COAST SHOULD UNITE

Words of Wisdom From the City at the Golden Gate

The San Francisco Chronicle under date of June 13, has this to say of Oregon, and the necessity of unity of action by the Pacific Coast states:

It was a go-as-you-please day with the Californians in Portland, and the Promotion Committee visitors took advantage of to enjoy themselves. Many spent almost the entire day on the exposition grounds, while others took trolley trips to various points of interest near Portland.

From 12 until 2 o'clock the delegation enjoyed social pleasures and took luncheon at the American Inn. It was all arranged that the day could be devoted to seeing the sights of the exposition without losing time in going elsewhere for something to entertain the inner being of the visiting sight-seers.

All through the grounds could be seen the yellow badge of the Californian and the patriotic poppy of the same hue. This was the insignia of the honor of the day, and everybody envied the jolly crowd.

The afternoon was devoted to good-fellowship and cementing the bonds of friendship between California and Oregon. Dinner was served at the American Inn, and tonight the Californians are the guests of the Commercial Club of Portland. The speeches all breathed the spirit of community of interest of the entire coast. In addressing the club members and guests President Sbarboro of the California Promotion Committee said:

I am indeed pleased to see that the Portland Commercial Club is a live, active, enterprising institution, doing the same kind of good work for Oregon as is being done by the California Promotion Committee for California. Gentlemen, our two states have room enough to give profitable employment in the development of their resources to 60,000,000 people. There is no question but that the time will come when these two states will contain a larger population than any other two states in the Union. Whether this desired event is to be in the near future or the long hereafter, depends entirely upon the activity, enterprise and patriotism of our citizens. It was Horace Greely, I believe, said: "Be sure that you have a good thing, and then be sure that you let the people know it." Now, gentlemen, both California and Oregon have many good things with which to maintain in comfort many millions of people. It is only required on our part that we do let those people know the good things which we have in store for them.

by Rufus Jennings, secretary of the committee, who said:

Did you ever stop and realize that in the six Pacific coast states, Oregon, Washington, California, Nevada, Idaho and Utah, there were, according to the twelfth census, fewer than 3,000,000 people? Fewer than in the state of Texas, or in the state of Missouri, and about the same as in the small state of Massachusetts, even fewer than in the city of New York. Did you ever stop and realize this? We have increased considerably in population since 1900 and the organized promotion work is responsible in a large degree for this increase. But we need more desirable people, millions of them, we need to bring the landless man to the landless land.

It makes very little difference to which Pacific coast state they come so long as they come to the Pacific coast. We must all work together. Pull together. Co-operate and do things for this great section of the country. "One for all and all for one" should be and is the motto. I have in mind the calling of a meeting of representative men from the six Pacific coast states, as soon as this exposition has closed in a haze of glory, for the purpose of forming a great organization that will work for the interests of the Pacific coast as a whole, an organization so strong that its influence will be felt, and I prophesy that such an organization will be one of the most important factors in the progress of the West. It will have the effect of removing local prejudices and of educating us to look at things from a broader viewpoint.

I believe that the Lewis and Clark Centennial Exposition will do much to bring about a closer relationship between the Pacific coast states and I congratulate you, men of Portland, on the enterprise, ability and foresight displayed in this great undertaking.

Fred J. Koster, a prominent worker on the committee also addressed the club, praising them for their energy and progressiveness. He said:

I wish to compliment you citizens of Portland, earnestly and sincerely, what you are thereby accomplishing, not only for yourselves and for your beautiful city and state, but for the credit and welfare of all our Pacific coast. We are as deeply interested in your progress as in that of our own state of California, fully realizing that the advancement of any part of the Pacific Coast is to a great extent shared in by us. The work we do for the advancement of the interests of the great district we represent should be and is with the purpose of accomplishing that which may result in the greater welfare, not only of our section of the country, but of the country at large through that section's development. No particular portion can long enjoy prosperity at the expense of the rest of the country, just as no one nation can expect permanent prosperity through another's disadvantage.

We of the great West inhabit a region of most wonderful resources. We enjoy countless blessings. Everything that goes to render human life joyous is ours for the taking, and it behooves us to spread broadcast the knowledge thereof—yes, it is our duty to so manage the affairs of this Western wonderland of ours that it may yield the treasures it holds in store for the greatest benefit of all our people.

Thus by "getting together"—mind and heart receptive and responsive, each giving to the other the best that is in him—we cannot fail to give the old wheel of progress a more rapid and a steeper turn. We of the Pacific States must realize our importance to the Nation—not looking upon the matter selfishly, but in the broadest spirit; we know the wealth our resourceful territory can add; the well fed, well housed population it can support, and we know that it can return tenfold, say a hundredfold, every dollar of the Nation's funds expended in the improvements of its rivers, its harbors, and devoted to its benefit in works of any nature, and it is important that you of Oregon, our brothers of the state of Washington, and we of California should unite and let our slogan be "For the Pacific Coast," secure in our belief that whatever development we cause here, will not be alone our gain, but that of the nation.

The Californians by their outspoken loyalty to Oregon's great exposition have won the hearts of its citizens. Tomorrow the Californians will make the trip up the Columbia river to Cascade Locks and back.

During the Lewis and Clark Exposition the O. C. T. Co. will make a rate of 75 cents to Portland, round trip $1. Tickets good for 10 days. Boats leaving daily.

JAILED JUST FOR SPANKING

Noble Woman Goes to the Bastille for Duty Well Done

Because Mrs. Effie Klink spanked the children of Mrs. William Klink, her sister-in-law, she spent three days in the Sioux City, Iowa, jail. She flatly refused to pay the fine put upon her for disturbance of the peace, preferring the martyrdom of incarceration.

"Those children needed a spanking," she said to the judge, "and if their mother won't spank them, somebody must."

Mrs. Effie has fine spunk. And she stands upon firm sociological principles. It is a pity she had to languish in jail while there are so many children sorely in need of good sound spankings.

Every state has its penitentiary, every county its jail, every subdivision or society its procedure for punishment, until we strike the family, and the foundation rock of all society; and there all system of judgment and punishment is utterly wanting.

The office taken upon herself by Mrs. Effie Klink might, if consistently kept up, revolutionize society at its fountain head.

The average mother spanks her children whenever she feels badly. The average father relieves himself of indignation or business worry by a resort to the rod upon his unoffending offspring.

The right to spank their children is an inalienable right of every parent. It seems to be the only satisfaction a lot of parents get out of them.

But the family spanking is entirely without system, in most cases. And, then, it is said there are cases where the spanking hurts the parents more than it does the child.

In such cases as these, the obliging sister-in-law, who is able to see when the children need a spanking and to give it to them, ought to be regarded not as a disturber of the peace, but as a blessing.

Unfortunately, however, parents in general neglect many other things rather than fail to spank their children. They seem not to realize that child-training includes self-training as its first and most essential element.

There is more catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

The shop is a stone's throw away from the spot where Lady Rachel Byng and the Countess of Warwick had their shops. The latter have retired from business sadder but wiser, and now society is waiting to see if the Countess Fabbriotti's venture will prove more successful.

Another LL.D. for Roosevelt.
Worcester, Mass., June 21.—Before an enthusiastic audience of 1800 persons, President Roosevelt today delivered the principal address at the commencement exercises of Clark College. The exercises were held in the college gymnasium, which was tastefully decorated for the occasion. President Carroll D. Wright presided, and the introductory remarks were delivered by Lieutenant-Governor Guild. At the conclusion of his brief address President Roosevelt was honored with the degree of doctor of laws. In the course of his remarks he paid a warm tribute to the memory of Senator George F. Hoar, who, during his lifetime, was one of the most conspicuous benefactors of Clark College. After the exercises at Clark College, the president paid a visit to Holy Cross College, where he was given another enthusiastic reception.

Kentucky Teachers' in Session.
Mammoth Cave, Ky., June 21.—With an attendance larger than at any previous meeting the Kentucky Educational Association began its annual convention here today and will remain in session until the end of the week. M. O. Winfrey, of Middlesboro, is the presiding officer. The meeting is to be devoted almost entirely to the discussion of the plan of campaign for elevating the standard of the public schools throughout the state. Particular attention will be given to the state normal schools. Governor Beckham, of Kentucky, State Superintendent Carrington, of Missouri, State Superintendent Miller, of West Virginia, and a number of other men of note are among the scheduled speakers.
