HAD A GOOD TIME.

Salem Boys Interview Ocean Park, and Have a Fine Outing.

Seven of Salem's gayest sports arrived home yesterday, after having a glorious fishing trip up to Ocean Park. Those in the party were Clarence Whalen, George Brown, Ed. Turner, W. Turner, Chesley Ralph and the happiest man in Salem, Sam Minner. Sam, in relating the features of the trip, said: "We had a ripplin' old time of it, I tell you; caught between 600 and 700 fish; ate everything but ourselves, and no one was sick but myself, and wouldn't have been, either, but a fish thinking me some sort of bait, attempted to take his share, and the way he did chew me wasn't small, I tell you."

The boys declare there is nothing like fishing. If it is sometimes tiresome. The seven hearty fishermen also took a trip to Three Rivers, and the first thing that met their gaze was a monstrous salmon making its way down the riffles, and then the fun began, the whole hilarious gang went after Mr. Salmon, and they didn't do a thing to him, because he was too smart for them—and got away, and when last seen the big fish was going down stream like a streak of chained lightning, a gressed pig, a scared coyote or a wiseless message.

There was only one accident occurred during the whole time they were out, and that caused no end of fun, except to the unfortunate victim, who happened to be George Brown. George is an expert with the rod and line, but not so sure footed as might be expected of a really good fisherman, and it happened while Brown was standing on a projecting rock out over the stream. From some unknown cause he lost his footing, one foot went up and the other northeast, and amid shouts and blue smoke, George went sliding and slipping into the water, which, as luck would have it, was very well. The boys have great sport now commenting on the artistic manner in which George "bumps the bumps."

Bat Alameda Eggs and Live Forever.

A dispatch from Alameda, Cal., of Saturday last says: Dr. Osler's age theory will have no chance at all when the invention recently perfected by George J. Foster of 1311 Oak street comes into general use. Not only may men who have passed the 40-year limit lift up their heads with hope, but even the sexagenarians whom Dr. Osler relegates to the tomb, may welcome Foster as their deliverer.

The humble hen eggs are the means by which Foster will put his invention into general use. Experiments made by him with barnyard fowls have convinced him that the egg, properly electrified, is the elixir of life so long sought for. Coils of wire were laid around the nests in his henhouse, and the current turned on when the hens went to lay. The result was quickly noticed. From the time of the installation of the electric wires the eggs took on a different property. When eaten they acted like a tonic. Foster distributed the eggs to the aged of his neighborhood. The effect was wondrous. Dimmed eyes became bright, the halting steps gave way to one of elasticity, bent shoulders were straightened, and soon, in all the neighborhood, there was neither an old man nor an old woman.

By careful selection Foster has bred a race of fowls that are endowed with the electric properties from birth. The wires are still kept around the nests; however, in order to sustain the high efficiency of the eggs. Another virtue that he claims for his invention is that rats, cats and other prowling enemies of the chickens are kept away from electrified eggs.

You Get Up

In the morning tired, languid, and frequently with a headache that is almost unbearable. You have been nervous, restless and sleepless night after night, and gloomy and irritable during the day. This nervous exhaustion affects the heart, lungs and other organs that depend upon the nerves for motive power. Then the stomach fails to digest the food; the heart action is weak, and circulation poor, and the kidneys and liver inactive.

What you need is not a stomach, head, kidney or liver medicine, but Dr. Miles' Nerveine to soothe and feed the nerves and build nerve tissue.

"My wife was subject to severe mental strain, which resulted in nervous prostration. The first symptoms were uncontrollable crying and melancholy spells, which increased to such an extent that for over a year she would have a spell every day of from four to six hours duration. She required the constant attention of her physician and attendants. She suffered great pain and anguish. The best physicians attending her could give no relief, and she finally became almost of unsound mind. As a last resort I began giving her Dr. Miles' Nerveine, and to my joy, noticed that her spells next day were not so severe, and they gradually disappeared altogether. She has had no recurrence of the spells, and is gaining in health and strength."
J. P. OVERHOLSER, Sterling, Ill.

Dr. Miles' Nerveine is sold by your druggist, who will guarantee that the first bottle will benefit. If it fails, he will refund your money.
