At its base was Oregon, politically speaking-will not make John Rand a congressman from the second district, or any other district. He may eventually be president, minister to the court of St. James, envoy to the state of Swat or consul to Cockalorum. But congressman! Not publican party of Oregon-east of the mountains. Even eliminating that final qualifying phrase and truth remains.

"The biggest mistake the party ever made was when it defeated Moody for re-election to congress and chose J. Newt Williamson, If the party has a red corpusele remaining in its veins, it should acknowledge its error manfully, and after apologizing, make re. paration, not by granting Moody's wish to represent the second district in the congress of the United States, but by recognizing his qualifications and well-earned right to represent this state in the most distinguished legislative body in the world-the senate.

"As a matter of cold, hard and naked truth, Moody was one of the best congressmen ever sent from Oregon to Washington by the dominant party. He did things back there in the national capitol-he carned his salary, and that's a whole lot to say about a public servant these days, What he did as congressman he will do as senator.

"The Maverick who writes this painfully admits that he fought Moody for re-election in the last state convention, He is heartily ashamed of himselfan admission which may or may not be relevant to a discussion of Moody's qualifications, but this much is impossible of refutation: There are big bunches of Republicans in this second district who are likewise ashamed of Miller street, Salem.
