

A MUCH HATED MAN

Strike Breaker James Farley
Best Hated Man
In U. S.

James Farley, who has gained a widespread reputation as a breaker of strikes, is regarded as the best hated man in this country, says the New York Tribune. The reputation he had gained by successful work in the line to which he has devoted himself in Brooklyn, Providence, Cleveland, Chicago, Waterbury, Richmond and other places was greatly increased by the success of his work in bringing to naught the efforts of the men who stopped work in the subway strike in this city in March of this year.

Farley, who is a little over 30 years old, was born in Plattsburg, N. Y., and was keeping a hotel about ten years ago, when a dentist gave him a dose of cocaine, which, with the pain in an aching tooth, drove him frantic for a time, and he was pursued in the woods as a "wild man." He gave up his hotel and came to Brooklyn, where he joined some strike-breakers. His work with them led him to take up the work of putting an end to strikes. His trade is probably the most dangerous in the world, although he only smiles when its perils are mentioned. But, if he won't admit it himself, his body shows ample testimony to the truth of the statement. He is covered from head to foot with bullet wounds and scars from knives, clubs, pistol butts, blackjacks, cobblestones, baseball bats and all the other weapons of offense of a mob.

He is regarded as the leader in his line, and practically has a monopoly of the business of strike-breaking. The men on whom he depends for the backbone of his working force are an odd lot. He has about 500 in his employ, ready to leave whatever work they may have and come to him at short notice. They are scattered all over the country, at various trades and professions, when he has no work for them. Some of them joined him because they are opposed to unions. The outrages on non-union men in the coal strike and the Cleveland street car strike gained him many recruits. Others joined because of sheer love of adventure, while others are union men who have had trouble with their unions or else are not too good union men to fail to be attracted to another city by the big pay. When they once report to Farley they get into their working clothes and keep their luncheons in their pockets. When the order to work comes they do not stop even to don overalls. They simply go to work. It is on this organized company that Farley depends to break a strike, and not on the outside help which he employs. After his strike-breakers have made it safe for non-union men to work, then they gradually drop out, their places being taken by new men or returning strikers. Then Farley pays them off, and they scatter until the next strike. The men all receive their transportation, but they do not receive a cent of pay until after Farley's work is done. In a strike they are housed and fed at the expense of the company employing Farley.

TYPHOID NERVES

EXTREME WEAKNESS OF NERVES
AN AFTER-EFFECT OF FEVER.

Mr. Worth Suffered Six Months of Misery Caused by General Disorder of His Nervous System.

Typhoid fever is sometimes called nervous fever. During the course of the fever the nerves are always profoundly disturbed, and when it is over they are left so sensitive that the patient has to be guarded against all excitement. In the tonic treatment then demanded, regard must be paid not only to building up flesh, but also to strengthening the nerves. A remedy that will do both, make sound flesh to repair waste and give new vigor to feeble nerves, is the most convenient and economical.

Mr. Worth has had valuable experience by which other sufferers may profit. He says: "I had a severe attack of typhoid fever late in the fall. I got over the fever, but remained very weak during the succeeding spring and summer. My heart palpitated, my breathing became difficult after the least exertion, and there was numbness in both hands. I suffered in that way for fully six months. As I did not grow out of it, did not in fact see the slightest improvement as time passed, I decided to use the very best tonic to be found, and endeavor to get back my strength and my command over my nerves. A statement in the papers about a very remarkable cure effected by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills impressed me so much that I concluded to make a trial of them in my own case.

"Almost as soon as I did so, I found that I was using the right remedy for my troubles. They helped me so quickly that I could see decided improvement before I had finished the first box. I kept on taking them for several weeks, and when I stopped I was completely well. I consider Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a most valuable remedy, and I am in the habit of recommending them to others who are afflicted as I was."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are widely known, and justly praised. It is one of their great merits that they supply strength to muscles and nerves at the same time that they purify the blood, and correct disordered action of bodily organs. Nothing could be better for forwarding recovery from debilitating diseases, such as typhoid. They create what we call the necessary conditions or basis of all sound health, and they do all this better than any other known remedy.

Thousands of testimonials from all parts of the world agree in supporting that of Mr. Charles Worth, whose home is at East Vassalboro, Maine. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are the remedy to use when the blood is thin, as in anemia; or impure, as in rheumatism; or when the nerves are weak, as in neuralgia; or lifeless, as in partial paralysis; or when the body as a whole is ill nourished, as in general debility. When the nerves ache and tremble it means that they are starving. The only way to feed them is through the blood, and the best food is Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They are sold by all druggists.

Editor Howe, of the Atchison Globe, must have been feeling sad when he wrote the following: "This has been a gloomy day: rain all day, and no chance to walk along the residence streets and get a glimpse of a woman throwing at a hen."

LEADER IS ASSISTED BY NATURE

Band Leader and a Storm
Cause Side of a Building to Fall In

Alois Phillip and his band were practicing in Phillip's hall at Ninth and Kearney streets during the storm last night, says the Atchison Globe. Phillip had worked up his well known enthusiasm to a high pitch, and, feeling the influence of the outside tempest, he called for "Storm Echoes in the Mountain." With an accompaniment of thunderbolts the dramatic power of the music was worked up, and Phillip's baton waved violently. As the climax approached bricks began to fall off the walls of the building, and the structure swayed, and the timbers groaned. The echoes in the mountain grew louder and seemed to be coming in the wake of an avalanche. The snare and bass drums worked overtime. Now and then there would be a crash and more bricks would fall off and rattle over the roof. The storm in the mountain grew worse. Trees were uprooted, and great boulders were forced from their moorings and fell, and the sound reverberated with a mighty roar through the canon. Such a pace could not last long, and "The Storm Echoes in the Mountain" got around to the last stretch. There was a succession of crashes, and then another and then a grand blast from everything, and just then one side of the building fell in. The leader wiped the perspiration from his brow, and there was triumph in his face. He knew he had put a great finish to the piece, but he did not know he had been assisted by the building falling in.

KILLED BIG BEAR

Farmers Kill a Big Black Bear That Had Destroyed Sheep.

A correspondent gives the following account of the killing of a bear near Roberts' bridge a few days ago, says the Albany Democrat.

A man by the name of Moore, who lived on the J. B. Roberts place, missed one of his sheep, and, on looking around, he ran across a large black bear which had killed the sheep. He sent word to his neighbors, and the next day a lot of men and boys, with some dogs, started out for a bear hunt. The dogs soon started the bear, and after an hour or two they succeeded in killing it. W. L. Pete and David West claim the honor of killing the bear, as they did most of the shooting. The bear weighed near 400 pounds. It was taken to Mr. West's place and skinned, and the meat was divided among the neighbors.

The most amusing incident connected with the hunt was the report that Eliza Morgan, who went along to see the fun, happened to get in the way of the bear, and, there being no tree conveniently near, he sought safety in flight, and the way he put distance between himself and danger, would almost make a race horse ashamed of himself.

It is supposed that the bear had wandered away from the foothills and become lost, as it is a very uncommon thing to see or hear of bears in the valley.

Man's Unreasonableness.

Is often as great as woman's. But Thos. H. Austin, manager of the "Republican," of Leavenworth, Ind., was not unreasonable when he refused to allow the doctors to operate on his wife, for female trouble. "Instead," he says, "we concluded to try Electric Bitters. My wife was then so sick, she could hardly leave her bed, and five (5) physicians had failed to relieve her. After taking Electric Bitters, she was perfectly cured, and can now perform all her household duties." Guaranteed by J. C. Perry, druggist, price 50c.

IRRIGATION ANNIVERSARY.

Water to Be Turned on 50,000 Acres of Land at Hazen, Nev.

On June 17th next, the third anniversary of the passage by congress of the irrigation law, the water will be turned on 50,000 acres of land near the new town of Hazen, Nev., from which the Truckee-Carson system on which the government has already spent $1,500,000, and contemplates a total expenditure of $9,000,000. By 1908 the additional amount of land thus irrigated and opened to settlers will be 3,000,000 acres. Irrigation in that region is no experiment, for it has been applied by private enterprise to 90,000 acres around Reno. The products raised are fruit, wheat, oats, potatoes, sugar beets and alfalfa. Originally the waters of the Truckee and Carson, fed by large mountain lakes at a high altitude, ran to the sagebrush levels of sands below, and vanished in "sinks." Now the outflow is conducted in cement-lined canals into storage basins, from whence the water is to be supplied to a total area of 700 square miles. No one can get more than 80 acres of irrigated land for a homestead, and the purchaser is required to stay on the land and improve it. There are some fees to pay, and it will take a year to make the farm ditches and raise a crop. The proportionate cost of irrigation is paid back by the settler in ten annual installments, without interest. It is estimated that the payment to the government in ten years will be $2080, and that the farm, judging from the value of other irrigated land, will be worth $8000. Three-fourths of the land in this enterprise belongs to the government, and is open to homesteaders on the terms given. If the settler, at the end of ten years, can show that he has reclaimed at least half of his entry for agricultural purposes, the land and water supply are his property perpetually.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portions of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of deafness (caused by Catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free. F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O. Sold by druggists, 75c.

Sorry He Is Not a King.

It is easier to be the father of a six-year old girl than of a sixteen-year old one; the former's only wish is that her father kept a candy store, and the latter's bitter sorrow is that he is not a king.

PLENTY OF PROOF

From People You Know—From Salem Citizens.

The greatest skeptic can hardly fail to be convinced in the face of evidence like this. It is impossible to produce better proof of merit than the testimony of residents of Salem, of people who can be seen at the time. Read the following case of it:

G. S. Cooper, farmer, living three miles northeast of Salem, on the Garden road, says: "I was raised in the wheat district and when a good lump of a boy I prided myself as having as much strength as any other boy in the neighborhood, and when a number of us got together we often tested our strength by lifting. I very often lifted two bags of wheat, but have since regretted having done so, as the result was that I strained my back and ever after had more or less trouble from dull aching pains across my loins and other symptoms of kidney complaint. In some way Doan's Kidney Pills were brought to my notice and the first I went to town I dropped into Dr. Stone's drug store and inquired about them. I was told they were highly recommended and advised to give them a trial. I did so. And while I did not follow the treatment as regularly as I should have done, being a poor hand to take any kind of medicine, the benefit I derived from their use stamps them as a remedy which acts fully up to the representations made for it."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

MADE HIM WAIT.

The Motorman Was in a Hurry, But the Woman Didn't Care.

Atchison Globe: It takes a brave man to call a woman's bluff. An Atchison woman with two half grown boys got on a street car yesterday, and just as the car was about to leave Commercial street the woman remembered something she wanted at a store across the street. She sent one of her boys after it and he started to run. She said: "Don't hurry. I'll hold the car for you," so the boy walked slowly. The motorman said: "Madam, I can not hold this car past starting time." She said, "Oh, yes, you'll wait. I am not afraid of your starting." The boy did not come and the motorman asked the woman to get off and wait for the next car, and explained politely he was losing too much time. The woman replied that she would not get off and that he would wait. He fumed, but he waited. Finally the boy came back, and when the woman reached her destination, she gave one ticket for herself and two half grown boys. The motorman said it was not enough. But she said, "Oh, yes, it is," and marched off. What was the man to do?

It is reported that the S. P. land department will not employ the usual number of rangers to guard its timber lands against forest fires this summer.

HOOPKIRTS AGAIN.

Not the Old Balloon Shaped Ones, But a New Style.

Hoopskirts again have made their appearance in Chicago. The latest coming out of the ante-bellum article was at a convention of the Chicago Dressmakers' club at the Stratford hotel. Mme. M. J. Hosac, president of the club, had a special design of hoop-skirt, which she demonstrated on the form of Miss Anna Schubert, a model. "I will show that this hoopskirt is not the old 'Johnnie Comes Marching Home' sort, but, of course we can't say how far it will develop," said Mme. Hosac, as she led Miss Anna to a chair and seated her with comfort, her skirts still on the floor in front.

"The old sort you know used to fly up in front, but that was before dress-making got to be an art, as it is today. Now we can make hoopskirts supply a full effect around the hips and still leave it possible for the wearer to climb on street cars, get in and out of her carriage and do anything that it would be possible to do with the other sort of skirts."

The dressmakers say the hoopskirt is going to be all the rage in Chicago in a short time.

Next Sunday the churches of Lebanon will unite in a bascalante service for the high school.
