to prevent a repetition of the irregularities which have prevailed in the past.

One of the most important of these new regulations is that governing the manner of making applications. Heretofore the applicant has merely been required to make affidavit that he was a citizen of the United States over the age of 18, and that he wanted the land for his own use and benefit and that he had made no agreement, express or implied, to sell or convey the land to any other person. The affidavit could be made before a notary public. Recent developments have indicated that many fictitious names were signed to applications, and the sales were made to persons who had no existence, except in the mind of a notary public, who was willing to create imaginary people and affix his notarial seal to papers bearing their supposed signatures.

Since applications could be made in any state by residents of any state, and the formalities required were few, a dishonest notary public could make an endless number of fraudulent applications, with but little danger of detection. It is to remove this opportunity for fraud that the board has ordered new rules and regulations and new forms.

One of the future requirements will be that the applicant shall give his postoffice address. Another will be that his signature to the application must be written in the presence of two witnesses, who must subscribe their names as such.

It is also probable that the form of notary's certificate will be changed to read somewhat like the form of acknowledgment of a deed, so that the notary must certify that the applicant is personally known to him. Under the present regulations a notary who forges a name can say that the person who came before him was a stranger, and thereby escape responsibility and avoid detection. While it will be possible to commit fraud under the new regulations, it will be much more difficult.

It will be remembered that in the famous 7-11 cases a county clerk and United States commissioner certified that persons appeared before them, though those persons had no existence, and agents of the department of the interior certified to the existence of houses and improvements that did not exist. In the same way a notary could take the acknowledgment of an imaginary person, and forge, not only the signature of the applicant, but the names of witnesses also, but there would be more danger of detection in fraud so extensive.

The board has also made an order directing that close scrutiny be given all future proceedings relative to sales that were reported by the grand jury as irregular, and the board will probably refuse to issue deeds or accept payments unless satisfied that the application to purchase was in good faith, and not in violation of law.

June First a Holiday.

Governor Chamberlain today issued a proclamation making June 1st a holiday for opening the Portland fair, also setting apart two weeks, from June 5th to 17th, as Oregon Citizen's Week.

MARTIN-M'VEY MEETING

In spite of May showers the audience at the evangelistic services in the big tent just back of the Christian church increases every night. Persons are seen at the meeting every night who have probably not been inside a church for the purpose of hearing a sermon for years. Particularly noticeable is the number of men who attend.

The opening prayers last night were given by Rev. F. W. Cliffe, of the First Baptist church, and Rev. McGaw, of the First Presbyterian church.

The popularity of the evangelists, Dr. Martin and Prof. McVey, rapidly grows, and one hears them discussed on the streets and at the hotel dinner tables.

The sermon last night was a masterful one, the speaker's subject being "Mirrors of Christ." Dr. Martin's power of retaining the attention of his audience throughout the entire sermon is wonderful. Every word is eagerly listened to.

Prof. McVey has not sung more sweetly or effectively than he did last night, when he sang "There's Room in Heaven for Thee."

After the services in the church the ordinance of baptism was administered in the church baptistry.

The committee was unable to get the stoves up yesterday, but they are now in place, and the tent will be well heated for the evening services tonight.

Dr. Martin's subject tonight will be "My Brother's Keeper."

which will result fatally. Some of the dead had their head or legs crushed off, and timbers blown through the body.

The cyclone came from the southwest at 9 o'clock. It dipped and struck the town with terrific force, leveling buildings and burying its victims amid the ruins. The first relief train from Hobart reached the stricken town just before daylight. In all directions evidence of the terrible havoc was apparent. The dead and dying lay about the streets, in yards and amid ruins of the houses. The survivors were too much wrought up to render much aid. Later help arrived from Mangum, Lawton, Altus and Vernon. The storm was not confined to Snyder. On the way to the stricken town dead and injured were passed in plain sight of the relief trains. At Quanlan several houses were destroyed. Mrs. O. W. Cox and two sons are known to be killed. Also K. B. Ralston and son, Mrs. Crump and the father and mother of Professor Hubbard.

At 1 o'clock this afternoon it was reported that over 100 had been killed outright or succumbed to injuries.

Streator, Ill., May 11.—A tornado struck Streator from the southwest, shortly after 11 o'clock today, unroofing houses, uprooting trees and doing damage to the amount of many thousand. Several people were injured.

Salem Boys in Court.

J. G. Anderson this morning appeared in Police Judge Moore's court and swore out a complaint against two youths by the name of Carl Johnson and Leon Williamson, for taking a few articles from his premises. Officer Cornelius went down to the homes of the respective youths, and, having found them, brought them to the police court and Judge Moore investigated the charges against them. He found that the boys had not taken anything from Mr. Anderson, but brought to light the fact they had been in a shed belonging to Clint Kurtz a short time ago, and abstracted therefrom a brace and bit, some paint, together with a brush, and a number of other articles. The boys said they were making a merry-go-round, and had borrowed the above named things in the construction. After giving the boys a lecture on the subject of taking things not their own, Judge Moore let the boys go on their promise to be good hereafter, and to be ready to appear whenever he sent for them. The police have received complaints from many people of the petty thievery committed by certain young boys in the city, and if the practice does not cease soon will deal severely with the culprits.
