

ANOTHER LOST MINE

A dispatch from Denver says: Bowed with age and the suffering of sixteen years' imprisonment in Sing Sing prison, New York, Richard Morton is in Denver endeavoring to prove his ownership to valuable coal lands now held by the Colorado Fuel & Iron company, near Trinidad. He is stopping with friends at No. 25 East Twenty-fifth street.

Morton is accompanied here by his wife, Miss Helen Morton, who knew him for many years as a trusty at Sing Sing prison. She knew that he had killed a man, but during her visits to the institution, as a member of the Episcopal Visiting association of the prison town, she grew to like the kindly faced prisoner, though she did not know he was of her kin until after his release.

In 1880, filled with a desire to see the west, he enlisted in the regular army and was sent to Fort Russell. He served two 3-year terms and in 1886 was discharged from the army in this city. Another private, Henry Simpson, suggested that they try prospecting, and the two having been old pals in the army, fell in with the proposition. Near Trinidad they found the coal lands. They made a regular filing, both of their names being affixed to the papers, and then Morton, thinking he could dispose of the lands in New York, had his partner accompany him to that city. There a firm, whose name Morton refuses to divulge for the present, purchased the claims. A $1000 payment was made and the rest of the purchase price was to be handed over after the mines were in operation.

Simpson received the money. The two men went to a cheap hotel on west street, and shortly before midnight that night Morton was awakened by his companion. The latter was dressed and was standing at the door conversing with somebody who was in the hall. In the moonlight Morton saw him pass the money out and then he jumped to his feet and demanded an explanation.

Simpson endeavored to get out of the room and a fight followed. When the other lodgers arrived on the scene Simpson was dead. Morton declares he struck him with his fist but a man named Harry Warner, who claimed to have seen the encounter through the open door, swore that Morton killed Simpson with a heavy water pitcher. Morton believes that Warner is the man who received the money from Simpson through the doorway. At any rate there was no money found on the body of Simpson, and principally on the evidence of Warner, Morton was convicted and sentenced to be hanged. Afterward his sentence was commuted to life imprisonment. Two years ago Morton was pardoned.

Congregational Cadets

The Congregational cadet corps played to a good-sized house Monday evening, and everyone was well pleased. The boys are a lot of manly little fellows and are well trained.

The opening number was very interesting. Different members of the corps sang, while the whole joined in the chorus. Their voices are well trained, and the selections were pleasing. One of the most entertaining features of the program was the minstrels. The little black darkies created a great deal of fun, and the singing of "Topsey" made quite a hit.

Rev. Baker, who has charge of the boys, gave a reading, and also a talk about the boys, which was of interest.

Establishing a School

Rev. Father Buchholzer, formerly of Sublimity, is now located at Hillsboro, and is actively engaged in the work of establishing a school of his denomination in that wide-awake town. Father Buchholzer is an energetic worker, and his many friends in Marion county will be glad to see him succeed in his present undertaking.

OUR BUSINESS

In the past has been very satisfactory, but we realize that there are many men, women and children at our very doors, who could and should have a bank account, who have never deposited one cent in a bank. We are now after this class especially, and will not be satisfied until we have interested them. We want you to call and investigate our methods and be convinced that it is to your advantage to open an account with us.

COMMISSIONERS COURT ADJOURNS

Partial List of Bills Ordered Paid—Other Matters Settled

After holding one of the longest sessions in the history of the board, and transacting an unusually large amount of business, the Marion county board of commissioners has adjourned until July 24. At that time bids for repairing the steel bridge across the Willamette at Salem will be read and considered. Among the last acts of the court was the granting of a right-of-way to the Aumsville Telephone company. This gives the company the right to erect poles and to string wires along the roads in the Aumsville district. A re-survey of a part of the Salem-Foster road was also ordered. The part that is to be resurveyed is between Jack's bridge and Scott's mills and the Mt. Angel railroad crossing.

The following is a partial list of the bills that were ordered paid by the board:

SOME AUTO STORIES

Salt Lake Millionaires Amuse Themselves and Furnish Fun for the Public

A letter from Salt Lake to the Evening News at Boise deals with the automobile craze as follows:

To be in the swim in Salt Lake it is an fait to own an automobile. In consequence there is a very nice little game in progress right now among the topnotchers socially and financially which consists in raising the ante. A common $2500 motor car is plebian. To be the clear stuff you must own a really-truly chugg-chugg, as Casey calls him, gold mounted wagon with a uniformed "chiffonier," program and other frills. With the Newhouses, Emery-Holmeses, McCornicks, and other millionaires setting the pace it is really pathetic to see the efforts of the small fry try to keep in the swim. The dear old public gets lots of fun out of these automobiles, to say nothing of the exercise indulged in in dodging them. As soon as John D. Gotrocks comes out with a new $6000 touring car, Billy Newrich appears on the street next week in one that cost a little more and has two modern attachments to it—and so it goes.

Everybody in Idaho among the ship-pers knows T. M. Schumacher, traffic manager of the Short Line. Tom has butted into the auto game with great eclat. A few days ago he gave a surprise party to some friends. Everything went along swimmingly until a chuck hole, for which State street is famous, was encountered. The car ran into an overflow of an irrigation ditch and there sat the party of society buds marooned. Passing hay wagons were hailed and ropes secured but it was of no avail until two more autos hove in sight. The combined efforts of all effected a rescue, but so strenuous were all concerned that when the big car came out of the hole eventually, all concerned were given a mud bath irrespective of dainty summer costumes and milliners' creations.

Then there was Mr. Bailey. He bought a great big man-killer that was the pride of his voting district. He likewise secured a chauffeur whose credentials set forth that he had missed his vocation—he was so steady that he ought to have been a minister of the gospel. Soon after the arrival of this pfitz-chug wagon this exemplary young man stole in one night from the garage and undertook to give two damsels of the red light district a whirl around town. It is believed had the young enthusiast only kept in the center of the road he would have ultimately reached the dizzy record of 70 miles an hour, but unfortunately when 60 had been reached he hit a telephone pole. The auto turned a complete turtle and the human freight was scattered over a considerable area of territory. It is not known whether the ambitious young fellow was killed or not, because to date he had not reported—he flew the coop. All that is left of the Bailey wonder is a pile of scrap iron and fragments of leather upholstery. What became of the girls is
