Hong Kong Journal Expresses Opinion of English There

In the July Review of Reviews there are several extracts from the South China Weekly Post, a British journal published at Hongkong, which criticizes the Americans for their leniency toward the Filipinos. One writer in the Hongkong publication says: "Unfortunately the American government has adopted the impossible and quixotic theory of the Philippines for the Filipinos; and, until it learns wisdom in the hard school of experience, the white planter or merchant is almost an impossibility. * * * The pity of it all is that the American government has been sincerely anxious to rule the natives for their own good, that it has neither exploited the islands unfairly nor willingly oppressed any man. Its failure has been due to inexperience. It is the failure of the amateur, of the man totally unversed in ruling subject races, of formulae. When the United States realizes that east is east and west is west, then it will cease to be troubled by such revolts as that in Samar, but it will find the lesson difficult to learn."

Another article compares American with British colonial methods, much to the discredit of the former. The Englishman, this writer says, is "guided by stern, concrete facts. The American, however, has but lately embarked on the dangerous path of colonial government, and is endeavoring to prove that Great Britain, with her 300 years of experience to guide her, is none the less, both ethnically and practically wrong. The Philippines have cost the people of the states an immense sum, and the lives of thousands of soldiers, yet the federal government declines to countenance any policy which aims at treating the islands as an asset of the republic. The Philippines are for the Filipinos, it proclaims. Any attempt to treat them as an American possession, in the British sense of the term, is declared as an infraction of various formulae regarding the rights of man; although the obvious injustice of using the national funds for the benefit of an alien race, despite the opposition of a large tax-paying minority, is conveniently overlooked. Had the entire expenses of the Philippine experiment been borne by those who were in sympathy with the theory, the world might well have applauded; but as the matter stands the opposition may very plausibly claim that the government is violating those very ideals of liberty which it professes to regard so highly.

"The American has come to the Far East with no previous experience of dealing with subject races. Despite the evidence of history, even of his own senses, he has declined to recognize the Filipino as an inferior. The native is, in the words of the late governor, 'the little brown brother.' Disregarding concrete facts, ignoring natural laws, the federal government has shut its eyes to the manifold weaknesses of the native. It has drawn no distinction between white and brown; it has denied the very existence of the eternal barrier of color. The Filipino is not regarded as a being altogether lower in the scale of evolution, but merely as an equal who has been debarred from the privileges of education. Officially, all the little brown brother needs is school-books. Cram him with education learned by rote, and, theoretically, he will become equal to the European, to the product of countless generations of civilization. Once educated, he will still theoretically be able to govern himself.

FRAUD EXPOSED.

A few counterfeiters have lately been making and trying to sell imitations of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, and other medicines, thereby defrauding the public. This is to warn you to beware of such people, who seek to profit, through stealing the reputation of remedies which have been successfully curing disease for over 35 years. A sure protection to you is our name on the wrapper. Look for it, on all Dr. King's, or Bucklen's remedies, as all others are mere imitations. H. E. THE BRITISH AS DUMPERS

Albert Halstead, in a letter from London to the American Economist, throws some light on processes by which the British increase their exports. The result of any relaxation of our policy of safeguarding the interests of American workmen may be inferred from his explanation. He says: "The British trade returns for the first five months of the present year show that this 'dumping' process is in full swing. In the British export trade the percentage of increase has been as follows: January, 3.7; February, 5.7; March, 15.7; April, 2.7, and May, 12. The percentage of increase for the entire five months is slightly over 8 per cent. The export total increased 29,673,927, to £129,720,824, for the five months.

"Why is this an increase due largely to dumping? it may be asked. For one thing, one hears on every side in England complaint as to the condition of trade. The number of the unemployed was never so great, it is stated by those who should know. The domestic trade does not show the improvement that such an increase of the export trade, if the increase were not abnormal and due to dumping of surplus products, would cause. The British manufacturer has no protection from the paper-made goods of Europe of those of the highly paid American workman. So improved business here always increases imports. Imports have increased for the five months, but only by £2,052,869, or 4.5 per cent. That increase is not such as to indicate that the increase in exports is due to any other cause than that of 'dumping.' It may be said right here that if we Americans relax our tariff policy, proceed to 'readjust' our tariff schedules and reduce them in any degree, the British manufacturers, who are praying for better trade, will devote all their energies to entering the American market, and the Germans will be equally active. 'Dumping' will be more successful then, because the duties to overcome will be lower and the percentage of reduction from the actual market price necessary in order to get under our tariff will be less. Mark that."
