A Trip up Mt. Hood.

Among the first to gain the summit of Mt. Hood this year were Earl G. Eyre, of Salem, a gentleman from Portland and Guide Yocum, who made the ascent last Friday. They expected to be the first up this year, but, to their surprise, three had registered the Wednesday previous, the earliest date of ascent known. Growing poetic Eyre, who is a young man of 20 years, penned the following for the Chronicle: At three-thirty we were called from our sleeping And were soon at the table eating. When we had eaten to our heart's content After the pike poles and shoes we went At four we started to climb To the top of Mt. Hood sublime. Maybe you think it wasn't work And often I was inclined to shirk. After we had traveled three miles or so We came upon small drifts of snow And these continued to increase Until we soon beheld a fleece. Still upward did we climb That we might reach her peak sublime. Up her snowy sides we plod First the foot and then the rod. Thus upward we did rate her Until at last we reached the crater. Yes! and a word about the time, It was but little after nine. There for an hour we remained Ate our grub with faces stained Then toward the summit our feet we turned And for that spot we eagerly yearned. Some places straight up we seemed to go And the way we went, it wasn't slow. The guide used the snow ax very fast And hello! were on the summit at last. Around the summit we did look And finally had our pictures took. Then the descent, it did begin, 'Use your pike pole, jab her in.' When dangerous places had been passed We thought we'd like to go a little fast. Then we began to slide on our pants And I wobbled as if I had St. Vitus' dance. The way we went, it wasn't slow A mile in two minutes, you know. The trip is all very fine And would well be worth your time. Now, if you do as you should, You shall go and see Mt. Hood. —The Dalles Chronicle.

Dragged to Death.

Conrad R. Wintersteen was dragged to death by a horse at Airlie Wednesday afternoon. Mr. Wintersteen and a brother were rounding up a flock of goats that had left their pasture. While driving the goats the doomed man was also leading a horse by means of a rope tied around its neck, and one end thrown over his wrist in a loop. The horse took fright and ran, dragging Mr. Wintersteen 40 rods before the rope broke. The brother hurried to Conrad's side, to find life extinct. The body was bruised in numerous places, and the skull crushed in.—West Side Enterprise.

THE GAEKWAR OF BARODA.

A Prominent Figure on the Gorgeous Delhi Durbar.

There was a surprise in-store when we reached the tent where the Gaekwar's jewels were kept, writes Dorothy Menpes in her account of the Durbar at Delhi. "They brought out a diamond necklace. It was a breast-plate of diamonds of perfect purity—a necklace for which a millionaire might crave in vain. One diamond is said to be the third largest in the world, and another heart-shaped diamond underneath very nearly as large. Even these two massive gems did not appear so very enormous when surrounded as they were by scores of others, some of them larger than a child's marble. On seeing this wonder a lady clasped her hands and exclaimed, 'Oh, why did not his highness wear that beautiful necklace at the Durbar?' 'Because,' said an official, 'that is only one among the Gaekwar's store of jewels. The necklace which his highness wore at the Durbar was worth three times as much as this one. Here is something you will admire,' he added, as he drew out a pearl necklace, five or six rows of pearls, each single gem as big as a filbert, and almost of incalculable value." From this little incident one may get a faint idea of the splendor of the raiment worn by the high Indian officials on this memorable occasion. Of course, it is not possible to duplicate some of these extraordinary features that were seen in the Indian grand spectacle, but from the real jewels and precious stones, all the chief attractions and conspicuous features of the gorgeous Durbar are faithfully reproduced in the glorious entertainment presented this year with the Barnum & Bailey Greatest Show on Earth. The Rajahs, Maharajahs, Moguls, Begums, Chiefs, and other high officials are all represented as true to life as it is possible to make them, while the salient attractions are all there in addition. There are the people resplendent in the radiant and picturesque costumes of the Orient. There are costly clothed elephants with howdahs, the embroideries upon the cloths and woven goods being of the most painstaking character; the mail-clad warriors, the Buddhist priests in long flowing robes, teams of zebras in harness, the sacred animals with decorated and painted horns and hoofs, ancient and modern weapons of paraphernalia, trappings and accoutrements in exquisite design and pattern in boundless quantities and endless varieties costing fabulous sums. The spectacle of the gorgeous Durbar is presented to the public in addition to the regular performance without extra charge. It is a matter of fact, a stupendous prelude and requires all the available space within the vast span of the main tent, the rings, stages, hippodrome race track, etc., to properly display its wealth of wonders and array of costumed characters. Hence it must be given first, before the arenas are used by the equestrian, acrobatic, athletic and realistic performers. Many of the animals of the two menageries are used in this wonderful spectacle, so that the scene presented to the visitors when this really wonderful display is before them surpasses belief. It will be here with all the other wonders on Wednesday, August 23.

The body of Miss Dayton, drowned at the beach Friday, has been recovered.

Fired the Board of Health.

After calling a special session of the city board of health yesterday afternoon, Mayor Lane, of Portland, requested its members to tender their resignations, and, upon their refusal to do so, preemptorily dismissed them from office. Those directly affected by this action are Drs. Mae H. Carlwell, William Jones and James F. Belle, while it is probable that the dissolution of the present body will be followed by the discharge Dr. J. C. Zan, city physician; Dr. H. R. Biersdorff, health officer, and those under them, including W. Bontelstacher, assistant health officer; Dr. Sam Slocum, assistant city physician; R. Robertson, superintendent of the city garbage crematory, and Jacob Neumeister, foreman. In short, it is believed that the mayor intends to make a clean sweep, not only of the board of health, but of the water and park boards, and that this will be done with as little delay as possible. The mayor gave negative assent to this view of the situation in an interview with the Oregonian last night.

A very destructive fire is sweeping over Northern Josephine county. It has already destroyed much timber on Louise and Jump-off-Joe creeks, and the whole of the country north of Merlia, and the vast bodies of timber on Jump-off-Joe are threatened. The finest body of yellow and sugar pine in the state is in this section.

Eastern Oregon has an unusually large hay crop.

X-RAYS

Well! well! Who would have thought that a jelly fish looked that way.

Governor Chamberlain ran a 300-yard race with Attorney Seabrook on his recent visit to Coos, and was beaten, but this is an off year.

Rev. C. S. Latham, of Portland, seems to have abandoned the Nazarene as an example to the world, and has substituted John D. Rockefeller instead.

President Eliot advises mankind to "always associate with your superiors." The Philadelphia Ledger thinks he mapped a course of loneliness for some of us.

Here's a pipe-dreamer's idea: "If I had my way I would take out of circulation for a time all of the books in the libraries and leave nothing but biographies. I would have the children read of the good things that these great people have done." So says Rev. C. M. Sheldon.

The most dangerous man in the United States is not John D. Rockefeller. It is the preacher who, from the pulpit, preaches Rockefeller instead of Christ. Who forgets the parable of the rich man and his difficulty in entering into the kingdom of heaven, and points out that Rockefeller, with all his ill-gotten millions, is the ideal American citizen for his Sunday school flock to follow. Rev. Latham, of Portland, is one of that kind.

Sick Headache

When your head aches, there is a storm in the nervous system, centering in the brain.

This irritation produces pain in the head, and the turbulent nerve current sent to the stomach causes nausea, vomiting.

This is sick headache, and is dangerous, as frequent and prolonged attacks weaken the brain, resulting in loss of memory, inflammation, epilepsy, fits, dizziness, etc.

Allay this stormy, irritated, aching condition by taking Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills.

They stop the pain by soothing, strengthening and relieving the tension upon the nerves—not by paralyzing them, as do most headache remedies.

Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills do not contain opium, morphine, chloral, cocaine or similar drugs.

"Sick headache is hereditary in my family. My father suffered a great deal, and for many years I have had spells that were so severe that I was unable to attend to my business affairs for a day or so at a time. During a very severe attack of headache, I took Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills and they relieved me almost immediately. Since then I take them when I feel the coming on and it stops it at once."
