ELECTRIC HAND IRONS

Have Been Introduced in the Salem Steam Laundry

Col. J. Olmsted's steam laundry has been equipped with a 25-kilowatt dynamo for supplying current to run the hand-irons and collar-finishing machines, and light the whole plant. A 33 horse-power engine, fed by saw-dust made steam, supplies power, and 14 silver-plated hand-irons and collar machines glide over men's bosoms and frills of ladies' shirt waists with an electric thrill that add enjoyment to operatives and great pleasure to wearers of Salem Steam Laundry products.

A man and his wife are recently reported in a dream to have got into the gates of heaven, and expressed great dissatisfaction to St. Peter when they found they could not send back to Olmsted and get their laundry fresh each week. Hand-laundried white robes and wings ironed out smooth by angels were not good enough for them, and they packed up their dress-suit cases and started back for the town where Olmsted runs a steam-electric laundry.

With his newest electric collar machine, there is no more sawing necks of fair ladies and strong men with saw edges, or ruining collars by splitting the folds next to the front button holes. A handsome young lady showed the reporter through and operated the new machines. Col. Olmsted is very proud of his force of employees. They are all good-looking young women, and young ladies who would shine in any social circle. They get from a dollar a day upward for ten hours' work, and more for overtime. In all Col. Olmsted employs about 40 people at his clean-clothes factory, and it runs every day but Sundays and holidays.

The chiefs of force are headed by Col. Olmsted himself, who is master of every detail of the business, from sanitary microbe filters, where water enters the building, to tying knots on packages that go out by basketsful, in wagons and express trains. He can press the bosom of the most delicate lace open-work shirt waist with the deft touch of a trained artist, and he knows when work is well done, from the roughest woolen shirt to the finest silken hose. D. D. Olmsted is general manager, a silent man, who knows where everything is, and when it will be ready for delivery. L. C. Hockett is the chief engineer and master mechanic, who keeps the wheels spinning upstairs and down stairs. Will Tarpely is chief of sorting and distributing. Nick Moffett and Ed. Michaels are in charge of deliveries and gathering in of unwashed goods, while Miss Victoria Worsham is chief accountant and book-keeper. This is a force that works with greatest smoothness and celerity, and turns out an immense amount of perfectly finished product that gives great satisfaction to customers of the Salem Steam Laundry.

The Airship Flew Yesterday.
Captain Baldwin's airship Angelus made its third Portland ascent at 2:45 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, an eight-mile breeze not dampening the ardor of Lincoln Beachey, who engineers the vessel, and who expressed confidence that he could make headway against it. After rising to a height of 500 feet the gasoline engines stopped as on the previous ascent, and the cigar-shaped boat drifted southward over the city. Several attempts were made to start the machinery. The motors were finally started, and the ship made headway against the wind, increased to ten miles an hour, back to a position above the fair grounds.

SALMON RUN AT YAQUINA

First of the Season Captured on Trolls in the Bay

The Capital Journal has private advice that the first salmon have been captured on trolls in Yaquina bay. The first were seen leaping there Monday morning, and several have been caught by Salem people who are skilled in the art.

(Special to Daily Capital Journal.) Albany, Aug. 10.—The following message has just been received from our agent at Newport: "Salmon commenced running in the bay this week. Several good catches of the different varieties, chinook, silver-sides and steel heads yesterday and today. It is early, so run may not last."

IS EIGHTY-SEVEN.

But Not a Has-Been—Hoofed it Seven Miles for Hunter's License.

There are sundry persons hereabouts who consider themselves thoroughbred nimrods. Not one of them, however, is in a class with Reuben Grant, of Philomath, who is 87 years of age, and who journeyed afoot from Philomath to Corvallis Monday to take out a hunter's license. The distance is seven miles, and the thermometer that day rose to 95, which two facts, coupled with that other statement, that Mr. Grant is, to be exact, 87 years and 3 months old, and also that he did the stunt to get a hunter's license, makes the performance one which the ordinary nimrod may well contemplate with astonishment. Where, for instance, will Burnett, Rennie, Callahan, Huston, Kiger, Wilson and Bryson be when each is aged 87 years and 3 months? True enough, the place where they may then be wayfarers might be 95 degrees, or even more, but not one of the bunch will be hoofing it seven miles to get a hunter's license. As a nimrod, Mr. Grant is in a class stierly by himself, and all the other sportsmen about town should doff their hats to him.—Corvallis Times.

SOCIAL EVENTS

Social Event.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. W. Moores was the scene of unusual activity Tuesday evening, the occasion being the entertainment of young friends in honor of their niece, Miss Laughter, who is soon to leave for Baker College where she has accepted a position in the schools. The event of the evening was the hat trimming contest, causing much merriment. The prize was awarded to Mr. Paul Stahl, the most original trimmer.

Light refreshments were served. Invited were: Misses Beanie Beckham, Blanche Brown, Winnie B. Mable Baker, Belle Darby, Ruth Gabe Ruth Gabrielson, Marie Hofer, Gertie Moores, Greta Looney, Lydia Prager, Wilda Roland, Zoe Stockton, Ann Strong, Cora Talkington, Madeline Walker, Willah Riggs, of Seattle; Ed Myers, of California; Messrs. Ben Benn, Chauncey Bishop, Grove Mullinger, Roy Buckingham, Howard Collins, Fred Durbin, Mac Hofer, Lawrence Hofer, Clyde Laughhead, Maris Looney, Merrill Moores, Gordon Moore, Chester Moores, James Mott, —, Mable, Adrian Miles, H. H. Markell, Ed Matthews, Frank Myers, Ivan Putnam, Paul Stahl, Fred Thielson, Ed Thieson, Paul Wallace, Levi Westhead, Will Walton.

Agonizing Burn.

Are instantly relieved and permanently healed by Bucklen's Arnica Salve. Rivenbark, Jr., of Norfolk, Va., writes: "I burnt my knee dreadfully; the blistered all over. Bucklen's Arnica Salve stopped the pain, and healed without a scar." Also heals all sores and sores. 25c at J. C. Perry's, Druggist, Salem Oregon.

Enjoyable Band Concert.

The Reform school band gave an outdoor concert at the Central Congregational church last evening, which was much enjoyed. It was attended by from 50 to 500 people. Miss Beryl Innes and Miss Mothorn rendered vocal solos during the intermission of the music. The band program was very good and enjoyed by every one. The ladies of the church served refreshments at tables in the church lawn, and the affair was successful in every way.

Passed Examination.

Ernest W. Haas, of this city, has passed the examination before the State Board of Pharmacy at Eugene Tuesday. An assistant pharmacy, and successful, passed. The class consisted of 10 seniors and four juniors.
