How Owls Catch Chickens.

When I was a chump of a boy I shot a horned owl, the spread of whose wings was four and a half feet, and to the surprise of the boy who had carried it for several miles, the weight was only four pounds. They were rather numerous at that time in that section of the country, and were troublesome about carrying off chickens, which mostly roosted in the apple trees about the farm buildings. The belief that they would carry away full grown hens was a common one. It was also commonly believed that an owl never picked a chicken off the roost, but, alighting on the limb, crowded the chicken off, and, as it flew toward the ground, caught it on the wing.—Forest and Stream.

BUYS COAL MINES

Southern Pacific Invests in Coal Lands and Water Front on Coos Bay

News comes from Portland that the Glasgow coal mines including over a mile of water front and three thousand acres of land situated on the bay just opposite North Bend, have been sold. It is understood that the Southern Pacific company is the purchaser and that the price paid was about three hundred thousand dollars.

It has been known for some time that a corporation known as the Pacific Coal and Transportation Company, incorporated under the laws of New Jersey with a capital stock of $1,500,000 has had an option on the property. The directors of this company are Phil Metcher, president, ex-state treasurer of Oregon; Henry L. Pittock, manager of the Portland Oregonian; Richard B. Knapp, merchant, Portland; Wm. A. Bantz, capitalist, Portland; Winfield Scott Schley, Washington, D. C.; Thomas Moore, New Jersey; Henry B. Needham, Maryland Coal Company, New York City; Western financial agents—Ladd & Tilton, bankers, Portland.

Coal experts estimate that the gross tonnage in the Glasgow property will exceed fifteen million tons.

If the report should be true that the Southern Pacific is the real purchaser of this property, it proves that the Harriman line means business, for in the Glasgow property they get all the fuel they need, with a mile of water frontage for docks and warehouses and several hundred acres of tide lands for track yardage for their railroad terminal.—Coos Bay Harbor.

A SEA SERPENT.

On Exhibition at Newport—Fishermen Caught It in the Ocean—Its Teeth and Tusks.

Those who went on the excursion to Newport Sunday returned eloquent in description of a sight they had of a sea serpent that was caught on Friday in the ocean off Newport, and which was on exhibition by a local butcher at 10 cents a look. Though small, the monster, according to all accounts, made up in appearance for all it lacked in dimension. It was five feet four inches in length. Its body was only about a foot long, and its head, less. All the remainder was tail, and such a tail! All along its entire length it had queer appearing fins, evidently used in locomotion. The same excrescences appeared on the body.

It is the head, however, that is the stunning part of this unusual and unsightly ocean reptile. Though it looked like nothing anybody ever saw, the head mostly resembles that of a dog. There are two big eyes as large nearly as those of a human being. Their stare is described as enough to raise the hair on a bald head. There is a nose somewhat like a dog's nose, and a mouth with rows of big, sharp teeth. Near the front of the mouth there are huge tusks. The subtle effect of all these combinations is, that a weak minded man, should he be in the act of pulling the thing out of the water with his hook and line, would after one hurried, startled paralyzing glance, be likely to let loose all holds and jump overboard. That, at least, is what a Corvallis man said who had paid 10 cents for a look at the thing.

The serpent was caught by a member of a party out deep sea fishing Friday. It is on exhibition at a local butcher shop in Newport at 10 cents a sight, and many people are paying the fee to see the thing. One returning passenger said that the butcher, when he was there, had deserted his knives and block altogether, to run his sea serpent side show. Sea bathing may be a pleasurable diversion, and doubtless is, until there comes the thought of a reptile like this one, sporting itself between a gentleman's legs, and then—ugh.—Corvallis Times.

HOP PICKING TO BEGIN.

Eugene Will Open the Season Next Monday.

The hop crop is now rapidly nearing the stage of maturity. Henceforth, until the crop is saved, everything will be hurry and hustle in the Independence district. Inspection of a hop yard now gives a good idea of what may be expected at harvest time. The burrs can now be seen, though they have not reached full growth.

The continued dry weather will undoubtedly affect the yield, but the quality promises well.

With a continuance of the present weather, picking will be on in three weeks. Advance guard of pickers have already arrived in some yards. In order to get the benefit of an outing, and to be on the ground ready for work, many families have already pitched their tents near their favorite hop yards.

Growers are receiving letters from pickers daily, and those already booked

The cry of "boxfull" will soon resound in the valley hop yards, as the picking season is almost upon us. The Boggs yard, near Harrisburg, is well in advance of the others thus far reported, and the picking of Early Fugles will begin there Monday, the 21st. The Smed yard, of Waltherville, which has heretofore held the record for early maturity, received a setback when the big hailstorm swept over the valley. This crop, although an average one, will not be ready for pickers before the 24th of August.—Eugene Register.
