WOULD TORPEDO POTEMKIN

Russian Admiral Advises Blowing Pirate Ship Out of Existence

St. Petersburg, July 6.—According to latest advices received by the admiralty, the battleship Potemkin is still at Theodosia. In an interview Admiral Wierenis, chief of the naval staff, said he advised sending a torpedo boat to sink the outlawed battleship, and that this is the best method of handling the grave situation. Following the issue of a note addressed to the powers, it is believed here the revolutionary committee in charge of the Potemkin will ask recognition as a belligerent.

Bremerton, July 5.—It is reported that several of the McNeil island escaped prisoners were seen in the vicinity of Silverdale, seven miles from here this morning, and a posse has been organized to search for them.

Four posers are now on the trail of the supposed convicts near Bremerton. United States Marshal Hopkins is waiting until a definite report is received as to the location of the outlaws before sending out the main posse. Officials of the federal prison are scored on all sides as the result of the break. The convicts cut through five cell walls, then through the roof, and had been gone five hours before the warden knew of it.

Endeavor Work Discussed.

Baltimore, Md., July 6.—Again the Christian Endeavor host began the day with a quiet hour service of praise and prayer. The service, which was attended by hundreds, was led by President King of Oberlin College. The hour from 9 to 10 was devoted to a school of methods. Under the direction of expert leaders the convention discussed the methods of junior and intermediate Christian Endeavor work, foreign missions, home missions, personal work, and Bible study.

Later in the morning the juniors had their innings. They assembled by thousands in the Fifth Regiment Armory and listened to a general discussion of the topic, "The Boys and Girls for Christ and the Church." The speakers included William Shaw of Boston, Miss Kate H. Haus of Missouri, Rev. C. H. Hubbell of Ohio, and Rev. Albert Swift of London. A second junior and intermediate rally was held late in the afternoon.

One of the most interesting sessions of the entire convention is that arranged for this evening. Leaders of the Christian Endeavor movement representing many races and many countries will assemble in the armory to exchange greetings and speak of the progress of the movement in their respective spheres. Rev. Albert Swift will tell of the work in England, and the Rev. J. D. Lamont will speak for Ireland. India will have several representatives present, as will also Bulgaria, China, Africa, Japan, Jamaica, and Canada. Mr. Stephen Jones will speak for the American Indian, and Bishops Alexander Walters and B. W. Arnett for the negro race in America.

HONOR TO PAUL JONES

French and American Soldiers and Marines Mingle on French Soil

Paris, July 6.—Another link in the chain of friendship binding together the great republics of the new and old worlds was forged today when official France united with representatives of the United States in paying respect to the memory of the great American admiral, Paul Jones. The program of ceremonies accompanying the transfer of the admiral's remains to the custody of the American naval authorities for conveyance to the United States occupied the greater part of the day and attracted unlimited attention in the French capital.

An American naval escort of more than five hundred officers and men from the American squadron at Cherbourg arrived in Paris by special train at an early hour this morning. The visitors were met at the Invalides railroad station by a detachment of French troops, who acted as escort to the barracks of the military school, which the government placed at the disposal of the United States sailors and marines. At 3:30 this afternoon Admiral Sigbee, his staff and the entire naval contingent proceeded to the American church on the Avenue de l'Alma, where the ceremonies of the delivery of Admiral Paul Jones' body to the representatives of the American government took place. The church was thronged with distinguished French naval and civil officers, several members of the cabinet and representatives of various patriotic societies.

The body lay in state in the chancel of the church, the casket being covered with the national flags of the United States and France and a number of handsome floral emblems. General Horace Porter, former ambassador to France, as custodian of the body, the recovery of which was due entirely to his efforts, made a brief address previous to turning the body over to Francis B. Loomis, the special representative of the United States government. He later in turn commissioned Rear Admiral Sigbee, commander of the American escorting squadron, to transport the body to the United States. A salute was fired as eight American marines shouldered the coffin and carried it to the artillery casemate, on which it was publicly conveyed to the Esplanade of the Invalides. The route of the procession was through the Champ Elysees and across the Alexander bridge, halting before the tomb of Napoleon. Houses all along the route displayed the American colors, and the sidewalks were thronged with sight seers who stood with bared heads as the procession passed.

Arriving at the tomb of Napoleon the coffin was deposited on a high catafalque, surrounded by flags and flowers, and an entire division of French troops passed in review before the body. After rendering military honors to the dead the body was placed on an open railway car, guarded by a French and American escort. Ten o'clock tonight is the hour fixed for the departure of the funeral car for Cherbourg. Arriving there the body will be transferred to the flagship Brooklyn with appropriate ceremonies.

JOHN PAUL JONES

Body Formally Turned Over to the United States Today

Paris, July 6.—The ceremonies connected with the transfer to the United States of the remains of Paul Jones took place this afternoon at 3:30. The funeral services were held in the American Protestant Episcopal church, which was filled with French officials, the American mission to receive the body, prominent residents of the American colony, Ambassador and Mrs. McCormick and Consul-General and Mrs. Gowdy also attended. Following the service General Porter, senior special ambassador formally transferred the body to the care of Francis B. Loomis, Jr., special ambassador. During the ceremonies the coffin rested on a catafalque in the chancel. Dr. Morgan, rector read a simple service. Several hymns were sung, and at the conclusion of the exercises the body was conveyed under escort to the Esplanade des Invalides, mounted guardsmen forming a guard of honor. Then came the sailors from the American warships. Guardsmen lined the streets, and kept back the enormous crowds. The coffin was placed on a raised platform in the Esplanade, and the troops filed past, while bands played American and French anthems. It will be taken on a special train, which will start for Cherbourg at 10 o'clock tonight.
