Open Forum.

Editor Journal: Much unfavorable comment has been aroused over the removal of one of the employees at a certain state institution. We are glad to believe, however, that the action was justified. At least we hope that such was the case, and that the rumor now in circulation to the effect that for personal reasons the aforesaid official may have been over zealous in the discharge of his duty, may prove to be unfounded.

We are of the opinion that the "gentleman" in question abides firmly by the time-honored adage that "All's fair in love and war," and realizes that while he may have been unfortunate in a certain, let us say, "warfare," that the "fort" in question was already in the hands of the enemy and should have had no bearing on the present case.

The open season for deer began today.

Booth-Kelly are arranging to start two more of their big mills near Eugene.

Tobe Cox, a native of Linn county, died Sunday, while on his way home to Albany from Coos county.

Victor Wittick, of North Bend, was fined $25 this week for killing deer on the north fork of Coos river.

Heavy forest fires are still raging in the Rogue river district, and much damage is being done to other property.

The Trail at Portland is now being covered with a canvas roof for its entire length along the part of it which extends over the lake. The roof will protect from the blinding glare of the sun on the water, of which so many complain.

A special train left Baker City this morning, bearing the local lodge of Elks to Portland. On the way it will gather in the herds at La Grande, Pendleton and The Dalles, and will arrive in Portland at 8 o'clock tonight. It is plain there is going to be something doing tomorrow, that big Elk day.

Climate and Crop Service.

Dry weather continues, and the need of rain is becoming more urgent. Streams are getting low and pasturage is becoming very short, except on tide lands and on the mountain ranges. Stock, up to within a few days ago, kept in good condition, but now cattle are losing flesh, except where they are helped by an extra feed of hay. The harvesting and the threshing of grain are being rapidly pushed, and some farmers are through with this work. Fall wheat and barley yields continue good. The straw of spring wheat was heavy and the heads were large, but the berry shriveled during the recent hot weather, with the result that the yields in nearly every section of the state are less than expected. Oats suffered similarly, and, while, the damage was possibly not so great as in the case of spring wheat, oat yields are also disappointing.

Corn and late potatoes need rain; the hot days curl the corn leaves, but they freshen up again during the coolness of the nights. Hops are uneven, and reports regarding the condition of the crop are conflicting. Sugar beets in the Grand Roade valley are promising, but the crop is not good as it was last year at this time. Peaches are plentiful in the market. Apples are smaller in size than usual, but otherwise the yield in the well kept orchards promises to be nearly an average one. Prunes have dropped more than usual at this season of the year.

Prof. Edwards Resigns.

Professor W. L. Edwards, who recently went to Santa Cruz, Cal., telegraphed yesterday to President F. J. Miller, of the board of trustees of Albany college, tendering his resignation as principal of the commercial department of the college, as he has accepted the position of manager of the Chestnutwood business college of Santa Cruz. The resignation was accepted, and the trustees of the college will at once try to fill the place left vacant.—Albany Herald.

The backbone of summer is broken.

Salem has an express team that the old-fashioned circus would have considered a prize.

If you haven't one of your own, it is about time you were looking up some nice little girl in the neighborhood to take to the circus.

President Goode is to give another banquet in the New York state building. If the Oregon building isn't good enough for the Portland electric light crowd to receive the state's visitors in, it should be removed from the grounds, and so should Goode.

The Russian peace envoys complain of their hotel service. The hotel man says each one is provided with a parlor, bed room and bath. Maybe it is the bath that makes them dissatisfied, especially since electric lights are used and there are no candles for dessert.

An Oregonian reporter suggests that cyanide of potassium, coming in contact with the acids of the stomach or such acids as are used in making ginger ale or other soft drinks, produces hydrocyanic acid, which is the same as prussic acid. The Oregonian should start a branch in chemistry, with the reporter in charge. It would certainly prove an improvement, even on its excellent funny column.

Labor in Philippines.

Victor S. Clark, in his report on "Labor Conditions in the Philippines," prints an extended statement made by an American contractor, in which he asserts that Chinese labor is not needed or desired in the Philippines. He says:

"Americans are themselves responsible for most of the present labor troubles. They came into a country where the prevailing rate of wages, adjusted to the standard of living and to the cost of production in competition with other countries, was about 2 1/2 cents silver currency, or what would be 14 cents American currency at present exchange rates. Actuated partly by motives of sentiment and by inexperience with tropical labor, the government authorities in employing men, raised wages nearly 600 per cent, or to $1 American a day in many cases, and, I may add, they raised the labor cost of works a nearly equal amount. The Filipino, like other tropical laborers, does not increase his output to correspond to higher wages, neither does he raise his standard of living and personal expenditure with increased pay, but he works fewer days and spends more time in idleness. So if you multiply wages by five or six you divide your supply of labor by almost the same figure. You cannot suddenly make a new and artificial wage standard or lift up the standard of living by main force in a country like this. Such changes must extend over a long period—over generations. So we are able to get what men we want to work for us for a wage equaling 15 or 20 cents in American money at a time when some government workmen are receiving five times that amount. And our men are probably better contented than the others. There has been an increase of about 30 per cent in the rate of wages paid by the railway for formation work, such as grading, to correspond with the higher cost of living on account of the cattle plague and the two short rice harvests. We pay our construction gangs by the amount of work done—from 9 to 12 cents a cubic yard. They do about two cubic yards a day, where an English navy would do eight cubic yards. So while wages are one-fourth, the cost of the work is nearly the same as in England.

"We don't want Chinese. The railway concession from the Spanish government contained a clause permitting us to import Chinese coolies, and we did bring some in for grading on one section, but they were not as successful as the Filipinos. So we employ only Filipinos. Our present construction is delayed some, but not much, by lack of labor—that living in the vicinity. I want to repeat, I don't believe an excessive wage attracts the Filipino, and it rather upsets labor."

Attendants Dismissed from Asylum.

For whipping a patient at the asylum, which is contrary to rules, Dave Waddell and George Widersheim have been summarily dismissed as attendants at that institution. Ralph Walker, another attendant, who witnessed the whipping and who did not interfere or remonstrate, was also dismissed.

It seems that the three men, who were the attendants on the violent ward, have often been greatly aggravated by a patient by the name of Swirling, who hails from San Francisco, but who was received at the asylum from Hood River. Finally the men took it upon themselves to cure him of what they considered his meanness. While the chastisement was being administered, however, Dr. W. D. McNary put in an appearance, with the above result.

DEATH FROM GASES

Carl A. Chapman, of Bend, Overcome, and His Friend Becomes Inane

Carl A. Chapman, a young business man of Bend, met death last Friday night under most distressing circumstances. His friend, who tried to save him, is a raving maniac.

Chapman was engaged in digging a well on his recently taken homestead, 18 miles southeast of Bend. A. A. Anthony, a neighboring homesteader, and old friend of the family, was assisting in the work. The well was down 28 feet, several feet of which was in solid rock.

A blast was exploded, and shortly thereafter young Chapman went down to work. He was soon overcome by the gases of the blast. Anthony went to his assistance, and was able to carry the insensible man up the ladders to within about seven feet of the top, when his own strength gave out. Chapman fell to the bottom of the well, his head being crushed on the rocks.

Rides Horse to Death.

Anthony, frantic and exhausted, managed to get out of the well. It was nine miles to the nearest help. Not knowing the fate of his friend at the bottom of the well, and being unable to investigate for himself, he climbed as the horse the men had at the homestead, and rode him till he dropped.

Anthony ran and crawled the remaining two miles to a ditch construction camp, where the men thought him crazy, since he was too greatly exhausted to talk intelligibly, and his terrible anxiety could not be expressed. Finally he made himself understood, and a telephone message was got to town. Charles A. Chapman, father of the young man, hurried out with a doctor, but there was nothing to do except to bring the body home.

A Pleasant Way to Travel.

The above is the usual verdict of the traveler using the Missouri Pacific railway between the Pacific coast and the east, and we believe that the service and accommodations given merit this statement. From Denver, Colorado Springs and Denver there are two through trains daily to Kansas City and St. Louis, carrying Pullman's latest standard electric-lighted sleeping cars, chair cars and up-to-date dining cars. The same excellent service is operated from Kansas City and St. Louis to Memphis, Little Rock and Hot Springs. If you are going east or south, write for particulars and full information.
